A Good King Dying.

They Want to Fight.

— By ARTHUR BRISBANE —

(Copyright, 1928.)

DEEP sorrow in Britain. The King seems to have no chance of recovery. His oldest son, coming in haste from his work for the Empire in Africa, arrived in time to see his father alive.

THE world's sympathy is with the British people, and with King George, a good father, a good husband, wise king, good citizen of the British Empire, obedient to law, devoted to his duty.

THERE have been greater Kings, like Henry VIII; more spectacular kings, like Richard the Lion-Hearted; more constructive kings, perhaps, like Alfred the Great or William the Conqueror, who brought French system into the British Islands. But there has never been a BETTER king.

WHEN it was suggested, long ago, that big apartment houses should contain many families, with one central heating plant, and water supply, there was a conservative hub-bub. "You are trying to break up the American family. That family will always live in its own separate house under its own roof."

Nevertheless, big apartment houses were built.

NOW it is suggested that millions of women, tied to cooking stoves, should be set free from that drudgery. Community kitchens, cooking food properly, carefully, scientifically, would deliver food at the homes.

A good suggestion. It would enable women to use their brains for thinking, instead of working.

THE idea isn't entirely new. Those engaged in manufacturing prepared foods, breakfast foods, soups, preserved fruits and other products, help to minimize "kitchen slavery."

PARAGUAY and Bolivia think they want to fight, because a boundary dispute killed 25 men. The remedy suggested is to start a war and kill 25,000 more men.

This war threat comes at an awkward time, when the Kellogg treaty is presented to the Senate as a "sure cure" for war.

THE difficult thing is to keep from fighting those that want to fight. Big countries like the United States MIGHT, but WON'T say to the little countries: "If you fight we shall send men in airplanes and shoot you." That would only be adding more shooting to the world's trouble. Besides, we haven't got the airplanes. Bolivia, asked to accept arbitration, says: "No, I won't." What can you do about that?

"RECOVERY is brisk," were the words from Wall Street yesterday, when the ticker stopped ticking, and the worried speculators took their headaches home feeling better. In a country so rich, it is hard for the bears to scare even the most foolish bulls thoroughly.

SOONER or later, of course, the gamblers learn their lesson. But with any kind of sound judgment, to keep apart from mere speculation, investment in American securities is the best in the world.

MR. AXELL BYLES, head of the Tidewater Associated Oil Company, at a cheerful dinner in New York's Metropolitan Club with his friends, Paul Shoup and Herbert Fleishhacker, from California, talked cheerfully about the oil situation.

He believes that big oil men have decided, at last, that it doesn't pay to waste oil resources in throat-cutting competition. There is no suggestion of any hard-and-fast agreement among producers or exporters, but there are indications of dawning common sense.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE has denounced the wasting of oil resources. Herbert Hoover may find a plan to protect the oil industry.

Reckless exportation at the lowest possible prices, benefiting foreigners and depleting our oil reserves, might certainly be regulated.

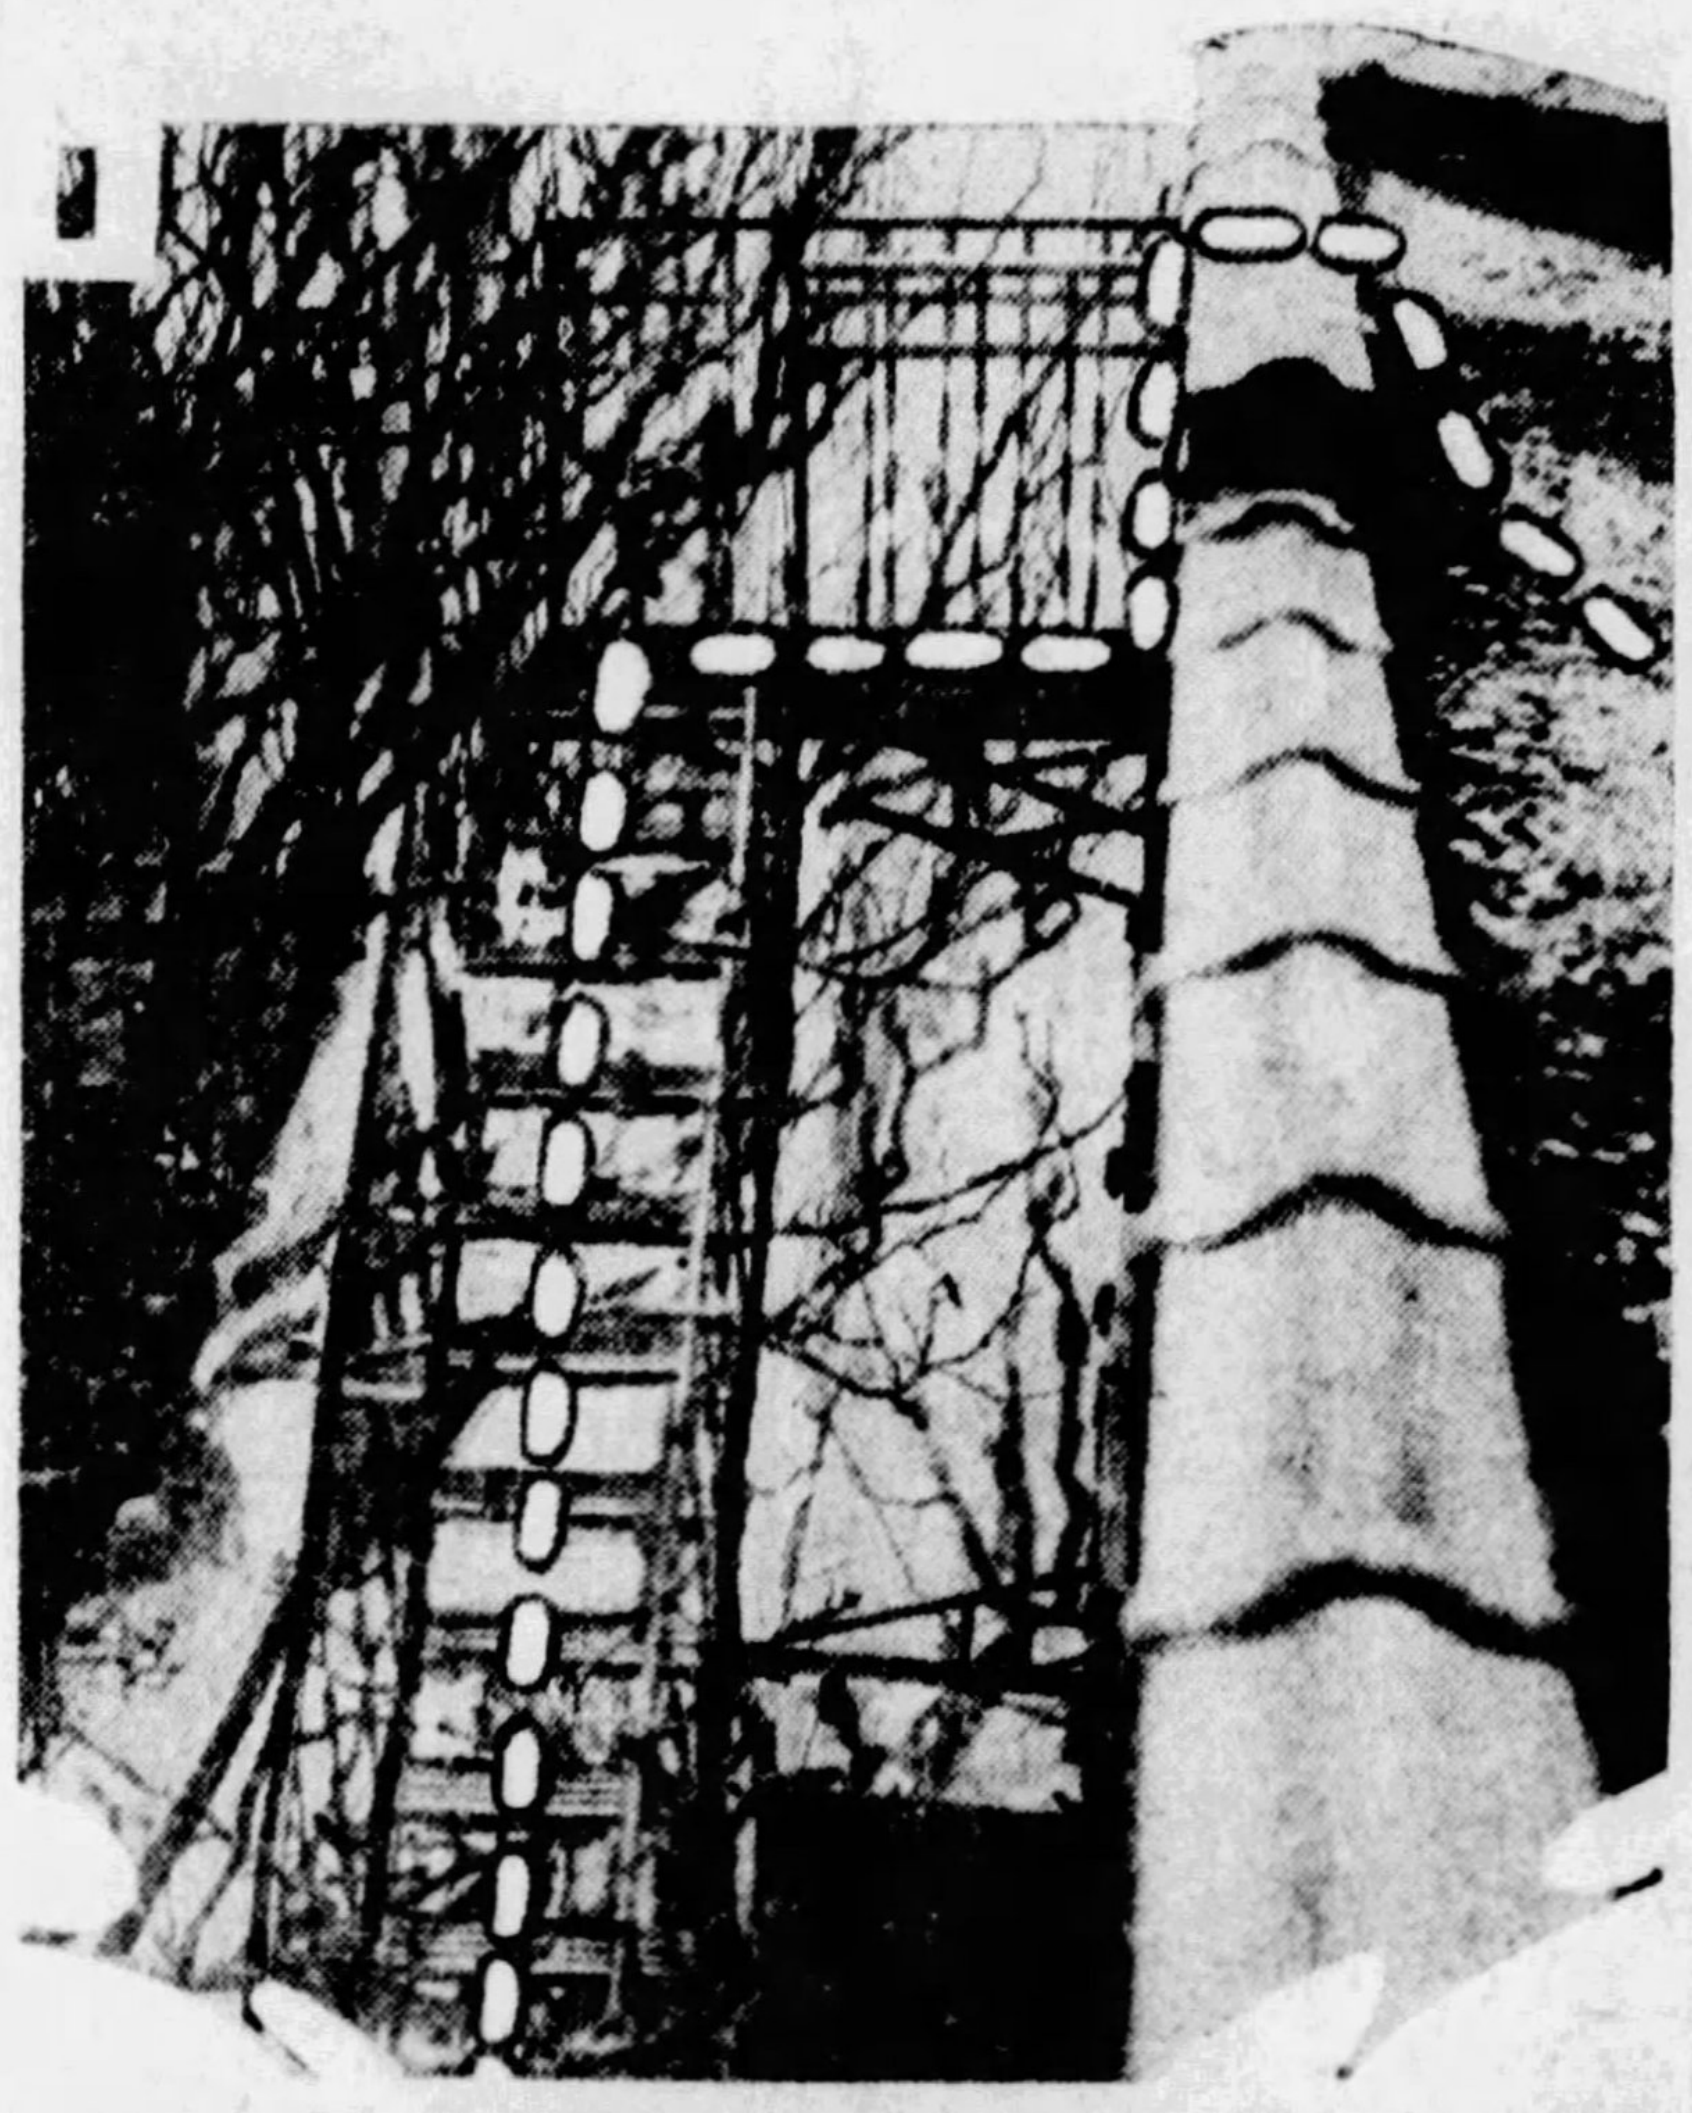
SOCIALISTS of the country discover with grief and surprise that their presidential candidate, Norman Thomas, polled only 300,000 votes, against more than 15,000,000 for Gov. Smith and 22,000,000 for Herbert Hoover.

Debs, in 1912, got nearly 900,000 votes.

HOWEVER, Socialists need not be downcast. Their candidate had a hard time, running against prosperity, 7,000,000 Coolidge plurality, the "Wet-Dry" question, etc. When people are as busy as that, they haven't time to think about Socialism.

MORE worry for the criminal. The steamship Aquitania, 600 miles at sea, received by wireless photographs from Daventry, England.

Hereafter a criminal leaving his country under an assumed name, may have his picture broadcast to every ship at sea.



HOW THIEVES REACHED ROOF

Up this fire escape to the roof of the three-story building where they hacked a hole to give them admittance went thieves who early today ransacked the fur shop of Max Azen, 1025 Fifth avenue, of furs valued by Azen between $10,000 and $15,000.

DRY LAW JAILS KLEMAN AND EX-CHAMP

A former middleweight boxing champion of the world and a prominent cabaret proprietor were sentenced to jail in Federal Court today for violating the prohibition law. They were Frank Klaus, former boxer, and John P. Kleman, of East Liberty.

Klaus was fined $200 and sentenced to two months in the county jail by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker. He had pleaded guilty to selling whisky in his saloon at 612 Braddock avenue, Braddock.

Kleman, owner of the Kleman Inn at 201 Collins avenue, was convicted this morning by a jury. This afternoon Judge Nelson McVicar consigned him to the county jail for three months.

ADMITS GUILT

Klaus was one of 18 who pleaded guilty to fracturing the anti-booze law and one of four who were given similar sentences. Judge Schoonmaker allowed the defendants until January 1 to begin sentence.

This was Klaus' second federal offense. In 1921 he was fined $500 and sentenced to five days in jail on his plea of no-defense to a charge of selling booze.

Kleman's defense was that the inn was under the management of Anton Koller, a co-defendant. Koller Monday pleaded guilty and was fined $50.

RAID PADLOCKED INN

Already under a temporary padlock injunction, the Villa Nova Inn, at Option, was raided by prohibition agents last night and liquor reported seized. Mrs. Michael Dimpil was arrested as the proprietor and a waitress, Helen Kimbal, was released on her own recognizance as a material witness.

The place had been padlocked August 21.

BANDITS LOOT PAY AUTO OF $100,000

YONKERS, N. Y., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—In a daylight holdup in the heart of this city's business section seven or eight robbers opened fire this morning on the collection car of the First National Bank, and escaped with a $100,000 payroll after wounding a bank guard named Kautter.

The payroll, part for the Smith Carpet Company, part for the National Sugar Refining Company, comes by mail to Yonkers from the federal reserve district in New York City, then goes to the First National Bank in the collection wagon. This custom was apparently known to the robbers.

Vice President Charles A. Valentine, of the First National Bank, told police that the exact amount of loot was $104,500.

The policeman, Patrick O'Keefe and the chauffeur were riding on the front seat of the collection car and Kautter was locked up inside with the money. The shooting began so abruptly that neither the policeman nor the guards had any chance to use their pistols.

Rockefeller Gives Baptists $250,000

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has donated $250,000 to the budget for the current year of the Northern Baptists convention, it was announced today at the semi-annual meeting of the national board. The budgetary requirements of the churches allied with the convention for the fiscal year ending April 30, 1928, totaled $6,455,000, according to Arthur M. Harris, of New York, president of the convention.

STOCKING BANK SAFEST FROM 'DIPS,' SAYS SLEUTH

The stocking bank for safety, is Detective Captain Frank R. Boyd's recommendation to women shoppers in the eleventh hour Christmas rush. Despite short skirts he says no purse is as safe from pickpockets as the old "First National."

In addition, Inspector Boyd announced the following "don't's" for Christmas shoppers:

"Don't display large amounts of money."

"Don't lay your purse on the counter."

"Don't carry purses dangling from the arm."

He advocates that women carry purses for small amounts of money and replenish that supply as needed from the stocking "roll."

Four men were arraigned in Central police court today in the detective drive against pickpockets.

Calvin Douglas, 27, of 1221 Webster avenue, accused of opening the purse of Mrs. William McCandless, 2141 Charles street, as she held an infant in her arms to see a window display, was sentenced to serve 90 days in the workhouse by Magistrate W. J. Soost.

Three others, Sol. Klein, Joe Greenburg and Max Goldberg, all of Chicago, who police say, are professional pickpockets, were held for further investigation.

NIGHT SESSIONS FACE SENATE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(INS.)—The Senate took up Boulder Dam unexpectedly today when Senator Warren (Rep.) of Wyoming, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, yielded priority of the treasury and postoffice appropriations bill to Senator Johnson (Rep.) of California, author of the Boulder Dam measure.

Warren served notice, however, he would attempt to call the Senate into night sessions if progress was not made on Boulder Dam.

"If progress is not made and the Senator from California does not call the Senate into night sessions, I will ask them for consideration of the appropriations bill," he said.

His remarks elicited from Senator Robinson (Dem.), of Arkansas, minority leader:

"There won't be any night sessions before the Christmas holidays."

Debate on the finance measure will be resumed during the two hours of morning business tomorrow, Warren said.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Dec. 12.—Alexander J. Porter, president of the Shredded Wheat Company, announced today that the National Biscuit Company had acquired a majority of the stock of the Shredded Wheat Company.

GARDNER PICKS LIST TO INDICT

District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner and aides today were selecting, from hundreds of pages of testimony, the names of alleged racketeers whom the graft-probing grand jury will be asked to indict.

With all the testimony heard in two months at hand, Gardner was directing the preparation of the presentment which will be given to the grand jury on Friday.

The District Attorney was to confer with President Judge James B. Drew late today to decide on plans for the prosecution. To avoid legal technicalities, such as keeping a grand jury in session beyond its ordinary life, Gardner said he might arraign the defendants before aldermen after they have been indicted by the current grand jury. Thus, they would be reindicted, Gardner feels, by the February grand jury and any possible legal battles avoided.

4 French Officers Slain by Tribesmen

COLOM-BECHAR, NORTHERN SAHARA, Morocco, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Three French military automobiles were attacked by Toureg tribesmen 40 miles south of here. Col. Clavery, Capt. Parquot, Commandant Debenne and Non-Commissioned Officer Decaux were killed. Three other non-coms were wounded, and one is missing.

FOIL PLOT TO BOMB HOOVER

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 12.—Discovery of what is believed by government officials to have been a plot to bomb the train bearing Herbert Hoover, president-elect of the United States, to the Argentine capital, today transformed the city into virtually an armed camp.

Every possible precaution was being taken to suppress Communist-Anarchist demonstrations during Hoover's visit. The Red element long has been bitter against the United States, a feeling which reached its height during the Sacco-Vanzetti case when the United States consulate here was bombed.

HEAVY GUARD PLANNED

As a result the greatest precautions ever taken here to insure the safety of a foreign visitor were under way today.

The Hoover party is due here from Mendoza, on the Argentine-Chilean frontier, tomorrow afternoon upon a special train guarded by 30 picked soldiers. They were selected from the San Martin Grenadier Guards, the crack regiment of the Argentine army.

There also were a dozen secret service agents on the special.

Troops, the pick of the Argentine army, were under orders to assume posts hours in advance of the Hoover train's arrival.

Thousands of police, secret service agents and soldiers will be on duty when the train arrives and a special bodyguard will protect Hoover when he appears in public.

Plans were made to send detectives to meet the Hoover special some miles west of Buenos Aires.

TRACKS TO BE SEARCHED

The railway tracks will be patrolled and searched as the train approaches this city.

President Irigoyen in a statement on the plot said police in searching a house in Estomba street found four hand grenades, two cylindrical bombs, one square bomb, dynamite,

King Fatally Ill, Newspaper Hints

International News Service.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—The first admission by the London press that King George's illness is probably fatal, was made by the Evening News in an editorial today. It said in part:

"What the nation had hoped was that, by the time the Prince of Wales reached London, the King would be on the road to recovery. What everyone can now fully realize is that it is a fortunate thing for the state that the Prince is now home."

GIRL STUDENT GONE, FEAR KIDNAPING

Runaway or kidnaped?

Police today are faced with the mysterious disappearance of Martha Helgerman, 508 Madison avenue, 15-year-old Latimer Junior High School pupil, who has not been seen since she left home for school at 8 o'clock yesterday morning.

MARTHA

Yesterday was Martha's birthday—it was also her first school day in two months. She had been ill—cold, mastoiditis and general indisposition, according to her mother, Mrs. Marion Helgerman.

HAD LUNCH AND DIME

When she left home yesterday, Martha was not dressed for an overnight stay away from home, nor was she prepared financially. She had only her school lunch and 10 cents. She was dressed in a blue and white school dress, light hose and soft rubber gymnasium shoes. She wore a blue hat and blue coat trimmed with a brown and gray mottled fur.

Robert Helgerman, the girl's father, told police today that his daughter was a home-loving girl and quite small for her age. He described her as being 5 feet 4 inches tall and weighing about 108 pounds. She is a blonde.

Martha always liked to be around young children, according to her parents, and it was her desire to obtain employment of this nature, but her parents felt certain that if she had been successful in obtaining employment, she would have returned home.

SURGEONS DRAIN POISON

By HARRY R. FLORY.

International News Service.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—A slight operation was performed upon King George today to drain the poisonous fluid from the right lung.

The following bulletin was issued at Buckingham Palace early in the afternoon:

"The slight improvement in the King's condition noticed this morning has been maintained. Some purulent fluid round the base of the right lung was removed by puncture this morning. Further drainage is necessary."

The bulletin was signed by Sir Stanley Hewitt, Dr. L. E. H. Whitby, Sir E. Farquhar Buzzard, Sir Humphrey Rolleston and Lord Dawson, of Penn.

The fact that the physicians were able to perform the "puncture operation" was accepted as proof that the King's general strength had improved. Previously the King was said to be too weak to permit such treatment.

AWAITED PRINCE

It was generally believed in unofficial circles that today's operation on the King was purposely postponed until after the Prince of Wales had arrived in London because of fear that the King's heart might not withstand the extra strain imposed upon it.

The King began to improve last night upon the return of the Prince of Wales to England.

Home after his dramatic 6,000-mile dash from Equatorial Africa, the Prince spent an hour and a half at Buckingham Palace again this afternoon.

The heir apparent drove from his home, York House, at noon today and went immediately to the palace. He remained there until about 1:30 and then drove back to York House.

The British public, which has been watching with tense anxiety every move around the palace, was startled by the news of the operation and seemed generally at a loss what to make of this development. There was much relief that the bulletin was accompanied by the clause that slight improvement reported in the King's condition had been maintained.

A medical authority explained to International News Service this afternoon that "the needle operation performed on King George is a highly critical one."

This authority said that the afternoon bulletin means that the "needle exploration," was unsuccessfully tried once before, but that today the poisonous fluid was found and extracted.

DELICATE OPERATION

For that reason, said the informant, the bulletin is "good news."

This informant added:

"The operation performed upon the King is a highly critical one, but the fact that it was successful now gives the physicians' information needed for further treatment. This operation probably will be repeated as soon as possible."

"The operation was performed with a needle fitted with a large ring or suction apparatus on one end," International News Service's informant continued. "The operation consists of a puncture

CITY SHROUDED IN FOG, AUTO HITS PEDESTRIAN

The thick blanket of fog that enveloped Pittsburgh and vicinity today slowed down traffic and was responsible for at least one accident. Christmas shoppers groped their way through downtown streets and merchants kept display windows lighted.

Charles Lucot, 40, of 8 Horner street, city employe, was found unconscious in Penn avenue, near Barbeau street, where he had been struck by an auto. There was no witness to the accident, which is believed due to fog.

Today's murk was a mixture of smoke and fog held close to earth by a heavy air pressure, according to the weather bureau. An absence of wind prevented dissipation. It was almost noon before the sun was seen briefly, disappearing again.

Rain, late today, it was expected by Local Forecaster W. S. Brotzman, would dispel the fog and clear the atmosphere.

between the ribs to reach the lining of the chest wall.

"It is customary for this operation to be performed by the removal of a section of the rib, under a general anaesthetic, but in cases of very severe illness a local anaesthetic is used and the rib section is not removed.

"In the King's case it is certain that a local anesthetic was used, and the rib was not removed."

A seventh doctor was called in to assist in treating the King this afternoon. He is Sir Hugh Rigby, one of the most noted surgeons in England. He was summoned to the palace for the first time at 5 o'clock. Sir Hugh was formerly surgeon to the King's household. He took part in a consultation held at Buckingham palace late in the afternoon.

HOPE NOT ABANDONED

Although His Majesty's condition continues grave, hope has not been abandoned.

The King's physicians at 10:30 a.m. today, before the operation, issued this bulletin:

"The King had some hours of sleep. The slight improvement noted late last night is maintained, the temperature being somewhat lower and the general condition a little better."

While some quarters assumed that the Prince of Wales would not have rushed to Buckingham Palace immediately on his return last night if the end of the King had not been near, it was insisted at the palace that such a meeting would not have been allowed had physicians attending the King regarded the excitement which would attend it as likely to have an effect immediately dangerous.

When the Prince first arrived at the palace it was announced that he was not allowed to see his father. Later it was stated however that he did see the King but the visit was not prolonged for fear of tiring the patient. These contradictory statements were explained unofficially today by the announcement that the King was sleeping when his son and heir arrived but he awoke before the Prince left the palace and as his condition showed some improvement it was decided that the visit might be permitted without risk.

In view of the prolonged strain to which the King's constitution has been subjected, it was generally felt today that serious developments might occur at any hour. The evening bulletin on his condition stated that there was no increase in his exhaustion and that his pulse was steady.

It was stated semi-officially that the King was making a magnificent struggle against his illness, although deep anxiety persisted at the palace. The fact that His Majesty passed a quiet day enabled his constitution to continue the fight against the general infection.

BALDWIN MEETS PRINCE

The Prince of Wales was met on his landing to English soil at Folkestone by Premier Baldwin and the Duke of York met them at Victoria Station when they arrived on the boat train. The Prince looked well after his hunting trip but his face showed strain from his anxiety and the marks from his forced journey by land and sea.

When the Prince clasped hands with his brother at the station he listened with the most acute concern to the message which the Duke brought of the state of their father. Strong relief showed on the face of the Duke. He alone of the four sons had been present to aid and comfort his mother and the royal household during the time of this great and continuing trial.

The Princes dashed from the station and entered the palace by the garden entrance which is a private way used exclusively by members of the royal family. There was no official greetings, since Sir Derk Keppel, master of the household, and other officials were waiting at the privy purse door and the Prince avoided them by entering the other doorway.

At the palace the Prince was shown in to the apartments of the Queen and he and his mother were left alone together to give reciprocal comfort under the still menacing shadow of the illness. The Prince also conferred with the physicians that have been attending his father. Shortly before midnight he left the palace with the Duke of York, accompanying his brother to his home in Piccadilly, and then the Prince went to his own residence at York House.

QUEEN A TMEMORIAL

Despite anxiety over the illness of her royal husband, Queen Mary motored from Buckingham P lace into the city and unveiled a war memorial—one to members of mercantile and fishing fleets lost at sea in the World War.

It marked the first time the Queen's voice has been heard on the radio. Thousands of spectators gathered to join the Queen in paying tribute to the marine heroes and to express their appreciation of her fortitude in going through with the engagement.

In unveiling the monument the Queen said:

"To the glory of God, and in honor of these brave men, I unveil this memorial on behalf of those for whom they died."

BOLIVIANS RETURN TO PARLEY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(INS.)—Bolivia decided to re-enter the Pan-American Conference on Conciliation today, although she wold make no commitments about settling her dispute with Paraguay on a peaceful basis.

Word of Bolivia's willingness to again participate in the conference here was communicated to Secretary of State Kellogg today by the Bolivian minister, Senor Diez De Medina, who, yesterday, withdrew from participation upon orders from his government at La Paz. He received new instructions this morning.

Bolivia's change of mind was considered due to the insistence of the United States and other powerful governments represented in the conference.

While the republic's re-entrance to the conference did not carry any committment, the action was looked upon by other delegates to the conference as favorable to the ultimate settlement of the Bolivian-Paraguayan boundary dispute by peaceable means.

Efforts to this end have been unceasing here since the conference convened on Monday.

100,000 SQUARE MILES

The spark in the present quarrel between the two countries was a clash between Paraguayan and Bolivian troops last week, but the powder mine already laid was a long-standing dispute over a tract called Chaco Boreal. It contains 100,000 square miles. Above ground is a jungle filled with virgin timber. Underneath is oil.

But news from Bolivia indicated that strong feeling over the country has been aroused and there were reports that part of the army had mobilized.

A former president, Eliodora Villazon, is said to have expressed the opinion that war was inevitable.

$23,000 SAVED ON CITY COAL

The opening of bills for coal for pumping stations enabled Council today to cut $23,000 from estimates of that expense for 1929 in addition to $43,000 slashed at Tuesday's meeting of the budget committee.

B. L. Succop, director of supplies, reported that the Valley Camp Coal Company, lowest of 12 bidders, offered to furnish coal to all but one of the pumping stations for $2 a ton. The price paid this year was $2.52.

The exception was the Mission Street Pumping Station for which the South Hills Coal Company submitted a low bid of $2.30. The price paid this year was $2.19.

Thomas C. McMahon, chief property assessor, reported an increase of $23,000,000 in the assessed valuation on buildings with none on land. That increase would provide about $250,000 additional tax revenue in 1929 on the basis of the current levy.

Total assessments for 1929 are: Land, $573,850,000; buildings, $558,150,000.

revolvers, automatic pistols, quantities of ammunition and 150 10-peso notes.

The police announced that a room in the raided house contained a detailed map of the railway system. Police believe the plotters intended to place the bomb on the tracks on the outskirts of the city just before the arrival of the Hoover special train.

TWO ARRESTED

Police in raiding the house arrested a youth who said he was Carlos Gutierez, 18. Authorities said, however, his real name is Alejandro Romano and that he was 21, but posed as younger in hope of obtaining leniency under the minors law. They described him as a student of chemistry and declared he manufactured the bombs.

Later a second man was arrested near the house. He gave the name of Jaime Oliver, but, police said, he is Jaime Castro, a chauffeur.

Police said both are known to have Communist-Anarchist associations.

Although only two men were officially announced to have been arrested it was generally known today that the police had been active for a week in picking up suspects.

STRIKE AT DEMONSTRATIONS

These suspects will be confined until after the departure of Hoover. The authorities not only are determined to prevent any plots against Hoover but to prevent any public demonstrations against the United States.

MEN OF WEALTH SOUGHT IN ROTHSTEIN DRUG PROBE

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(INS.)—The trail of the international drug ring believed to have been financed by Arnold Rothstein led today to three New York millionaires, suspected by federal authorities of having been connected with the slain gambler in his dope traffic.

United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle, whose activity in the campaign against the narcotic octopus has resulted in the apprehension of two men and two women, revealed that his assistants are attempting to track down the three millionaires. Their names are known by Tuttle, but were not revealed.

Federal authorities revealed yesterday that 20 large "dope" syndicates with a "pool agreement" for territorial rights, defense funds and financial backing were operating in this country with Rothstein as the money provider. It is believed that the three men sought were associated with the master gambler in this venture.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(INS.)—Disclosures of a vast international "dope" smuggling scheme in the Rothstein murder investigation in New York has spread alarm in Congress, with the result today that definite movements were put under way to check the drug evil in the nation.

Representative Stephen G. Porter, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, indicated he was preparing to seek congressional action to halt violations of The Hague opium treaty by European nations.

Lewis was re-elected international president of the United Mine Workers of America by the unanimous vote of the membership at the biennial election held yesterday in all of the 4,000 local unions scattered throughout the United States and Canada. He was unopposed.

Philip Murray, of Pittsburgh, was re-elected international vice president and Thomas Kennedy, of Hazleton, Pa., was re-elected international secretary-treasurer, also without opposition.

MERIT PLANS RAPPED AT MEETING

Teachers in the elementary grades, as well as the junior and senior high school groups, are dissatisfied with the proposed salary schedule recently recommended by the Citizens' Committee on Teachers' Salaries in Pittsburgh, it was revealed at a meeting of the Pittsburgh Teachers' Association last night in the Smithfield Street Methodist Episcopal Church.

More than 1,000 teachers attended the meeting, at which resolutions were drawn up for presentation to the Board of Education before the board's monthly meeting next Tuesday.

The text of the resolutions was not made public; neither was any official announcement of their contents forthcoming from officers of the teachers' association, but it was generally understood that the resolutions expressed the collective opinions of Pittsburgh public school teachers.

OPPOSE MERIT SYSTEM

The merit system and its 45 per cent limitation upon those eligible for higher salaries on the so-called superior teaching levels, has met with disfavor among the teachers, it is said, because it limits the average teacher's advancement and places serious obstacles in the path of his climb towards salary advancement. When discussion at last night's meeting brought out the objections of the elementary group on the same grounds, while heretofore the only objection along this line has come from the high school teachers.

Another objection voiced by the elementary group condemned the proposed increase of $200 a year for teachers in the grade schools. A more substantial increase is sought.

Miss Maud Walker, president of the Teachers' Association, and other officers of the organization refused to comment on the meeting, declaring they were not ready to discuss thir problems publicly at this time.

"Our association adopted resolutions last night and they will be made public within the next few days. We do not feel that the resolutions should be given to the public before they go to the board of education," she said.

HOLIDAY LIQUOR HERE BRANDED "EXTRA POOR"

Christmas liquor, being "imported" for the coming holidays, at best will leave an extra "dark brown taste," in the opinion of government prohibition agents who have already confiscated large quantities.

The quality generally, according to laboratory specialists of the government, is poorer than last year. Also, it's more harmful.

A. G. Blakeley, government chemist, who tests "wet" goods seized by agents under Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington, was caught by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph cameraman in the laboratory of the prohibition department in the Plaza Building while making an analysis of recent seizures of liquors prepared for the "holiday trade." On some of the bottles he was pasting "poison" labels.

"It smells terribly, and I don't understand how people can drink it," was the chemist's comment when asked how the quality is holding out. "Less than 2 per cent of all the whisky seized is genuine, despite the attractive labels purporting to be well known and popular brands," he said.

Mr. Blakeley said that the tests made show some of the liquor to be rank poison that would be injurious to the health of the drinker, especially that made from denatured alcohol. The most of it, he said, was either "cut" liquors or moonshine made under unsanitary conditions and sometimes colored with caramel or other coloring. He declared that the wines were not much better, most of it having been made by inexperienced persons, who let plenty of filth get into it.

Mr. Blakeley, former chemist for Schuylkill county, who since has worked in the South and other sections of the country, declared the variety of the contraband liquors in the Pittsburgh district to be the poorest he has ever been called upon to analyze.

"Poison," Says Federal Chemist After Testing Pittsburgh's Christmas Liquor Supply

"LABELING" CHRISTMAS LIQUOR

A. G. Blakeley, prohibition department chemist in Pittsburgh, finds the Christmas liquors confiscated by the government to be poison.

POPULAR BRANDS OF LIQUOR—BUT BEWARE!

"Less than two percent of all liquors seized by the government is genuine," warns Chemist Blakeley, despite the attractive labels which assert them to be various popular brands.

HUNTING FEVER SUBSIDES AS DEER SEASON NEARS END

READY FOR DAY'S HUNT

"Y' gotta get up!" That is, if you hope to get deer in the mountains back of Ligonier where Pittsburgh hunters flock during hunting season. J. E. Withrow is ready to "crown" Dr. J. W. Updegraff at the McGinnis Rod and Gun Club camp.

ON GAME'S TRAIL IN SNOW

Deer, bear and small game abound on the hilly slopes near "the Summit." Hunting parties usually start out just above the game refuge in Forbes forest where snow is usually found even though spring weather prevails in the valleys below.

ASSIGNED TO KITCHEN POLICE

Back in camp at the end of the day there are certain duties for everyone. The kitchen crew at the McGinnis camp enjoys this part of the excursion into the woods just as much as the hunting. Here are H. M. McDowell at the stove; F. O. Fowler at the pump and V. R. Griffith with the 'spuds.'

HUNTING RANKS DWINDLE IN FINAL DAYS

By AL GOUGH.
Staff Correspondent.

FORBES FOREST, Westmoreland County, Pa., Dec. 12.—With the closing days of deer season at hand, fever of the chase has subsided—until but a handful of hapless nimrods remain in the state forest preserves here this week. They are the boys who still have hopes of getting their doe before Saturday's darkness cloaks the timid deer in a mantle of protection for another year.

Pittsburgh sportsmen who flock to this mountain paradise annually generally agree that the game commission's ruling throwing the state open to does will have a good effect on the state's deer herd. Something had to be done to balance the sexes, they agree almost unanimously.

DIVIDED ON RESTRICTION

Limitation of the number of hunters in the field which met with considerable adverse criticism at the beginning of the season has also found favor in the eyes of those who were fortunate enough to obtain licenses this year. Many would like to see the plan continued and if there are more hunters than can be licensed, it is pointed out, a system of registration could be put into force and each sportsman given his license in turn.

The mountins have been ringing with thrilling tales of the hunt since the first day of the season. To the game refuge where W. W. Stewart, Joseph P. Kennedy, Will Shaffer and their fellow game wardens have set up headquarters the hunters have beaten a path.

One man brought in a wild cat—another a bear! Some have seen bucks with antlers any sportsman would give anything to own.

Taken all in all, however, the hunters who frequent these mountains are dyed in the wool sportsmen. There is, for instance, a camp of "old cronies" who have hunted together these past 25 years. They call themselves the McGinnis Rod and Gun Club and most of its members hail from Ligonier, Latrobe and other small towns of Westmoreland and Fayette counties.

They are a jolly lot and take great delight in hunting and fishing. They have one of the finest and most substantial lodges in the mountains and boast that one of the first qualifications to membership is true sportsmanship.

These boys—touched lightly by the years that hang over their heads—are typical of the mountains where happiness has no bounds.

M'Keesport Schools Ask Cheaper Permits

The McKeesport Board of Education believes the cost of school district building permits is too high and members will ask city council to alter the ordinance providing for an assessment of a $2 tax on every $1,000 worth of work done. It is proposed to cut the cost in half.

Council recently handed the school board a bill for $375, the cost of a building permit for a school in Sumac street. The contractor refused to pay it, saying he had not placed the permit cost in the figures of his bid.

KIDNAP VICTIM THREATENED

Recently released from a hospital, where he was confined more than three months as a result of a beating administered by kidnapers, Bert Obeirne, of 199 Whitaker street, Whitaker Borough, former social worker in Homestead, today was being guarded by police, following receipt of a threatening letter last night.

The penciled note, "I'll get you yet," was turned over to County Detective Michael McDermott last night. It bore the signature "The Bum." Obeirne was unable to explain the threat and said he knew of no one who might wish him harm. Borough police and county sleuths are at a loss to explain the letter.

Obeirne was offered a ride home last August 29 while waiting for a street car at Munhall junction by a woman and two men who passed in an automobile. After entering the machine he was beaten with a blackjack, robbed and thrown from the car.

Blaze Interrupts Mourners at Wake

Fire interrupted a wake at the home of Police Lieutenant John A. Jones, 220 North Graham street. A groceryman, while passing the house, discovered the fire, which originated in the attic from an undetermined cause.

Lieut. Jones, his wife and their seven children were among the large number of mourners in the room on the first floor of the house when the fire, which was confined to the attic, broke out. Damage was estimated at $500.

The wake was being held over the body of Mrs. Kathryn Ryan, 67, an aunt of Mrs. Jones. Funeral services will be held tomorrow.

BRIDGE DEFICIT HEARING SET BY COUNCIL

Council today will grant a hearing to creditors of J. T. Nealon, contractor for the erection of California avenue bridge, who are seeking payment for material furnished for the project.

Nealon took the job for $65,000, with the next lowest bidder submitting a price of $85,000. Nealon claimed he was compelled to do considerable extra work and his request for final payment would have run the cost of the structure to more than $100,000.

City engineers objected to the claim, but after meetings between Edward G. Lang, director of the Department of Public Works, and Charles A. Waldschmidt, a compromise payment of $96,000 was agreed upon, with engineers still inclined to give the contractor $105,000.

Council vainly tried to solve the problem yesterday and finally asked the city officials interested in the controversy to confer with the view of making an agreeable recommendation at today's meeting.

STOGIE FRAUDS PUNISHED

A fine of $600 and a 20-day jail sentence was imposed Tuesday by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker upon Louis Serbin, a New Kensington storekeeper, for defrauding the government of internal revenue tax by placing inferior brands of stogies in boxes that had contained well-known brands.

In pleading guilty to the charge of violating the internal revenue law, Serbin admitted defrauding the government of taxes on the substitutions. On each of the six counts of the indictment to which he pleaded he was fined $100 and sentenced to serve 20 days in jail, the terms to run concurrently.

One of the counts of the indictment charged Serbin with having 60 boxes, with cancelled stamps, December 5, 1927, filled with stogies on which no tax had been paid. In the prosecution of the case the government was represented by Assistant United States Attorney Raymond D. Evans.

CAR FRANCHISE FORFEITURE DISCUSSED

Revocation of the franchise of the Pittsburgh Railways Company may be sought by the Allied Boards of Trade, it was learned today, on the ground that the company has forfeited, by inadequacy of its service, the right to operate cars in the streets of Pittsburgh.

The suggestion was made by President W. George Negley, of the Oakland Board of Trade, at the annual meeting of members. While no formal action was taken on the proposal, Charles I. Westerfield, secretary of the Oakland body, said today it probably would be referred to the Allied Boards. Negley is a director of the Allied organization, and A. H. Clarke, first vice president of the Oakland board, is a member of the Allied committee that is considering ways of improving the street car situation.

REFUSE BETTER SERVICE

Negley proposed steps to take away the railways company's charter after numerous speakers had told of the refusal of the company to improve transportation conditions in Oakland.

The matter came up in the course of a general discussion of the removal of lines Nos. 71 and 73 by the company from Forbes street to Fifth avenue, leaving Forbes street without direct service to East Liberty. Indignation was voiced over the change, which it was said made it inconvenient for Oakland residents, especially those in the neighborhood of the junction of Craig and Forbes streets, to go to and from East Liberty.

Another grievance in Oakland is the recent curtailment of the Atwood street service.

AIR CONQUEST REVIEWED BY COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—The progress of man's efforts to conquer the air, going back to the fourth century before Christ, was outlined by President Coolidge today in an address before the International Civil Aeronautics Conference.

Mr. Coolidge drew a picture of flying, especially of heavier-than-air flying in the present day, which showed the great strides of this new industry since the Wright brothers rose from the sand dunes at Kitty Hawk, N. C., 25 years ago in the first sustained flight in a machine driven airplane.

He pointed out that in 1926 the value of the aeronautic industry in the United States was $5,000,000, and that it now is $150,000,000. Regular flying in this country, beginning with a short air mail line, he said, has increased to 15,500 miles, and plans were under way to extend international lines to the Isthmus and South America.

FORECASTS FUTURE

"All nations are looking forward to the day of extensive, regular and reasonably safe intercontinental and interoceanic transportation by airplane and airship," he said. "What the future holds out even the imagination may be inadequate to grasp. We may be sure, however, that the perfection and extension of air transport throughout the world will be of the utmost significance to civilization. While the primary aim of this industry is and will be commercial and economic, and the prosperity of the world will be immeasurably advanced by it, indirectly, but no less surely, will the nations be drawn more closely together in bonds of amity and understanding."

Mr. Coolidge devoted a large portion of his address to a review of the history of aeronautics in which he praised the achievements of the Wright brothers.

"Others, whose names will long be remembered, had done much to solve the problem," he said, "but it remained for the able, persistent and modest brothers from Dayton to demonstrate completely the possibility of a machine raising itself by its own power and carrying a man in sustained flight."

NOTABLES ATTEND

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who became a glamorous figure after his flight to Paris in May, 1927, came to Washington yesterday. Amelia Earhart, Capt. Emory S. Land, Lady Mary Heath, British aviatrix; Lieut. Lester Maitland, Clarence D. Chamberlin, Arthur G. Goebel, Lieut. A. F. Hegenberger and others who have become famous through skill, daring, or both, were present, or expected before sessions conclude Saturday. Among the foreign representatives was Otto Merkel, director of Lufthansa, German aviation organization, who was expected to take an active part in conference discussions.

The concluding event of the conference will be a pilgrimage to Kitty Hawk, where the cornerstone of a monument to be erected by the government near the site of the first successful flight by the Wright brothers, will be laid.

They live in Waynesburg road, near the Fearn home, and on one of her six bus trips rode with the young gunwoman who shot Fearn down in the doorway of his home. Three of them are Miss Hazel English, who supplies the best description from her observations when she sat beside the "mystery woman," Miss Mary English and Mrs. Gladys Yoho, all of whom describe the girl in the bus.

WEST ON GRILL OVER CABINET POSITION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(INS.)—The "case" against Secretary of the Interior Roy O. West, based on his intimate relations with Samuel Insull, multi-millionaire utility magnate, was placed in the record today at the first session of the Senate public land committee's inquiry into his fitness to serve in the cabinet.

A series of statements, made by West in 1926 before the Reed slush fund committee, formed the "case." In that testimony West told of accepting a $10,000 contribution from Insull to use in the Illinois Republican primary of 1926, of making numerous investments in Insull companies; of conferring with the utility magnate on political matters and of serving as attorney for his companies since 1897.

Insurgent leaders planned to use these admissions to block West's confirmation by the Senate. They have contended his relations with Insull make West undesirable as Secretary of the Interior.

FEDERAL JURY ASKS RAISE IN PAY

"We want more money!"

That was the plea of 125 Federal jurors of western Pennsylvania, who organized a movement in Federal Court today to petition Congress for a raise from $4 to $6 per day.

A committee was authorized to draw up a resolution embodying the requests and submit it to Senator David A. Reed and the congressmen from Western Pennsylvania.

The jurors argue that the $4 they receive each day for living expenses is inadequate, that they work without other salary and often make great sacrifices to serve.

The 125 petitioners are petit jurors, sworn in Monday. A spokesman explained that Congress is not expected to act soon enough to benefit the present panel but that favorable action would benefit future jurors.

Named on the resolutions committee were Daniel T. Burns, Sharon; L. G. Runk, Altoona; Milton C. Vaughn, New Castle; Edward Mills, Central City, and James Wilson, Erie.

Three years ago Congress recognized the demands of federal jurors by increasing daily expense money from $3 to the present figure.

4 GAS STATIONS ROBBED; GANG LOCKS UP 8

Three young women and five men were held prisoners in the cellar of the Gulf gasoline service station, Bigelow boulevard and the Bloomfield Bridge, early today by three armed Negro bandits and escaped in the victims' automobile.

KRELL

The same bandits, after stealing the machine, fled to the Boulevard of the Allies, where two more service stations were held up. More than $125 in cash was obtained in the first holdup along with several pieces of jewelry and a Spanish shawl valued at $200. The bandit victims are:

Jacqueline Silvius, of 429 Moore avenue, Carrick; Unice Farrell, 34 Khala avenue, Ingram; Alice LeVake, 2800 Spring street, Mt. Oliver; Kenneth McGowan, 410 Overbrook road; Matthew Nussbaum, 445 Olivet street, Overbrook; Lee Watkins, 410 Olivet street, and Matthew Krell, 409 Olivet street, owner of the machine.

HERDED INTO STATION

Returning from a dance, the party stopped for gasoline. The three Negroes, all armed, approached and ordered the party out of the car and inside the service station, along with Louis Nicholson, of 254 Bellefield avenue, manager of the station. A valuable diamond ring and the Spanish shawl were torn from Miss Silvius and both Nussbaum and Nicholson lost their watches. Others lost all of their cash, and $17 was stolen from the cash register in the station.

M'GOWAN

The girls and the five men then were marshaled into the small dark cellar and the door of the station was locked. It was not until a half hour later that one of the men managed to attract the attention of a motorist who had stopped for gasoline.

The other stations robbed were those of the Gulf Company at Jumonville street and the Boulevard of the Allies and of the American Motor Oil Company at 3021 Boulevard of the Allies. Krell's machine, stolen in the first robbery, was used in each of the other holdups, police say.

NUSSBAUM

William Kilcey, of 4602 Howley street, was in carge of the American Motor Oils Company station. The three Negroes took $15 from the cash register. Kilcey obtained the license number of the machine and gave it to police.

At the second Gulf station C. L. Long, of 621 Bellefonte street, manager, was robbed of 85 cents and the robbers got $30 from the cash register. Police were unable to pick up the trail of the bandits, but broadcast the license number of the stolen automobile.

VICTIM BEATEN

Two armed men drove up to Benjamin Gibson's filling station, Neville Island, today, forced Gibson into the office, and after beating him on the head, robbed the place of all cash. No estimate of the loot was obtained. The robbers fled in their auto. Gibson was taken to Sewickley Valley Hospital. Chief of Police Warren Burke, of Neville township, notified county detectives and began trailing the thieves.

Suspect "Kidded" About Dying Confesses

CHICAGO, Dec. 12. — (AP.) — Donald Brown, Negro, questioned concerning the slaying at Pontiac, Mich., of two women, persisted he was innocent.

"Say, boy, you look pretty sick to me," one officer said. "Let me feel your pulse?" He counted 140 beats to the minute. Brown showed signs of terror.

"You're pretty sick," the officer declared, shaking his head sympathetically. "Don't you want to make a dying statement, before it's too late?" Brown confessed.

Taxes in Franklin Not to Be Raised

FRANKLIN, Pa., Dec. 12.—City Council, with a preliminary budget estimate of $108,000, indicated that taxes would not be increased for next year. The millage at present is 14. City finances are in good condition, City Clerk Crawford reported, showing $19,754 with which to finish the fiscal year.

COUNCIL TO ACT ON GARBAGE FEE SAVING

Council has invited George P. Kountz, president of the Allied Boards of Trade, who claims he can effect a saving of $1,000,000 a year in the disposal of garbage and rubbish, to appear at a hearing at 2 p. m. Friday in Council chamber.

Estimates for next year's garbage and rubbish costs, now before Council, total $1,700,000, and Kountz, in a letter forwarded Monday, stated, "It is a fact and can be demonstrated that any sum spent in 1929 in excess of $750,000 is willful waste of taxpayers' money."

Kountz proposes, among other things, to obtain real competitive bidding from constractors interested in the work by fixing the term of the contract at five or 10 years instead of one year, as the present system provides. He also proposes taking bids for the entire city instead of for two separate sections.

Daniel Winters recalled the city's attempts to reduce the costs of garbage and rubbish disposal and pointed particularly to an exhaustive survey of the problem made by Morris Knowles, Pittsburgh engineer, during the term of Mayor William A. Magee.

Mt. Pleasant Man Hikes 2,000 Miles To See John D.

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Dec. 12.—(INS.)—A tired little man with steel gray hair, drawn face and small mustache will reach Ormond Beach tonight after hiking over 2,000 miles from Mount Pleasant, Pa., to visit John D. Rockefeller. He is John R. Walker, 87. Walker's visit to the capitalist is no mere visit of curiosity. He knows the world's richest man personally. In fact, he used to drive him to his office in Cleveland every morning over 50 years ago.

"If you ever need help and know where I am, don't fail to call on me," Walker said Rockefeller told him 64 years ago just before the capitalist married.

BARBER TIED, ROBBED

Two young men walked into George Stameff's barber shop at 603 McClure street, Homestead, today and asked for work.

"Nothing doing," Stameff, 38, told them. "Business is only fair."

The men loitered in the shop for five minutes. Then two others walked in and leveled revolvers at Stameff. The four gagged and bound him and locked him in a rear room. From his pockets and the cash register they got $30.

Ten minutes later Martin Wilhelm, 20, of Homestead Park, entered the shop, heard Stameff's groans and released him.

ROOFED STREET TRAFFIC IDEA ADVANCED

J. H. O'Donnell, of 618 Clyde street, has a plan to relieve downtown traffic congestion, proposing that all the streets in the Golden Triangle be roofed and the roofs reserved exclusively for passenger vehicles.

The scheme, made public today, contemplates "a complete second-story street system, of bridge-work construction, from building to building, including sidewalks, with store fronts and entrances, so that a person might travel over this entire system of second floor streets without being conscious of the fact that another street system existed below."

"This," says Mr. O'Donnell, "would provide an increas of 100 per cent in traffic arteries and 100 per cent increase in street floor store rooms and window display. Each property would have two street level store rooms where one exists now."

$30,000,000 PROJECT

The cost of the project he estimates at $30,000,000. Saving of the losses from traffic delays, which he figures at $6,000,000 a year, would return the expenditure in five years, he says. Furthermore, the project would increase real estate values, he declares, and justify larger tax returns.

Mr. O'Donnell's plan was brought to the attention of Winters Haydock, directing engineer of the Department of City Transit. He complimented Mr. O'Donnell, saying he was "entitled to credit for offering a constructive suggestion."

"I don't see how we could carry out Mr. O'Donnell's plan now," was his comment on the feasibility of it. The architectural difficulties would be great, especially in the case of some of our fine buildings.

THEORY HELD SOUND

'With the present streets and sidewalks completely roofed over, they would be shut off from daylight, and ventilation would be poor. The fumes from motor exhausts would not be pleasant, and I am not certain that ventilation provided by fans would be satisfactory.

"If the streets were wide enough openings could be provided in the middle to admit light and air. But I am afraid our streets are too narrow for that.

"It is a question, too, if they are wide enough for ramps by which one could pass between the upper and lower levels.

"However, I don't want to take snap judgment on Mr. O'Donnell's plan. I agree with a great deal that he says. His theory is sound. I won't say that the scheme is impractical, but I would like to know how he intends to get around some of the obstacles that seem of great importance to me."

TALKING MOVIE USED TO SPUR AUTO SALES

The talking motion picture was utilized here yesterday for the first time other than as an entertainment medium when it was used by the three Graham brothers of the Graham-Paige Motors Corporation to invite the sales organization of the Pittsburgh district to attend a national dealer meeting in Detroit January 3 and 4. The invitation-meeting was held in Webster Hall.

The debut of the "talkies" into the business life of this city presented Robert C., Joseph B. and Ray A. Graham. Robert C. Graham, in his address, told of the rising for and the growth of the Graham-Paige organization overseas.

Ray A. Graham speaking of the Graham-Paige Legion, said:

"Twenty-five years of our sphere of accomplishments has been working with you fellows. We have carried out the principles of the legion, 'honesty and integrity,' in all our various models."

Joseph B. Graham, in his talk, said:

"The fact that we have more than doubled the production schedule adopted a year ago is evidence that the factory has worked at its maximum power to keep in step with the most amazing progress that has been made by the sales and dealer organizations. Arrangements are now being made to step-up production to more than 750 cars a day."

The meeting was presided over by E. S. Carpenter, president of E. S. Carpenter, Inc., Graham-Paige distributor, who introduced these speakers: W. E. Hedman, assistant sales manager; W. C. Fagey, district manager, and James A. Cain, general wholesale manager of E. S. Carpenter, Inc.

They brought a message from the factory, of many additions to the factory, body plant, production lines and parts and service departments and the employment of thousands of more men in the endeavor to meet the growing demand for Graham-Paige products. They said that a production shedule of 125,000 cars had been adopted for 1929 in comparison to the production of 75,000 cars for this year. To match this growth, the addition of 40 dealerships weekly to the sales organization was reported.

Weather Conditions.

High pressure continues over the East, moving slowly northward and increasing in pressure. Highest barometer this morning is 30.52, at Elkins, W. Va.

The western low pressure areas moved eastward slowly, gradually diminishing in intensity. The principal center is now over New Mexico, and a trough extends northward to another center over Manitoba. The low barometer is producing cloudy weather nearly everywhere west of the Appalachian Mountains, and rain in the southern plains, the Mississippi and the lower Ohio valleys. Another marked low pressure area appears in the far Northwest.

The temperature changes were generally towards warmer.

River Conditions.

The rivers are stationary or falling slightly. Stage at Pittsburgh, 11.3 feet, Dam No. 2 8.2 and Dam No. 6, 7.9. The dams are up.

RIDGWAY, Pa., Dec. 12.—The annual banquet of Elk lodge, No. 379, F. and A. M., was held last night with 162 Masons present, including visitors from Brockway, St. Marys, Johnsonburg and Kane.

GARDNER ASKS BUDGET AID FOR OFFICE

Increased work in his office will make it necessary for him to ask the Legislature for three additional assistants and one additional clerk, District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner informed the County Commissioners at the budget session today.

He requested an appropriation of $16,530 for the new employes he hopes to get when the Legislature convenes in Harrisburg next month. The increase was held up for action by the salary board, as were all other requests for salary and wage increases. In the $18,771,152 budget asked by department and bureau heads, salary increases total nearly $150,000.

The commissioners made a net cut of $7,680 at this morning's session, bringing the reduction to date to $25,500. The request of Coroner W. J. McGregor for $3,025 for a new morgue ambulance was granted. The session developed that liquor licenses still are granted here, Clerk of Courts S. J. Topley being granted $150 to advertise such applications. He explained that three Allegheny county concerns are authorized to sell liquor to hospitals and other legal purchasers.

Rum Convict Shy Of Jail Where Uncle Works

When Thomas Boyle, convicted of violating the prohibition law, was sentenced to serve eight months in the Cambria county jail in Federal Court today, he asked Judge Nelson McVicar to send him to another jail.

"My wife's uncle," Boyle explained "is warden of the Cambria jail."

The court agreed. Boyle will go to Somerset jail. Boyle's father, William Boyle, was sentenced to eight months in the Cambria jail and John B. Shardt goes to Somerset jail for four months.

COURT-CORRUPTION QUERY ENLIVENS ATTACK TRIAL

"Did you ever say you had enough money to fix any judge or jury?"

The question created amazement in Common Pleas Court today when put to former Police Magistrate Isaac Weinstein.

Weinstein, on the witness stand to deny charges made against him by Mrs. Mamie E. Kamons, of 5537 Bartlett street, was being cross-examined by C. J. Tannehill, attorney for the woman.

"The question is unfair," said Judge Richard W. Martin. "It should have been asked when the plaintiff's side was being heard. It is certainly improper to ask it now unless testimony is to be forthcoming in support of the implication."

Tannehill said he would produce such testimony.

Weinstein vehemently denied he had boasted of his ability to corrupt the courts. Mrs. Kamons was recalled to the stand, and contradicted him.

Mrs. Kamons and her husband, Louis J. Kamons, are suing Weinstein for damages for alleged indignities to which he is said to have subjected her during the absence of Kamons in the West.

He denied today that he had entered her drawing room on a sleeping car during a trip to Dayton, as she charged in testimony yesterday. He also denied her testimony that he had sought to establish improper relations with her in her home.

Kamons was in the West, on business for Weinstein, at the time of the alleged occurrences.

RIVER STATIONS PLANNED

Recommendations for the immediate construction of river terminals to be available when the canalization of the Ohio River is completed are engaging the Department of Public Works, according to an announcement by Director Edward G. Lang.

Terminals are being studied from the standpoint of location as determined by established industries, streets and river conditions.

The department sent letters to 1,000 potential shippers to determine the character and volume of prospective freight and the manner of its delivery to proposed river terminals. Replies have been received from 23 per cent of the shippers.

An employe had failed to turn on an oil blanket over the vats in the contact sulphuric acid plant, and they had boiled over, sending off great clouds of white fumes.

One Night In Spain Together With Gossip From Make-Believe World

LA ARGENTINA ENCHANTS IN NIXON

Spain came to Pittsburgh last night on the twinkling feet of La Argentina, a dancer of irresistible charm and enchanting grace. She had no orchestra, and she needed none. Her castanets could render nocturnes and sonatas with all the light and shade of the most insinuating music. Even by the snapping of her fingers she can create the rhythm and color of sunny Spain. In the classic dances of that romantic land she is queen by divine right of a rich personality and a perfect technique. Her audience last night did not want to go home, and became vocal at last in its insistence upon an encore—but got only eloquent smiles. Those were enough—for Argentina dances with her eyes no less than with her toes. She is a marvel in her line, and a clever comedienne as well, evinced by the Legarterana peasant dance which closed the first part and which she had to repeat.

Excepting her Seguidilla, La Argentina's dances were accompanied on the piano by Carmencita Perez, who also played several solos, of which Larregla's "Viva Navarra" was rendered with much spirit. The Spanish composers, of course, dominated the program. Albeniz, Granados, Guerrero, and Iradier were among those whose compositions were translated into dance by the artistry of La Argentina. Upon a stage hung with Feldgrau she floated like the incarnate grace and magic of Spain, displaying costumes of ravishing beauty, to the music of her own orchestra, held in her two little hands, those castanets on which she displays a vertiginous virtuosity. It was Spain come to Pittsburgh—and receiving a royal welcome from Pittsburgh society.

TWO JUNES HERE NEXT WEEK

Following its engagement of an entire season in the Belasco Theater, New York, with the identical New York cast intact David Belasco will present "The Bachelor Father," by Edward Childs Carpenter, in the Nixon, opening Monday, December 17. June Walker, C. Aubrey Smith and Geoffrey Kerr are the featured players.

Arthur Hammerstein whose new musical comedy, "Polly," opens in the Alvin Monday, December 17, has brought over "June," of London's music halls, to appear in this production. It is said that Mr. Hammerstein has assembled one of the most beautiful choruses seen in any musical comedy recently for "Polly."

Seats go on sale Thursday in the Pitt for the engagement of Alexander Moissi in Max Reinhardt's production of "Redemption" (Tolstoy's "Lebende Leichnam.") The present tour of Alexander Moissi is an aftermath of the triumphant engagement of this European actor in a series of Max Reinhardt's productions in New York last season.

MILLIONS

have waited for this announcement

People said: "Give us a Victrola of Orthophonic quality and radio convenience and we will buy"

AND here it is: A brand-new type Automatic Victrola, at a price within the reach of the average home. A dream of Victor technical men come true. New as tomorrow's newspaper. New in principle. New in design. New in scope. In the judgment of many, it is the world's most desirable musical instrument.

Not a clumsy contraption, but a simple mechanism that performs operations that human hands alone might be expected to do. Not only does it change its own records, but it plays as long as you say—hours or days or weeks, if you wish. You simply see that it is supplied with Victor Records, press a button . . . and the mechanism does the rest.

This master instrument will be furnished in three main types, shown herewith. One is the Automatic Orthophonic Victrola, with all the realism for which Orthophonic reproduction is noted. It lists at $365. Another is the Automatic Electrola, which permits volume-adjustment from the faintest murmur to the stentorian power of the full symphony orchestra. This lists at $850. The third is the Automatic Electrola, but with the latest Radiola Super-Heterodyne in addition. This lists at $1350, complete with Radiotrons.

Each type is in a cabinet of consummate charm . . . not only a superb musical instrument, but a piece of furniture that is a delight to live with, day after day. But, words cannot give you the picture. You must see them . . . hear them. Your own most extravagant phrases will not be an exaggeration. Your Victor dealer is ready to show you.

REAL LIFE SWEETHEARTS NOW MAKING LOVE IN TWO MOVIE ROMANCES

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1928, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 11.

SWEETHEARTS both on and off the screen, Sue Carol and Nick Stuart will be teamed again by the Fox organization in a photoplay titled "The Girl Who Couldn't Stop." This photodrama will be produced before the final sequences of Nick and Sue's "Chasing Through Europe" picture are made. Meantime, Director Dave Butler will fix up the shots which he took in Europe.

Sue is also set for the first edition of the Fox Follies, a movietone revue which is to be an annual feature. It is understood that Lois Moran will have the leading hole, but as it will be an al-star cast, Sue is assured of a big part. Both Sue and the Fox folk must feel pretty sure that Sue will defeat the case brought against her by Douglas McLean for alleged breaking of her contract. Plans for her are proceeding merrily.

Before she marries, Lina Basquette plans to make a three-week vaudeville appearance in a Fanchon and Marco act. Lina, as you remember, is a very talented dancer. She has studied dancing from childhood and still does. Before she entered the movies she was the premiere danseuse of the "Follies."

Gloria Swanson Film Delayed

A LITTLE scouting uncovers what seems to be the real reason for the delay in production of Gloria Swanson's picture. The first half of it is almost completed. But the latter portion is being entirely re-written by Author-Director Erich Von Stroheim. It seems that the second half of the story was rejected because of not being suitable for talkie synchronization. So the scenario department wrote another which "Von" simply declined to film. Now he is doing one himself. Thus the delay.

If Greta Garbo doesn't want her European vacation delayed she had better hurry and catch that steamboat. Metro has discovered that she is needed back in Hollywood for same re-takes on "Heat," her latest photoplay, and the wires will be abuzzing to get Greta to return. Just what she will have to say about this is something else again. At present the betting is that she goes abroad.

Milton Sills In "The Barker"

FIRST National's Vitaphone picture, "The Barker," has pleased Hollywood mightily. Milton Sills, who has been battling through thousands of feet of film for years past, has a real role for once. Dorothy Mackaill, in the role created by Claudette Colbert on the stage, surprises everyone with a remarkably vivid characterization. Of course, Betty Compson is great. And Young Dug Fairbanks, Jr., seems to be following in his father's histrionic footsteps. Lots of folks would like Doug better if he got a haircut, however. There isn't too much dialogue in the film, and the sound effects are helpful in creating circus atmosphere. First National expects the show to run for at least three months in Hollywood. They're charging a $2 top, too.

"The Command to Love," that very snappy and somewhat naughty stage play, is to be made into a picture by Fox. And Barry Norton is to be starred in the role of the youthful diplomat who is called upon to do a lot of plain and fancy necking in order to keep his country out of certain embarrassing entanglements. Barry's most recent big part is in the Murnau picture, "The Four Devils."

Michael Curtiz will make a picture for Warner Brothers from the old Owen Davis "meller," called "The 9:45." Paramount, too, is planning a railroad film for Gary Cooper and Fay Wray. There'll be a rise in the prices of locomotives and trains if this keeps up.

Holmes Travel Talk To Picture Paris

For his farewell Travel Revue, Burton Holmes will bring "The Glories of Paris" and place them on view in Carnegie Music Hall this evening. Mr. Holmes promises to lead his auditor-spectators step by step about this famous city so that they will be made to feel at home with the things they have read or heard about Paris—the Place Vendome with its bronze Napoleon, the famous salons and shops, restaurants, safes and caberets—everything that one must see and do on a visit to Paris.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE LOVE HELPER

By EFFIE DELNORD

MARCIA was 34, a tall, well built young woman with a firm, sensitive mouth and a chin that contradicted the sweet yielding in her brown eyes. Though Marcia stood securely on her own feet, financially and otherwise, there was somewhere in her heart, tucked out of sight, a definite longing to lean against somebody, to be taken care of, advised, even bossed. Therefore as she looked at Johnny Kane, a slim, pale young man leaning against her desk with a most helpless look in his light gray eyes, she shook her head.

"I'm sorry, Johnny, but I can't go to dinner with you this evening. You'll have to come to some kind of a decision about that Burns proposition without me."

"Without you?" echoed Johnny a little wildly. "Have a heart, Marcia; you know I'm up against it. Why, I relied upon you to advise me! I'll make a mess of it, and you know I will. All right, if that's the way you feel about it!" And he strode noisily out of the office just as a young woman with a small chin at a defiant angle came in.

Marcia rose and smilingly held out her hand. "Hello, Annabel how are you? I was so surprised to get your telephone call an hour ago. Sit down over here. You haven't changed much in 10 years—well, maybe you're a little thinner, but it's very becoming."

Annabel, to Marcia's dismay—her desk was piled with work—slipped out of her coat and tossed her felt hat on the filing cabinet, revealing a very much marcelled blonde head. "If you look sharp you'll see some gray hairs that Anthony grew." It was surprising what a lot of bitterness such a little woman could put in her voice.

Marcia said hastily, "Oh, we won't talk of husbands or we'll both be exaggerating! Isn't it funny how women can't tell the truth about their husbands?" She smiled coaxingly, but Annabel's lips drew such a hard line she went on hurriedly: "Now, take me, a widow, it's utterly impossible for me to tell the truth about Elmer. He may have had faults, but each year he becomes more perfect. We women simply make up our minds about our husbands regardless of facts until we can only see our own picture of them and sometimes, I suppose we aren't very good artists!" Annabel's mouth looked so pinched and grim that Marcia quickly changed the subject with, "Tell me, did you come to the city for shopping? How did you ever think of me?"

"I got in yesterday afternoon," Annabel told her with a sigh, "and this morning I felt so lonely and blue and I don't know a soul here—then I remembered you had an office somewhere," she said frankly, "and found your number. But to come back to your little lecture on husbands—I've left Anthony, I'm going to get a divorce."

Marcia controlled a gasp and said gently, "Don't be foolish, Annabel. Don't join the hordes of husbandless women. There are so many of them and nearly all are so bitterly lonely. You're not the type that can stand on her own feet and jostle your way in the world. You haven't even the health, or endurance, or grit, Annabel." Marcia stopped thinking, "What am I doing?" What is it to me? Or was it because she's so little and washed-out looking and pitiful in her bitter defiance? Or is it—"Annabel," she coaxed, "go back to Anthony and be good. Believe me, you need a man to protect you, somebody to lean against."

From Annabel's eyes shot little blue flames of scorn. "Just try to lean against Anthony and you'll get the surprise of your life! Depend upon him for one Sunday's championship, one Saturday afternoon, one holiday and all you get is, 'See you when the tournament's over!' And it isn't just that. He's always losing his job. He says it's because he hates his work, but I know why. Nobody, wife nor employer, will put up with a golf fiend. No wonder he loses his job—always going off to some tournament."

Marcia looked down at her hands in her lap. Finally she said, "But he hates his work, Annabel."

"Can I help it that his father made an auditor of him?" flared the little woman. "No, I'm through."

Marcia was thinking, "One night all alone away from home made her so lonely that she thought of me, whom she hasn't bothered to write to for 10 years, and she thinks now, in her anger, that she could stand months, years of loneliness!" And she said slowly, "There must be some work he likes to do."

"No there isn't," Annabel told her emphatically, "all he wants is to play golf, morning, noon and night! Because he holds the championship at the club for six consecutive years he thinks I should fall on his neck with joy!"

Marcia thought, "Oh, let her get her divorce!" Then she looked at Annabel's legs. They were so dreadfully thin! Nonsense, lots of women have thin legs and are sturdy. But there was Annabel's washed-out looking face with its chin at a defiant angle and her eyes agitter with rage. "If she wasn't so terribly mad I'd know whether she means it or not—well, here goes—" And Marcia said aloud, "Annabel, why not let him get his fill of golf? Why can't he become a professional? There's a wonderful new club opening—I'll give you the address—and I know they haven't engaged a professional so far. There's money in it, too, with the lessons on the side, and usually a bungalow goes with the job." She saw all the glittering anger fade out of Annabel's eyes and a joy, so eager, so hopeful, take its place that it sent little stabs of cruel pain into Marcia's heart.

A hundred questions bubbled from Annabel's lips and the last was for a timetable.

"Annabel," Marcia was saying as the smaller woman was pulling on her coat, "you must do your part, too. Perhaps you're the kind of a wife who grabs the frying pan five minutes before dinner time. Are you? And maybe your coffee is muddy?" Annabel gave her a queer look. "And then one more thing—spring this idea about being a professional on Anthony as your own, will you? Promise. Good! And now goodbye and good luck, and you'll have time before your train leaves to stop and buy a drip coffee pot. Be sure to do it!"

When the office door closed Marcia dropped in her chair and deliberately let her head fall on the desk. For a moment or two there was no sound except an odd little choking noise, then Marcia straightened, blew her nose and began to write a letter. "Dear Anthony," she scribbled hurriedly, "I can't have lunch with you tomorow, nor the next day nor ever again. We are both too sensible, I believe, to let our friendship drift into something that would hurt another. So please forget all we said and don't make it hard for me by writing or trying to see me. After all, we all exaggerate, though we may not mean to, so try Annabel's coffee without prejudice and see if it doesn't taste good! Good luck, Marcia."

When she had sealed the letter and watched it flutter down the mail chute she walked slowly back into the office, almost as if she dreaded the loneliness of the room. Dinner and the evening ahead seemed like a long gray streak, a sample of the weeks and months and years ahead. Suddenly Marcia shook her broad shoulders. "Well, if I can help everybody else I guess I can help myself too!" And she reached for the telephone.

"You will!" came back Johnny's voice so warm and happy that it brought a faint flush to Marcia's cheeks, "and say, Marcia, when we've settled that Burns proposition, I have something else to ask you—and it has nothing at all to do with business!"

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

We Modern Women

A WOMAN'S idea of a sartorial triumph is a hat that is smart enough to make all the women hate her, and becoming enough to make all the men love her.

Getting a man to propose, these days, is like getting a small boy to apologize. It CAN be done—but you're all worn out by the time you have wrung an admission from him.

* * *

With a little canned chicken, a few sprigs of lettuce and a big imagination, any modern woman can serve a wonderful "home-cooked luncheon."

HELEN ROWLAND

An old-fashioned man is one who thinks that the fact that he has offered to let a girl pick up his things and keep his dinner hot for the rest of his life, is the only proof of his love that he need give her.

* * *

If the salesgirl treats you like a friend and an equal, it's a store; if she serves you coldly but politely, it's a shop; if she acts like a captive princess, who wonders how you got in, it's a "shoppe."

* * *

Father used to heave a sigh of relief and start saving to buy himself a new overcoat when he got daughter married and "off his hands;" now, he merely heaves a sigh and starts saving up to pay for her divorce.

For some unfathomable reason, the average man would rather be on the "waiting-list" of a popular girl than on the wedding-announcement of the kind who would "make him an ideal wife."

A woman-tamer is like a traveling salesman. He hands out little "samples" of his "line" to each woman—and a lot of glittering chatter.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, December 13

THE marked conflict between the orbs of planetary influence operating on this day betokens many contradictory situations and occurrences. There is a likelihood of a sudden change of conditions, which, while carrying some adverse or disruptive phases, may be offset by the excellent opportunities afforded in other directions. New projects and financial conditions are fortified, but much might be put in jeopardy by rashness, impetuosity and headlong action.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of fluctuations of circumstances and fortune. While there may be a sudden and unwelcome change, at the same time new projects are encouraged and the finances are fortified, but all must be managed by good judgment, deliberation and conservatism.

A child born on this day may be richly endowed with many qualities and graces making for a successful and possibly a conspicuous career, but these should not be stultified by indulgences in tumult, turbulence and rashness.

Omission to do what is necessary seals a commission to a blank of danger.—Shakespeare.

For the Lovelorn

Broken-Hearted

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a steady reader of your column and I think you give wonderful advice to young girls and boys. I am coming to you to see if you can solve my problems. I am a young girl in my early teens and I am considered nice looking by several. I live in a small town, and in this small town there is a certain young man whom I think a lot of and would like to have a date with. But Miss Gale, he is so bashful. He is nice looking and only 19 years old. I would love to go with him; in fact, I would do anything to win him, for I love him. I go to bed thinking of him and get up thinking of him, but my folks, not all of them, think he is lazy, but he is not, for he cannot find a job, as jobs are scarce. But no matter who talks I will still love him. Please, Miss Gale, tell me what to do to win his heart and him. Thanking you, I'll sign,

BROKEN-HEARTED.

There is no royal road to winning boys, my dear. The only thing you can do is to be pleasant and cheerful when he is around, and interested in all that he says and does. Why not invite him to come to see you? That is your privilege.

You cannot be attractive without a clear skin

EVERYBODY wants to be attractive. It is a great and just ambition. But no one can be attractive without a clear skin—you know that.

Do you realize the importance of pure, rich blood in preserving the health, and that the source of most skin disorders is in the blood?

Remove the cause, which is not in the skin itself, and pimples, boils, eczema and that sallow complexion will disappear.

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S?

S.S.S. is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs, and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

When your system is filled with rich, red blood, you don't have that tired, languid feeling when you awake in the morning. Instead, you feel refreshed, ready to meet the world.

Your appetite is keen—you enjoy work or play—your skin is clear, cheeks naturally rosy.

All this because rich, red blood builds and sustains the body.

All drug stores sell S.S.S. Get the larger size. It is more economical.

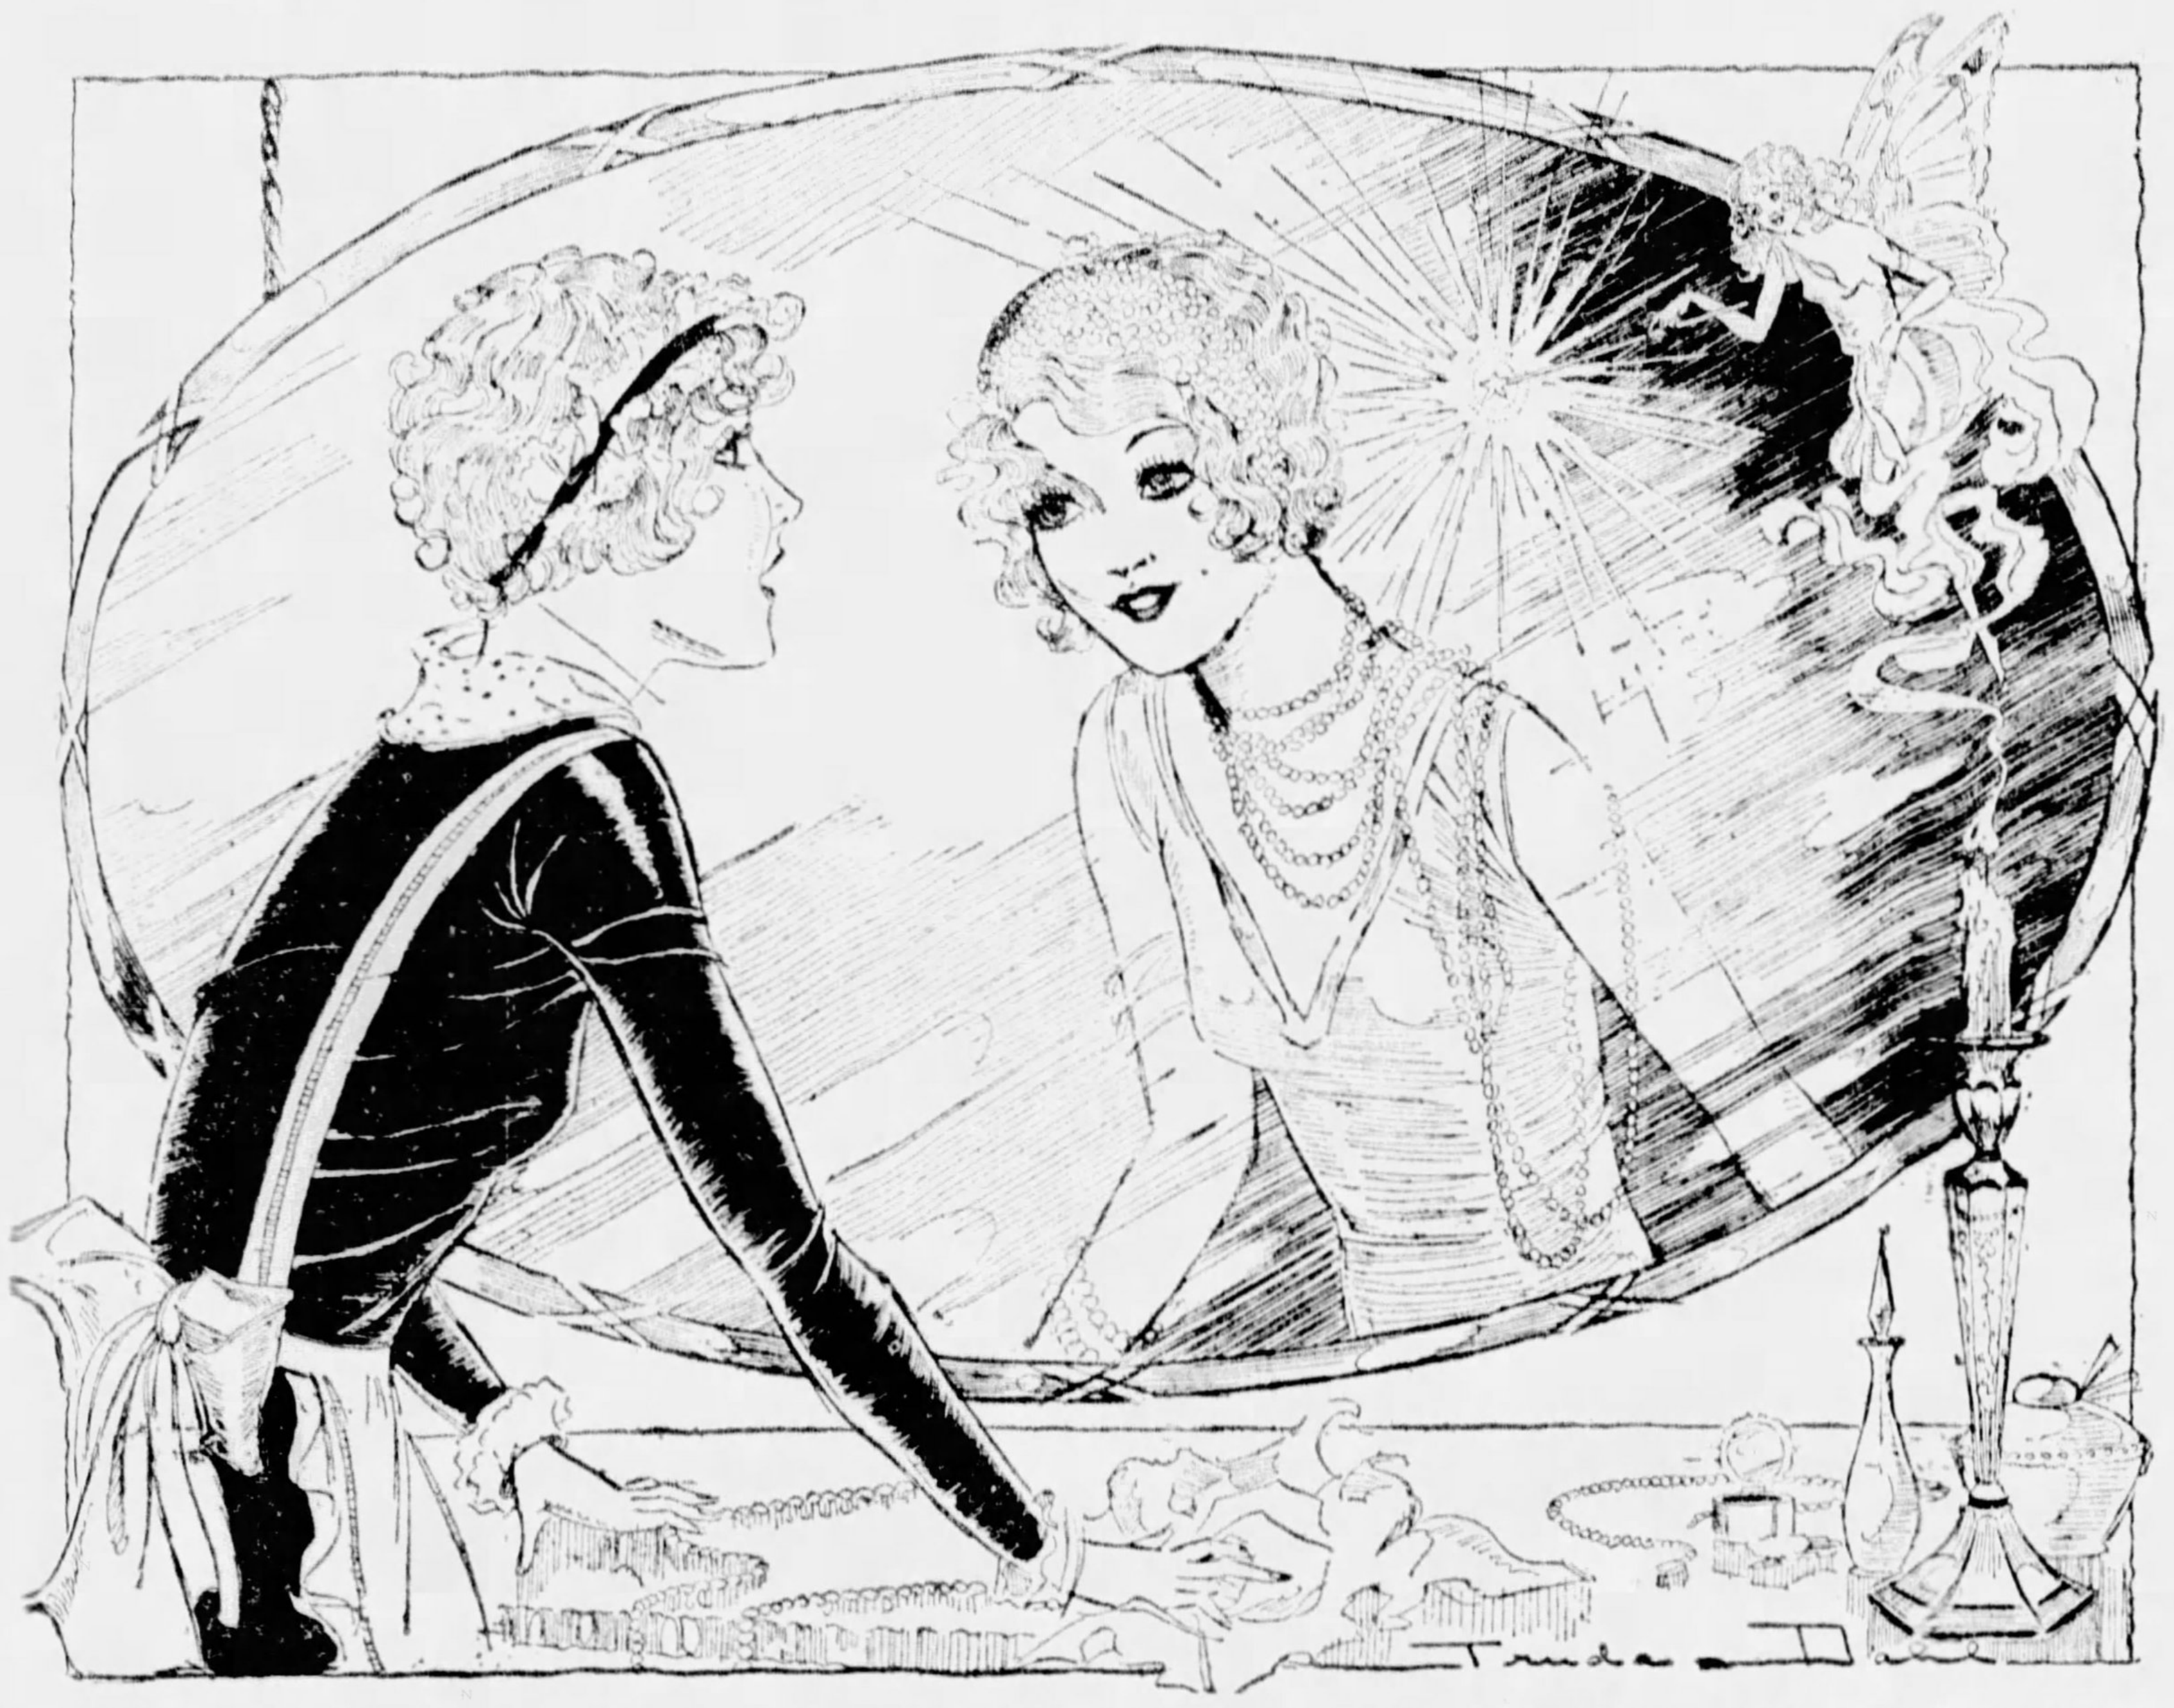
If Mirrors Held Magic -:- -:- By Truda Dahl



IF MIRRORS held magic, what a world it would be! Every girl in the world would but have to gaze into a mirror and wish with all her heart to appear as she willed and presto! it would happen.

Picture the little maid gazing into the mirror and wishing she looked as does her mistress. And there would be no more maid and mistress! But perhaps it's just as well that the days of magic are over, for there's no telling what might happen nowadays.

And here's a secret! A girl is usually satisfied with herself just as she is, until she falls in love. Then she finds herself wishing she were the most beautiful thing in the world, just so that her Beloved would be oh so proud of her and her beauty.

But think a bit! Isn't this foolish? He loves you for just what you are. To him you ARE the loveliest of the lovely! And the mirror magic might only wreck your happiness, for it would give him someone who would be a perfect stranger. So don't waste your time in vain wishing. Rather be thankful that Love has found you and in finding you has glorified your plainness into the greatest Beauty of all.

LOVE'S AWAKENING -:- A CONTINUATION OF LOVE'S EMBERS

Philip Veritzen Assumes Command in Love Drama

THERE was a curiously hesitant delay in the answers of the little group of young people to Philip Veritzen's query. I wondered if to each of them as to me had come the sense of something tense, purposeful, in the apparently casual question.

I knew, of course, that he wished to find out whether Mary had obeyed his mandate neither to see nor to speak to Noel beyond requirements of ordinary courtesy when in public. And I realized that Mary shared my knowledge when she spoke hastily.

"Oh! by chance, of course! But it's my luck to draw George most of the time in our doubles."

"Good or bad?" young Mr. Jackson asked, smiling, and Mary's reply was equally flippant.

"Take your choice," she said, and then Noel, who had not spoken since his return from summoning Otto, struck in with a proposal whose studied carelessness was belied by the look in his eyes.

"Suppose we begin today to settle the international championship?" he said. "Mary will you join with me in defending our national rights?"

I found my eyes on Mary's face, turned them away again quickly from the misery which her eyes mirrored. And my heart was hot against Philip Veritzen at the girl's low hesitant reply.

"I'm afraid our national honor would trail in the dust, Noel, if you depended upon me to uphold it," she said. "I'm an awful dub at tennis. Better just let us go along the way we have. Then neither you nor George has to put up with me all the time."

I was glad that Otto's knock and his employer's curt summons to come in, effectually prevented the emphatic disclaimers which both young men were beginning. I did not care to have Philip Veritzen witness any more proofs of the decided preference of both young men for Dicky's niece, with Princess Olina playing the role of second violin—I guessed for the first time in her pampered, sheltered young life.

"You have kept us waiting, Otto," Mr. Veritzen said sternly.

"I am very sorry, sir," the man replied, "but I could not come into the house after changing a tire without—"

Mr. Veritzen made an impatient gesture.

"I have no time for explanations," he said curtly, and I saw the man's face flush, wondered what necessity kept him from openly resenting his employer's arrogance. "I want you to carry these things up to the little boy's room. That is," turning to me with so marked a difference in manner that I felt uncomfortable, "if you think we have not delayed so long as to make the visit unadvisable."

"Oh, no," I disclaimed quickly. "Indeed," I added, with the hope of lessening Otto's discomfiture, "I don't think Mrs. Bickett would have been ready for us before. But now, I am sure we can go up and how delighted Junior will be! Will you come this way, please?"

I led the way up the staircase, hearing as I went the chatter of the young quartet as they departed for the tennis court, openly exulant of the scheme Mary had devised of keeping an extra set of tennis shoes for each of them in a box upon the veranda. Thus they were enabled to snatch a game at a moment's notice, especially as they all wore sport clothing most of the time.

Junior was sitting up in bed watching the door when we entered, and I saw his face fall as he realized that Mr. Veritzen held nothing in his hands.

"But, mother" he began, forgetting his training in his disappointment, "I thought Aunt Katherine said—"

Otto's opportune entrance cut short his protest, much to my relief, and Junior gave an excited whoop.

"Oh, mums, look!" he said. "It's like Christmas and Easter and birthdays all rolled into one."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

He Asks Consent

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have been going about with a young man and he wishes to give me an engagement ring. Will it be proper for the young man and me to ask my parents' consent before I accept the ring?

RUTH.

THE young man should call on your father and talk over with him the fact that he wishes to marry you and all the other important facts connected with such an important step. This is the only dignified thing for him to do, and courtesy and fineness demand that you and he should not announce your engagement without his asking the consent of those most dear to you. After your father has been consulted and your mother has talked over with you the happy news, then you may accept your ring.

Congratulations

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Please give me the proper form in congratulating, orally and in writing, a dental student upon his graduation.

L.

YOU may say to him, "Congratulations, good luck to you and all best wishes." You could write: "Dear Dr. Jones:

"May I send to you my most hearty congratulations on your graduation from college? I am delighted at the good news, and know that it is only the beginning of a very fine career. All good wishes to you and the best of fortune.

"Yours very sincerely,
"ALICE LANDSEN."

Eating Chicken

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

There has been some discussion on "The Proper Way of Eating Chicken." A says that paper on the leg of the chicken is for holding the chicken in the hand.

B says that it is for decoration purposes only. Kindly advise which is correct. Thank you.

A Reader.

B IS RIGHT. These little "boudoir caps" on either chicken or lamb chops are to conceal as artistically as possible the unattractive ends of the bones. They should never be regarded as a suggestion of a neater handle for holding the chicken. Unless we are eating alone, we should not take chicken or chops in the fingers to eat them. It just "ain't pretty." And if our opposite neighbor is a sensitive person, he or she won't enjoy the untidy sight.

When we do eat chicken in this unsightly manner, our fingers inevitably become untidy, and when we wipe them on our napkins, our napkins, too, wear a messy expression. So we'd best use our knives and forks to manipulate this chicken-eating. And as a matter of fact, we will soon become skillful enough to cut practically all the chicken from the bone.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Bad Skin Destroys Beauty of Features

A FACE, perfect in features, is robbed of beauty by a bad skin. Imperfect and irregular facial lines may be so overshadowed by a dazzling complexion as to bring a verdict of beauty to one who would take a miserable photograph. Blessed indeed is that person who adds to good features an unblemished and perfect complexion. That means perfect beauty.

DR. COPELAND

To keep the skin in condition and to preserve a beautiful complexion, several things are necessary. First, the surface of the body must be thoroughly cleansed at regular intervals, and at all times kept as clean as possible.

It is a rare experience to find a clear complexion in one who is afraid of soap and water. Some time we will discuss cosmetics, but today we will say of them merely this: The woman who employs them will rue the day she started their use, if she persistently neglects, before retiring, to wash off every particle of paint and powder. She must thoroughly scrub the skin with an abundance of water and good soap before going to bed.

After cleansing the skin, it must be perfectly dried with the towel to prevent chapping. At this stage there is no objection to gentle massaging with a good and pure "cold cream."

After the morning tub bath or shower there should be brisk rubbing with the bath towel. This leaves the skin of the whole body red and glowing. Ten minutes spent on the skin at night and five minutes in the bathtub every morning, represent 50 per cent of the coat of a perfect skin and a good complexion. It is a good investment of time and effort.

The other 50 per cent will be found in observing those rules of physical conduct that should govern every individual, whether or not he cares a copper about his skin. Even though he be indifferent to his complexion, he does want to escape the undertaker. His expectation of life depends upon the perfect running of all the machinery of the body. The blood must be pure, and to keep it so an abundance of pure water should be taken daily.

Every day there is a new proverb: "An apple a day keeps the doctor away;" "A bath every day keeps the doctor away." Let us proclaim another. A quart of drinking water each day will keep the doctor away. Water acts as a solvent to take up harmful substances and thus makes it possible for the sweat glands to carry away the bodily poisons.

Fats and greases as found in pies and pastry, rich candies, fried foods, and all foods high in butter or lard content, must be guardedly eaten. Some persons digest and take care of such food without evil effect, but when one has a sensitive skin, tendency to eruptions of any sort, muddiness of the complexion, or any similar blemish, these foods must be discarded or taken in limited amounts.

A clean and active skin is an important factor in giving alertness to the mind, flexibility to the muscles, elasticity to the blood vessels and the assurance of a long life.

Answers to Health Queries

H. A. B. Q.—What causes sinus trouble and is there a cure? Will this cause head noises?

A.—Infection. Yes, when the source of the infection has been located proper treatment will tend to clear it up. See your doctor for his advice. Such a condition would be very apt to cause head noises, since the underlying cause may be due to a catarrhal condition.

M. W. Q.—Can a wife contract tuberculosis from her husband?

A.—Yes, if the husband has it in the infectious form. If he has germs in his sputum special care should be taken in regard to disposal of rags or cheese-cloth used in place of handkerchiefs. These cloths should be burned.

* * *

A. M. Q.—What is acidosis, its cause and the symptoms? How can it be corrected?

A.—Over-acid condition of the blood. Drowsiness and vomiting are two outstanding symptoms. Proper diet will help to correct the condition. Alkaline food, orange and pineapple juice may be included in such diet.

X. Y. Z. Q.—What causes puffs under the eyes?

A.—This may be due to a kidney or heart condition. See your doctor for examination and follow his advice regarding treatment.

WCAE LIKELY TO GET OLD WAVEBAND BACK

WHILE the Federal Radio Commission engineers are working on a rearrangement that will give WCAE a better position on the dial, it has not been determined yet what waveband the station will occupy, it was said last night by Mrs. Frances Doherr, manager of WCAE.

The common conjecture is that the station will get its old wavelength or a wavelength much higher than that being used now.

Most of the letters taken to Washington by WCAE officials expressed a desire to have the station on its old wavelength.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Dances Are to Dominate In Social Events Till First of Year

YIELDING to the temptation of paraphrasing, the dance is the thing. From now until the first of the year fox trots and waltzes will predominate in the musical life of the younger set.

There'll be dances for the gay school set, irresponsible during vacation all too brief, for the debutante set and the slightly older school set, and for the mothers and fathers of many of the younger folks, too.

One dance for the married group of the social world will be held this week, one of the most outstanding of the year—the Pittsburgh Club dinner dance on Friday.

McCleane Brown is the chairman, as in former years, assisted by George M. Laughlin, Jr., William Christopher Robinson and William Penn Snyder, Jr.

And of course there's no event in the social world without women aiding. Assisting the committee will be Mrs. William Christopher Robinson, Mrs. W. N. Frew, Mrs. Remsen V. Messler, Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Jones, Jr., Mrs. Alexander Laughlin, Jr., Mrs. Henry R. Rea, Mrs. McCleane Brown, Mrs. J. Frederick Byers, Mrs. A. G. Hay, Mrs. Harmar D. Denny, Mrs. William Penn Snyder, Jr., Mrs. William J. Holland, Mrs. Richard Beatty Mellon, Mrs. William Penn Snyder and Mrs. Frank Scott Willock.

AND there's the cotillion on Tuesday, December 18, the most notable social event for the younger set, and the traditional charity ball on December 27 in the William Penn Hotel, given by the Federation of Girls' School Societies.

The younger set and the social leaders will be well represented. Betty Scott, chairman of the patroness committee, informs me that a number of well-known society women are working for the event and will attend, too. Mrs. Maitland Alexander and Mrs. Taylor Allderdice will be there, and Mrs. Charles Dickey Armstrong and Mrs. Marcus Acheson, Jr., are planning to attend, too.

Mrs. Shirley Plumer Austin, who was one of the committee workers for the Cinderella ball given for the benefit of St. Margaret's Hospital, is interested in this benefit, too.

Among others who expect to attend and who are sponsoring the event include Mrs. George Scott Baton, Mrs. Edward Heaton Brainard, Mrs. Edward H. Bindley, Mrs. Clarence Burleigh, Jr., Mrs. A. Marshall Bell, Mrs. George Pomeroy Bassett, Jr., Mrs. Edward Vose Babcock, Mrs. Silas Nelson Benham, Mrs. James H. Beal, Jr., Mrs. Julian Burdick, Mrs. Charles Marshall Brown, Mrs. John Jackson Bissell.

Others who are giving their support are Mrs. Louis Brown, Mrs. Franklin M. Bowman, Mrs. Napoleon Collins Brace, Mrs. Richard Brett, Mrs. Frank B. Bell, Mrs. John G. Bennett, Mrs. G. Webber Barnes, Mrs. Joel W. Burdick, Mrs. William H. Cassidy, Mrs. Harvey Childs, Jr., Mrs. James H. Childs, Mrs. Thomas McK. Cook, Mrs. Walter Cockrill Carroll, Miss Margaret Coulter, Mrs. Grant Curry, Mrs. Frederick Crabtree, Mrs. Dwight H. Coble, Mrs. G. Greer Coolidge, Mrs. W. York Cocken, Jr., Mrs. George H. Clapp, and Mrs. Thomas Howe Childs.

MARJORIE BABCOCK, who will marry James McKay, son of the J. Albert McKays, of "Oakhill," Amberson avenue, on January 3, you know, has chosen her bridal party. Marjorie made her debut last year and many of her bridesmaids came out with her, although her maid of honor, Louise Latimer Reed, is one of this season's buds. The bridesmaids will be Elizabeth McKay; Marion Stone, one of this season's debutantes; Frances Fitzgerald, Harriet Ramsburg, of Sewickley; Juliet Hillman, Mary Mellon McClung and Eunice DuPuy, all sister buds of Marjorie's last winter, and Susie Singleton, of St. Louis. The little ring bearer will be Marjorie's small nephew, Fred Raymond Babcock, II, son of the Raymond Babcocks, of Shady avenue.

Paul Mellon, son of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, is going to be Mr. McKay's best man, and the ushers will include Frank Faber Brooks, Jr., of Sewickley; Henry Pearce Wright, George Pearson Rhodes, Jr., Oliver Blair, Andrew Bart Berger, Jr., Leonard Seeley Mudge, Henry Oliver and Thomas C. Standish, Jr., of Sewickley; Jack Hess, Louis D. Trainer, Edward B. Babcock, of Wichita, Kan., and Benjamin B. McAlpin, Jr., of New York.

MAN WOUNDED BY SHOT FIRED FROM CAR

Shot down while walking in Carver street, near Larimer avenue, Michael Iannotti, 41, better known as Michael Murphy, of 557 Larimer avenue, was reported to have a fighting chance for recovery by physicians at the Pittsburgh Hospital today.

Iannotti was struck in the back by a charge from a shotgun while walking with William Calabrese, 35, of 6226 Station street, last night. A touring car containing two men slowed down as it passed the pair and a man in the rear seat thrust a double-barreled shotgun through the curtain of the car and fired once.

Questioned by members of the homicide squad, the victim said he did not see his assailants. He told the detectives he never had been threatened and knew of no enemies. Edward Mehler, of 116 Carver street, and Ralph Gordon, of 44 Carver street, saw the gunmen's car, but were unable to obtain the license number. The two rushed Iannotti to the hospital.

Iannotti and Calabrese, police say, were returning to the former's store in Broad street, after eating lunch at the victim's home.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

Havey's got the grip, folks, the doctor has him down,

You see he likes the Column 'and he says it must appear
And that is why I'm hitting for the Carrick Volunteer.

RELIABLE telegraph operators are indispensable to newspapers and other big organizations. It is said that telegraph companies have experimented quite successfully with machines that substitute for operators, but the average newspaperman likes to see the old "Morse Code" gent around with his wealth of personal touch.

Fellows like Bill Shragen and Eddie Harlow, of Pittsburgh, are more than telegraphers. These hustlers have initiative. Shragen is in charge of the press arrangements for all the big sportive events that come to Pittsburgh, like the world series, a grid clash between Carnegie Tech and New York U., or a championship golf meeting at Oakmont. Every scribe yells for him when his wire "breaks," so Bill has to give service like Gammon deals out waffles.

* * *

SHRAGEN it was who sent the first message ever to leave Forbes Field. Bill manned a wire on that festive occasion, the date being June 30, 1909, the event being a meeting between the Pirates under Fred Clarke and the Cubs under Frank Chance. Any ball fan would remember a battle involving two such clubs, and it is little wonder that Bill quickly recalled the first line ticked off. It read:

DO YOU REMEMBER YOUR FIRST MESSAGE AT FORBES' FIELD ?
SAY-- I REMEMBER THE FIRST LINE !

"Evers singled to center."

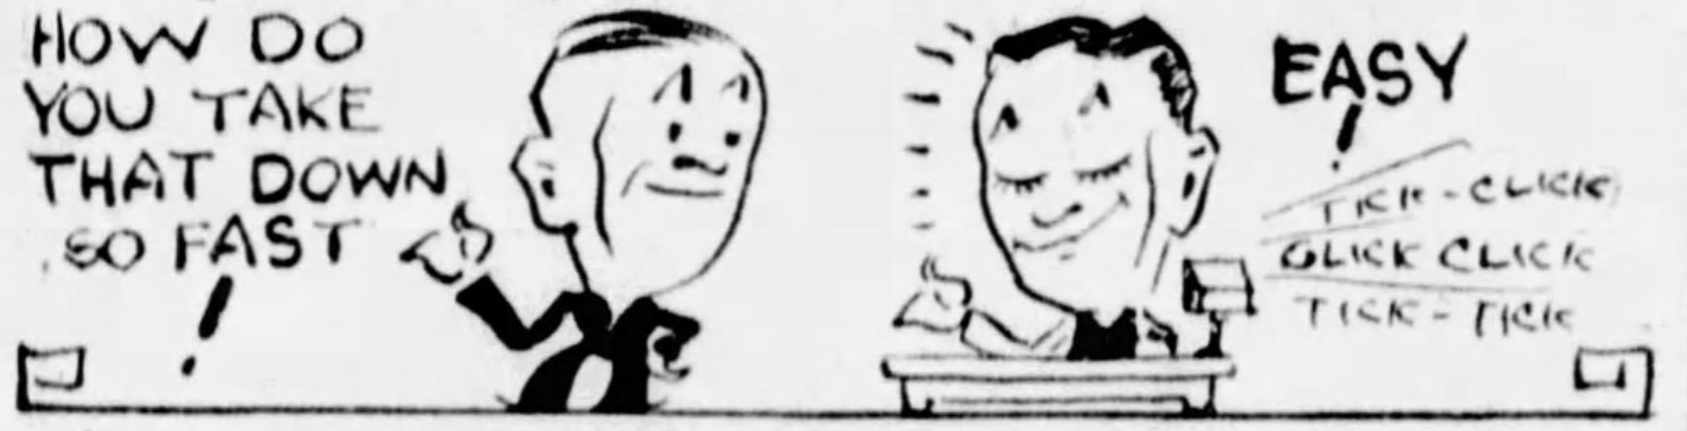
Eddie Harlow is in charge of all wires in the editorial rooms of the Sun-Tele. This quiet fellow, by the way, bears a big reputation from Coast to Coast among the men of his calling—although he doesn't seem to realize it. It is quite unusual when sitting beside a telegrapher in a press box in San Francisco, who has just sent 1,000 words to Pittsburgh without a "break," to hear him remark:



"That guy Harlow in Pittsburgh is a corker. He doesn't have how fast you send or how long. I cut in a couple of times just to see if he were still taking and he told me to quit kidding."

DURING the course of a ball game between, we shall say, the Pirates and Cardinals in St. Louis, Harlow and the telegrapher on the other end will carry on an animated fanning bee between plays. Occasionally they may get a bit sore at each other, but they never miss any plays.

* * *

Many newspapermen who do a lot of traveling frown upon the new sending machines. Some even go so far as to inform one company if it tries to "put my stuff on a machine I'll take it over to the other people and let them send it." These journalists have come to know that a high-class receiver on the home end will quickly discern mistakes. And the operators in question know the characteristics of their writers so well they will stop a strange sender any time with a remark like, "Harry didn't write that stuff like that; start that paragraph over again and get it right." The new mechanical sender can be operated by anybody who can run a typewriter and the average worker will send "as is"—in other words, won't question anything.

HAVANA, Cuba, is always on the job with a wire request whenever Dolf Luque goes to the mound. Cincinnati scribes are importuned to furnish the Island with every possible angle to the game as Luque flips the ball. There must be an interpreter somewhere along the line, for the stuff, leaving the park in good English, appears in the Spanish of the Cuban press.

Bill Already Paid Sues for Damages

Walter W. Scheide, Ross township, has brought suit against the Home Credit Company for $15,000 damages for injuries he alleges were sustained by him owing to the defendant company causing an execution judgment to be issued against him, when the debt given to the credit concern to collect had been paid.

CAR HITS TREE, HAND HURT

Howard Staub, 21, 408 Woodruff street, is confined in the South Side Hospital suffering a compound fracture of the left hand, received when his automobile ran into a tree on Natchez street, Mt. Washington.

According to the Mt. Washington police, Staub was driving east on Natchez street when the brakes jammed and he lost control of the car. George Arnesberg, 23, 431 Fernhill street, a passenger in Staub's machine, was treated at the hospital for a lacerated nose. Arnesberg was able to leave the hospital that night. Staub will get a hearing in Traffic Court on a charge of violating the automobile laws when he is discharged from the hospital.

Estate Will Be Held in Trust

William E. Lippincott, 414 Oneida street, left his $8,000 estate in trust to his daughter, Mrs. Bessie L. Jacobs, until her youngest child is 16. Then the estate is to be divided equally among the decedent's five daughters, Mrs. Jacobs, Mrs. Emma Purkey, Mrs. Eva Kerr, Mrs. Anna Purkey and Mrs. Ethel Gaare. The Potter Title and Trust Company is executor.

Mrs. Maud A. Gearing, 2000 Sidney street, Carrick, left her $28,000 estate to her husband, George L. Gearing, named executor.

Braddock Man Held In Liquor Raid

LIQUOR IS LIQUOR, IN JAIL CELL OR ELSEWHERE

"Liquor is liquor whether it's in a saloon or a police station," John Mulroy, 45, North Braddock, told Acting Burgess George H. House in Braddock police court yesterday, where he was arraigned on a charge of having tried to steal whisky from a cell in the Braddock station house.

Sgt. John Bradley testified that Mulroy entered the station through a side door and was trying to fish a bottle of confiscated liquor from the cell in which contraband is stored, with a stick which had a nail in the end of it. Sgt. Bradley said he watched Mulroy make several attempts to draw a bottle through the bars and then arrested him.

He was sent to the workhouse for 30 days in default of a $25 fine.

College Boys Teach Bridge Technique to Pay for Educations

SALLY HALL — YORK — LUCILLE ROSS — SALLY HALL — SEELY

Miss Sally Hall, Carnegie Tech co-ed, shows you here a corking good bridge hand. Miss Hall was a "bridge pupil" when she drew this hand.

Miss Hall knows a good bridge hand because Darwin York, Scranton, and Douglas Seely, Pittsburgh, demonstrated to her and Miss Lucille Ross. The boys teach bridge technique to put themselves through school.

TECH STUDENTS TEACH BRIDGE FOR FUNDS

Two young students of Carnegie Tech have discovered that there is at least one way of making money besides working. To assist them on their way through school, Darwin S. York, of Scranton, and Douglas Hall, of this city, teach contract bridge to aspiring card players. Their rate is 50 cents an hour—and they say they're doing well, thank you.

The idea was acquired last summer. When the pair returned to school this fall, they applied to the Carnegie Tech employment bureau. The bureau, established solely to aid the pupils on their way through school, accepted their talents at face value, and was able to place the young men to the profit of everyone concerned.

York and Ross said they had been out on contract bridge soirees about seven times since they began their unusual career. Some of the time they become mere partners—"just so the supposed pupils can have partners to practice on," they modestly claim.

However, they will pursue the idea through their three remaining years at Tech, they hope.

Post Arranges "Whoopee" Night

Final preparations are being made for a "whoopee" night in the Bellevue Borough Hall Friday night by members of North Boroughs Post No. 116, American Legion. Sleuths Grumble, But Give $60 to Scrubwoman

The county detectives all this year frequently reproved Carrie for things which did not appear important to her. Carrie scrubs the floors of the detective rooms.

Yesterday Carrie sat alone, awaiting evacuation of the office, sorrowed by ills of children and grandchildren, the distressful lack of funds.

"Here, take this and quit that moaning," County Detective Chief George W. Murren interrupted the silent figure. He handed her $60, collected among the detectives as a Christmas gift.

"What's it for? Who's it from?" asked the bewildered woman, fingering the price of luxury.

"If you don't want it, we'll give it to the orphans," replied the "Chief." But he didn't!

CHAIR IGNITES, BABE BURNED

Paul Schkivo, Jr., 8-month-old son of Paul Schkivo, is in a critical condition in his home, 29 Boggs avenue, from burns about the head and left side of the body, caused by fire when a high chair, in which he was sitting, caught fire from an overheated coal stove.

His brother and sister, James, 4, and Nancy, 3, both playing on the floor, screamed when they saw the flames. The mother pulled the burning clothing from the baby's body and carried all three children to safety.

Neighbors summoned firemen, who saved the house from destruction.

Mrs. Mamie Cea, 30, and her son, Nicholas, 9, who live on the second floor apartment, were forced to flee when the thick smoke poured into their home. Several hundred dollars damage was done to the Schkivo home and slight damage done to Cea's home.

YULE WREATHS INDORSED BY BELLEVUE

Large Christmas wreaths intertwined with colored electric bulbs, hung from all light poles in the business district of Bellevue will be part of the festive decoration scheme for the holiday season, the borough Board of Trade has decided.

Two wreaths will be suspended from opposite sides of each of 40 poles that the decorations may be seen by motorists going in either direction along Lincoln avenue. Streamers of colored lights will add to the Yuletide effect.

The North Boroughs Real Estate Board has offered to co-operate by providing an appropriate decoration at the Bellevue end of the High Bridge. This likely will consist of an arch of lights or rows of brilliantly lighted Christmas trees on each side of the approach.

Residents of Lincoln avenue will be called by telephone this week and asked to place lighted Christmas trees on front porches or lawns as many have done heretofore, that the thoroughfare, which is part of the Lincoln highway, may emblazon the spirit of Christmas.

Christmas Checks Stolen at Crafton

Christmas savings fund checks for $200 were stolen from the home of Richard Hancock, 52 Dinsmore avenue, Crafton. Hancock reported to county detectives yesterday. The thief jimmied a window while the Hancock family was absent last night.

ALLEGHENY U. P. PRESBYTERY FOR MERGER

What is regarded as a significant step toward merger of Presbyterian bodies in America was taken at a meeting yesterday of the Allegheny Presbytery of the United Presbyterian Church, which voted not only to merge with the Southern Presbyterians, but to extend the scope of union to all other Presbyterian churches.

VOTE 3 TO 1

The vote of presbytery was unanimous for union with the Southern Presbyterians, subject to amendments in the proposed basis of union. The vote for general merger was about 3 to 1 in favor.

The larger union would include the Northern Presbyterian church, otherwise known as the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., the Dutch Reformed and the German Reformed churches.

In view of some of the members of presbytery, the Northern Presbyterian church is not sufficiently conservative to warrant steps toward merger at this time. The Southern Presbyterians were described as more nearly in accord with the United Presbyterians on doctrinal questions.

The amendments suggested at yesterday's meeting to the basis of union with the Southern Presbyterians were such as would allow inclusion in the province of the church of the moral phases of governmental questions. It was explained that the Southern church regards the sphere of the church as purely spiritual, while the United Presbyterians have regarded it as proper to pass resolutions and take other action on public issues affecting the morals of the state and nation.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The Allegheny Presbytery followed in the steps of the Monongahela U. P. Presbytery, which recently voted in favor of merger with the Southern Presbyterians. The action of the two presbyteries will be forwarded to a commission of the United Presbyterian General Assembly having the proposed merger under consideration. The Southern Presbyterian Church numbers approximately 300,000 members, it was said, and the United Presbyterian about 170,000.

At yesterday's meeting, held in the Boulevard U. P. Church, near Keown Station, the following officers were elected for 1929: Moderator, the Rev. Dr. J. Alvin Orr, of First Church, North Side; vice moderator, the Rev. Dr. Ira G. McCreary, of Aspinwall; stated clerk, the Rev. Dr. O. H. Milligan, of Avalon.

Planes Crash, Pilots Saved by Parachutes

MT. CLEMENS, Mich., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Use of parachutes probably saved the lives of Lieuts. William L. Doolittle and Robert Schoenlien, Selfridge Field pilots, when the propeller of Schoenlien's plane sheared the tail from Doolittle's plane.

Newsboy Hit By Auto, In Hospital

GIRL MISSING, KIDNAPING FEARED

East Pittsburgh police today asked county detectives and the Missing Persons Bureau to aid in the search being made for Julia Lesniak, aged 16, of 154 Dixon avenue, East Pittsburgh, who has been missing since Saturday night. Members of the family could assign no reason for the girl's action and think it probable that she has been kidnaped.

She left home Saturday evening to go to a motion picture theater. Then she was wearing a blue hat, blue slip-on sweater, dark dress and black shoes. She is five feet, two inches tall, weighs 111 pounds and has blonde, bobbed hair and grey eyes.

METRO CHARTER OUTLINED

The Rev. Carl F. Lauer, president of the Dormont Rotary Club, at the regular weekly luncheon-meeting held in the Dormont Masonic Hall, West Liberty avenue, outlined to the 27 members present the preparation of the drafting of the new Metropolitan Plan charter, and asked them to give some thought, "get behind" their local Dormont Chamber of Commerce, help and cooperate with them in all their moves on that subject.

The "Rotarians" indorsed the community Christmas trees which will be erected by the Dormont Chamber of Commerce, and each attending member made a cash subscription towards the fund to make it a success. Their visitor was Dr. Leslie Waddill, a member of the Pittsburgh Rotary Club.

The board of directors' meeting followed the regular session.

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.

With planes equipped with three motors, equipped to light on land or water, with pilots as fine as any country possesses, why did their cabinet make the Prince spend two and a half weeks of antiquated travel?

It wasn't fair to him or his sick father. They knew planes are safe. Why, in five years we will look back on this incident as almost unbelievable. We will wonder why his advisors didn't make him walk across Europe for fear the train might wreck.

Well, the whole world knows that had it been left to him, he would have gone to that bedside the same as you or I would go to our father's. The quickest way. Because that's a game kid. You got to trust in aviation in war. Why can't you trust it in peace?

Yours, WILL.

Man Taken in Liquor Raid Held for Court

Arrested by constables who raided his home and reported finding a large still and a quantity of whisky Monday night, George Nossif, 32, of the Evergreen road, Shaler township, was held for court last night by Justice of the Peace Eugene Mehrlich, of Shaler township. He was charged with violating the Snyder act.

Six Seconds For Safety

"Some pedestrians who are always telling motorists to give them a chance, are noted for taking them," says the Pittsburgh Motor Club in its safety campaign to keep the sorrow of death and injury from Pittsburgh homes this Christmas, through the medium of safety "wise cracks," which may be easily remembered, during that important six seconds necessary to prevent an accident. Remember that 25,775 people were killed last year in this country in auto accidents.

CONSTANT CURLING MAKES A WOMAN'S HAIR BAD

Streaked Locks, Dull and Ugly Patches Look Worse Daily

TOUCHING UP GRAY DISAPPOINTING TOO

If one's hair has become thin and bad with constant curling, waving, permanents, or from other causes, and the gray hairs have turned ugly shades, ever darker with doctoring and tinting, it is time to quit a few days and give the hair roots, pigment glands and scalp a good vigorous massaging with the finger tips, dipped in a saucer of Lea's Hair Tonic.

Right away the scalp takes on a healthier tone—dandruff, if any, vanishes, and between massaging and the Lea's the hair grows out new and thicker and, strange as it may appear, just by rubbing Lea's into the scalp one begins noticing the gray hair resuming its natural shade of auburn, red, black or blonde as your case may be—nature seems to get back on the job of putting pigment and color into the off-colored locks, dull, faded patches and even locks that have been gray for years. It isn't a shocking change to astonish friends. Experts cannot detect its use, and, of course, patience and its nightly use for a couple of weeks is required, after which an application and thorough massaging twice a month more or less seems to keep nature up on her toes. Doesn't stain. Shampoo often as desired; then wave, curl, marcel or get a permanent and results are simply wonderful. Empirical tests in several thousand cases prove it can be steadily used year after year with unvarying results and success. To test, apply to hidden spot the size of a silver dollar a couple weeks and watch results. Lots of beauty shops buy Lea's Hair Tonic and apply under various names of their own, each day for three weeks and occasionally thereafter for reasonable fees, or ask for Lea's Hair Tonic at your druggist or send dollar bill to Lea Tonic Co., Brentwood, Md. Bottle and directions, return mail.

HER HUSBAND'S AWFUL COUGH ANNOYED EVERYONE NEAR HIM

His Cough Worried Family; Ordinary Remedies Did Him No Good.

COUGHED WORSE NIGHTS AND WHEN INDOORS

"My husband months ago saw a doctor who said he was all right but that cough clung to him night and day. He would come from outdoors into the house, Movie or Church and soon he would be hawking and coughing terribly and at night he was all stuffed up," declared Mrs. D. R. M——.

"He even took Cod Liver Oil, although he hated it. I finally told our doctor, who laughingly said: "Men are all alike and you can't blame him much, so go get him a big bottle of Lin-O-Nine, which is a nice tasting Flaxseed Oil, Cassia, Eucalyptus, Betula, Irish Moss and Glycerine remedy, far better than Cod Liver Oil and works quicker."

RESULTS WONDERFUL

"He liked Lin-O-Nine so well he took a spoonful before meals until the whole bottle was gone. It not only stopped the cough—it built him up fine. I never saw medicine work such wonders before. Children love to take it, too."

A cough is dangerous this time of year. Well-stocked druggists have Lin-O-Nine, 50c or $1.00 sizes, or send dollar bill to nationally famous Kerr Chemical Company, Brentwood, Md., for large bottle, parcels post.

(Note: We sell and recommend Lin-O-Nine).

Madge Dines With Michael And He Asks Her to Marry Him

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Madge Sayer, young and beautiful, lives in a dingy New York apartment with her father, an unsuccessful inventor, who always plans for riches that never come. Madge seeks thrills and gaiety, and longs for the intoxication of joyous living. At a party given by Frances Storrs, a friend, she meets Carroll Dudley, handsome artist, aviator and "man about town." Dudley lays siege to Madge, who is warned by Frances Storrs. She dines in his luxurious studio apartment. He takes her on a midnight airplane ride and following several days' rushing asks her to pose for him. Madge agrees on certain conditions. These he accepts, but after posing Dudley takes Madge in his arms and professes his love. She assures him of her own love and speaks of marriage which Dudley avoids. Over an accidentally "broken-in" wire Madge hears him called "a Prince of Cads." He allays her suspicions, but when he is out a woman appears in the studio "I am Mrs. Carroll Dudley," she announces to Madge. Carroll explains that love made him hide his marriage but now he is to be free. Madge accepts his explanations. Unexpectedly she returns from a visit to her father now staying in the country and finds that Carroll has exhibited her painting to a party of his friends. In a rage she rips the canvas with a stiletto and rushes into the street. She wakes up in a hospital room with flowers and nurses, and a message from the rich young Michael Winchester whose car had run her down. Winchester falls in love with Madge, and insists that she go to Atlantic City to recuperate. Dudley follows her there. When he insinuates that Winchester is keeping her she sends him away. Her father informs her that his last nickel is gone. Winchester has placed a car and chauffeur at her disposal. She drives out to a party where she meets Frances Storrs as her old New York friends. In repulsing one of the men Madge is again accused of being the rich Winchester's mistress.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"THAT depends upon what it is," she answered, looking straight before her. Was that which she had dreaded coming now?

"Do me the favor of dining with me tonight," he begged her. "Just you and I alone? I have something to say to you, May I call for you at 8?!!

As she accepted the invitation Madge knew inwardly that she would have to face things that night. She knew that things were coming to a showdown and therefore Deborah had been right.

After Winchester had dropped them at their apartment, Madge shut herself up alone in her room, on the excuse to her father that she was tired from the journey. She lay on the outside of her bed in the stifling June heat, with her eyes half closed.

She saw herself exquisitely gowned, receiving in her salon the homage of distinguished men. She pictured herself on the deck of Winchester's yacht, on horseback, perfectly mounted on a pure-bred Arab, and in hunting kit in the jungle of some strange land. There came also other pictures, where Madge was rising at the shrill summons of a cheap alarm clock in a dingily-furnished room, and the drab monotony of a hated job.

But before Winchester called for her, Madge knew what her answer would be. She could not—she could not!

"We are going to dine, if you don't mind, at home," Michael remarked as the smartly appointed car with two servants threaded its way through the evening traffic.

Madge knew what he was going to say. Had not Carroll persuaded her to dine in his studio? All men were alike, and their technique varied very little she reflected.

Well, she was prepared with her answer, and the millionaire society man would learn that there were somethings that his money could not buy.

Only one manservant, who seemed to have been in the family service for years, waited on them in the Murray Hill house. Michael talked impersonally of old editions and of a fairly recent trip to India; but Madge perceived that he was talking merely to bridge over the time until he would make the glittering offer he had in mind.

At last dinner was over, and Michael led Madge into the old-fashioned drawing-room. He was particular that she would sit on one certain chair.

He seemed nervous, but at last he began almost abruptly.

"Madge, I have asked you to come here to my home, and I wanted you to sit in that particular chair. Do you know why?"

Madge looked at him uncomprehendingly.

Michael knelt by her side, taking her hand in his.

"Because, my dear," he went on reverently, "my father told me that my mother was sitting in that same chair when he told her how he loved her. I wanted you to sit there to learn what you may know already—that I love you. I wanted you here while I ask you to be my wife."

There was a little shocked silence She looked down on him, her large violet eyes wide with astonishment. She had doubted him. In her heart she had tried him and found him guilty, while all the time nothing but the highest chivalry had prompted his generosity. And suddenly those wide-open eyes were blurred with tears— grateful tears.

"Madge, my dear," Michael went on, "I know that you can't love me, yet. Why should you? But Madge, though I suppose it has been said all down through the ages, don't you think I could love enough for two?"

"Oh Michael—" she began, but he interrupted her.

"I've been so lonely, my dear—searching for my ideal—searching, and never finding, until that clumsy fool, Collins—God bless the fellow!— ran into you. And I'm glad he did, my darling, or I might never have found you. But can't you see how lonely I have been—shut away, a prisoner behind my wall of gold? You would take pity on a hard-luck poverty case, but what about the lonely rich man, cut off from association with his fellows by the barrier of his wealth? Madge, marry me! And even if I can't make you love me, and I believe I can, at least I can protect you and make you happy. Won't you, dear?" He broke off, burying his face against her knee.

Instinctively her hand went out to caress his hair. The dear he had been! The darling! And the wrong she had done him—doubting, suspicious little cat that she had been! For a moment a feeble flame of love for Michael flared up in her heart, only to die away again with the thought of Carroll. Could she ever go to Michael as his bride as she could have gone to Carroll?

"Don't answer me now," Michael said, as he rose and stood looking down at her flower-face. "I want you, my dear—want you as my wife, but I don't want to take advantage of you and your sweetness. It's a difficult thing to say, but I'm going to say it," he went on with rare chivalry, "but you don't, with me, my dear, have to choose between marrying me—and—oh, the horror of poverty. This cursed money comes into everything, doesn't it? But badly as I want you, do remember that your father has a fairly decent job and also that if there were no such person as Madge, the office managing my estate should consider itself lucky to have found him."

He lied, and Madge knew that he lied, and a spring of gratitude welled up in her heart for the very gallantry of that lie. She resolved that she would reward him at least by pretending to believe the man who "lied like a gentleman."

"I don't know what to say to you, Michael," she said in a low, sweet voice, "except that you should have lived in the time of King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table. I don't know what to say."

At 11 o'clock, Michael drove Madge back to the ugly block in which she lived, and as the car turned into it, he took her hand in his.

"You know I want you to marry me more than anything else on earth, but even if you decide not to, darling, can't you let me banish surroundings like these from your life? You behave as though you were dying of thirst on a desert and then came to a spring that I own—a spring that sends out so much more water than I can use—and yet won't let me give you a cupful. Take time over your decision, but know that in either case, I am only here to serve you."

During the next two days, Madge had plenty of time in which to think. Naturally, she consulted with Frances, whose advice was poignantly brief.

"I've heard of fool-women, and have met a few she-morons in my time," Frances had summed it up, "but if you turn down Michael Winchester, you will establish a record in dumbness."

On the third day, Michael telephoned.

"Lunch with me," he begged.

And when that charming meal was over, Michael was pressing for his answer.

"Michael, you are such a dear," Madge told him. "But I've got to tell you that while I think you the whitest man I ever knew, you don't—you don't thrill me."

"Little Madge," he said tenderly, "Don't you know that love is much more than thrills? It's made up of lots of unselfishness in it. That's the base. Tenderness too, and understanding. Companionship is essential. You have to like being with the other, and I am vain enough to believe that at least you like to be with me. If thrills also enter in you have a perfect love. Won't you trust me with your precious self, and let us see if a real and abiding love does not later on grow up in your heart? Madge, my sweet!"

To be continued Tomorrow.

HONestly, my dear, I was TOO imPRESSED because you KNOW how SNOOTY he's always been to EV'ry one of my beaux except ARab? Well, ANYways, my dear, the other night when BULL staggered round to see me the mutt GREEted him with the USual hospitable SNARLS and things, and I TOLD Bull how FRANtic I was, about the situation and how fed UP I was having to see ARab all the time because the MUTT wouldn't stand for my seeing anybody ELSE. But, my dear, it was TOO CRYPtic because about two SEConds after Bull and I'd enSCONSED ourselves VAGUEly on the comPANIonate COUCH effect, PUPsy-wups all of a SUDden calmed DOWN comPLETEly and was MEEK as a LAMB for the REST of the EVEning—can you COPE with it? ACtually, my dear, Im comPLETEly baffled and nonPLUSSED about the situation because CAN it BE that BULL has some secret POWer over DOGS or something? I mean if he HAS, my dear, I wish he'd exERT it over his OWN dogs when he's attempting to DANCE, my dear, but ANYways I think it's TOO mysTERious about PUPsy-wups SUDdenly acCEPTing Bull as an Equal all of a sudden, my dear, because I HONestly think he's LOADS more intelligent than BULL, my dear—I mean I ACtually DO!"

GLENN WRIGHT TRADED TO DODGERS

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Wright Trade Helpful.
Petty Fills Buc Want.
Best Year Under Bush.

Pirates After French.
Frisch At Hot Corner.
Collodi Winning Berth.

CORSAIRS GET NEEDED MOUND ACE

THOUGH the baseball fans of the Pittsburgh district, like the Pirate chiefs themselves, would have preferred to get Travis Jackson, the Giant shortstop, in exchange for Glenn Wright, they probably will approve the trading of Glenn for Pitcher Jess Petty and Infielder Harry Riconda, of Brooklyn, as the best deal possible under the circumstances, inasmuch as New York refused to part with Jackson and it was deemed necessary to dispose of Wright.

Jess Petty

Possibly there was a time when the Pittsburgh club would not have entertained the idea of making such a trade as was put through last night in New York, Wright was then one of the most important parts of the Buccaneer machine. Indeed, he still must be rated one of the best ball players in the country, when he is attending strictly to business and is going in his true stride, as he is a great fielder and thrower and a hard and timely batsman who will add a real punch to any attack.

But during the last couple of years, the big shortstop lost considerable of his value to the Pittsburgh club, and further developments in the closing stages of the 1928 season left the advisability of keeping him longer open to question. Sometimes in baseball there are items other than straight playing values to be considered.

WRIGHT may settle down and recover his old form in Brooklyn. He has the best wishes of Pittsburgh fans for prolonged success there and or elsewhere. But there appeared to be little hope that he would ever get going again here at his best gait, and under the existing conditions the trade looks like one that ought to help the Pirates, just as it may help the Robins as well.

The main angle that warranted the swap from a Pittsburgh viewpoint, was that the Bucs needed new pitching strength for next year more than anything else. And they were particularly in need of a top-notch left-hander. In Petty they have obtained a flinger who has been generally recognized as the best southpaw in the National League ever since he went to the Dodgers from Indianapolis for the season of 1925. Riconda may be termed only a fair ball player, and his batting average of .224 for 1928 is by no means impressive, but he may be of service in infield utility roles. It is understood that Manager Donie Bush wanted a Brooklyn infielder other than Riconda in the exchange, but had consent to different terms in order to get the one Dodger he chiefly desired—Petty.

PETTY'S ability as a pitcher is attested by the fact that though the Robins finished in sixth place in all four years of his membership, and had admittedly the weakest attack in the senior circuit, he failed in only one year to win as many games as he lost. That was in 1927, when he won 13 and lost 18. In 1925 he won 8 and lost 9, in 1926 he won 17 and lost 17, and this year he won 16 and lost 14, a better percentage than his club made.

It has been said that Petty is not the easiest player in the majors to handle at times, but that Bush knows his man and how to keep him in top form is indicated by the fact that the star southpaw had the best season of his life under Donie's managership in Indianapolis in 1924, when he won 29 games and lost only eight.

Glenn Wright

IT IS true that Petty is not a spring chicken, by any means, as he was 34 years old on November 23 last, but that is no bar to a long period of usefulness to the Pirates when the ages of some of the other pitchers who are still considered aces in the big show are considered. Herb Pennock is expected to come back and be the leading lefthand star of the Yankees again next year, yet he is nine months older than Petty. Eppa Rixey and Adolfo Luque are two years older than Jess, and Dazzy Vance, Burleigh Grimes and Jess Haines are one year older, not to mention Clarence Mitchell, who is 37, and Arthur Nehf and Sam Jones, who are 36.

IF IT could be taken for granted that Pitcher George Uhle would come even close to regaining his old form after joining Detroit next spring there would be no question that the Tigers got the better of the deal, in which they gave Shortstop Jack Tavener and Pitcher Ken Holloway to Cleveland, as Uhle is a real star when in his best stride, whereas neither Tavener nor Holloway ranks above the average.

Uhle won 27 games for Cleveland in 1926 against only 11 lost, and in 1923 he won 26 and lost 16, but during the last two years he fell off in his work, his 1927 record being eight won and nine lost, while in 1928 he won 12 and lost 17. Many baseball men believe he will recover his old stride with a change of scenery. In any event the chance looks like a worth-while one for Detroit to take. Uhle, by the way, is one of the few major leaguers who jumped right into the big show from the sandlots and made good without minor league experience.

JOHN A. HEYDLER'S re-election as president of the National League for another four-year term had been so generally expected that the announcement did not amount to much more than a bulletin of routine business. Heydler had earned retention by his splendid service, and under the circumstances it was certain that none of the magnates in the senior loop would entertain any thought of making a change.

George Uhle

It will be noticed that the National League moguls in the parent circuit are as wily as ever, even in the matter of re-electing a president who has made good through a period of over 10 years, and still keep in the league constitution the clause that allows nothing larger than a four-year-term. Their argument is that if the incumbent proves a satisfactory official it is always an easy matter to re-elect him, and that if he does not give satisfaction the shorter his term the better.

ACCORDING to information received from reliable sources the Pittsburgh baseball club may not rest upon the acquisition of Jess Petty to provide the Bucs depending solely upon possible major league deals with new left-hand pitching strength. Even before Southpaw Lester Bartholomew was allowed to go to Kansas City in the dicker for Henry Meine the Pirate management was seeking more promising fork-hand slab talent in the minors, and it is said that as the result of negotiations begun at that time the Corsairs may soon obtain a portsider of considerable promise in the person of Larry French, of the Portland (Ore.) club in the Pacific Coast League. French has been touted by several scouts as being good enough for the majors, and so many other clubs have been after him that Pittsburgh will be forced to pay a fancy price for him, but it is understood that the deal is almost as good as closed.

ANNOUNCEMENT by President Sam Breadon, of the St. Louis National League Club, that the Cardinal management would not consider any offers for Frankie Frisch, but on the contrary was plan-

CHARLEY HYATT

Hyatt, who led the parade of intercollegiate basketball scorers last year and was conceded to be the best forward in the country, is back again—faster and better than ever. He will be closely watched by the boys in the Middle West when the Panthers invade the more or less sacred precincts of the Big Ten this week-end. They watched him last year, too—watched him make all sorts of baskets and lead Pitt to four victories in as many nights.

DONNELLI ELECTED CAPTAIN

By JESS CARVER.

WHO ever the gent was who tossed that bun just as the lights went out at the Duquesne University football banquet at the William Penn Hotel last night rounded out a perfect evening for this correspondent. Striking said correspondent squarely in the back of the head, it recalled to memory the days when buns weren't the only things they threw at football banquets.

But the bun tossing wasn't the big feature of last night's affair, which

DUKES ON WAY TO TOP WITH LAYDEN

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

AS the closing speaker at the Duquesne University football banquet in the William Penn Hotel last night, the Rev. Father M. A. Hehir, president of Duquesne University, said he had been dreaming a dream the last few nights of a bigger and better Duquesne University five years hence. By 1933, which will be his golden jubilee year as a priest, he said he saw in his dream a student body of 10,000, compared with 3,500 of today and the 40 students with which old Holy Ghost College got under way 51 years ago.

"They say young men see visions and old men dream dreams," Father Hehir said. "Well, that is my dream. There will be great changes in the next five years. And among them we shall see our football team play Pitt and Carnegie Tech in the Bowl, and beat them, too. We shall see, in that golden jubilee year, the largest crowd ever in the Bowl, when the Dukes meet Pitt or Tech, and we will win. Yes, we are on the threshold of a great growth."

At his last words, he electrified the gathering with the announcement that he had just signed, on behalf of the faculty of the university, a contract retaining the services of Elmer Layden, former Notre Dame star, as head coach for the next five years. Layden finished his second season as coach here during the past campaign, and his team lost only one game in nine played, to Geneva, 7-0, and among its feats recorded a victory over Wash-Jeff in its first crack at a district major opponent.

Here we have Doc Carlson and his gang—the players who will be counted on most to carry on the good work inaugurated last season. The Panthers leave tonight for the Middle West. They play their opening game against Butler College at Indianapolis tomorrow night. On Friday, they play Northwestern, on Saturday, Wisconsin, and, next Monday, Ohio State.

DAVIES BARS WOLGAST AS OPPONENT

Willie Davies, the Charleroi flyweight, apparently wants no more of Midget Wolgast's game. He has been offered a match for Christmas afternoon with the Philadelphia jumping-jack in the Jolly Bowl, New Castle, where he has engaged in several battles in recent months, but he turned down Wolgast flat. His manager, Jim Buchanan, of Charleroi, notified the promoter that Davies will not fight Wolgast again unless the latter changes his style, which seemingly is out of the question.

Wolgast, who does a lot of fast maneuvering and light tapping in the ring, has grabbed a few decisions over Davies and also has proved an enigma for other opponents.

In the event Davies persists in refusing to box Wolgast, Promoter Jolly will sign another opponent for Wolgast. He said today he would not accede to Davies' demand for another opponent.

Motor Square Garden is working on its card for Christmas afternoon. It still is seeking an opponent for Andy Martin, the Boston featherweight, in the main bout, and, if this match does not materialize, probably will sign Cuddy DeMarco and Rudy Ceder for the windup.

Jock Malone, the veteran middleweight of St. Paul, boxes Jack Gibbs in a 10-round bout at San Francisco tonight.

Garfield Johnson, local Negro heavyweight, substituted on short notice for Maxie Rosebloom, of New York, in his third bout with Osk Till at Buffalo Monday night and put up a hectic 10-round battle. Frank Bachman, manager of Rosenbloom, reported to the promoter that Maxie had an argument with him in New York and refused to go through with the match.

Howard Mayberry, of Donora, is confident he will put an end to the STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Dec. 12.—John K. McClements, of Pittsburgh, has been elected manager of the Penn State football team for 1929. Sterling E. Brown, of Pittsburgh; Ralph Hutchinson, of Philadelphia, and Robert Young, of Chicago, Ill., were chosen as first assistant managers.

DUKES LOSE A. A. HEAD

While Duquesne University was making merry last night at its banquet, rejoicing over the signing of Elmer Layden as grid coach for another five years and electing Buff Donnelli 1929 grid leader, there was much cause for regret, for it was revealed that the Rev. Henry McDermott, registrar and vice president of the university since 1902, who also is head of the Duquesne University Athletic Association, has left his post.

After the banquet was concluded, Father McDermott entrained for the Holy Ghost Seminary at Ferndale, Mass., where he succeeds the Rev. James Riley, Duquesne alumnus, as superintendent. He has been with Duquesne since 1887 and has served the local institution in various capacities for more than 41 years.

No successor has been announced as yet.

TEMPLE ELECTS LEADER

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Grover Wearshing, all-round Temple University athlete, was elected captain of the 1929 football team at a meeting of the letter men last night. He lives in Camden, N. J., and plays halfback.

TECH TO PLAY ON COAST NEXT FALL

Carnegie Tech will make another trip to the far flung slopes of the Pacific in 1929. The Tartans, who journeyed West and North in '27, meeting the Oregon Aggies at Multnomah, Ore., will go West and South nexa fall, and will clash with the University of Southern California Trojans in the Coliseum at Los Angeles on December 14.

This contest, which will be a regularly scheduled one for the Tartans, was arranged yesterday by Graduate Manager Clarence (Buddy) Overend, of Carnegie, and Gwynn Wilson, graduate manager of U. S. C., after a long distance telephone conversation.

The Tartans will entrain for the coast four days before the game. The trip will be the second in history to the West coast for Tech. The one to Oregon last year was the ice-breaker.

U. S. C. CARDS DARTMOUTH

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 12.—(INS.)—Gwynn Wilson, athletic manager for Southern California, today is reported to have signed up Dartmouth for a game in Los Angeles in 1930. The Hanover College, it is understood, did not ask for a return game.

It was learned from Howard Jones, Trojan coach, that Southern California and Notre Dame plan to sign a five-year agreement when their present contract expires next year. Carnegie Tech announces that it has definitely signed to play the Trojans on December 14, 1929.

HOPPE OFF TO TOURNEY

Whyte to Lead Tiger Eleven Next Fall

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 12—(AP.)—John Reed Whyte, of Princeton, N. J., has been elected to captain the Princeton varsity football team next season. The election of Whyte, who plays tackle, was in accordance with the tradition that has sprung up in Princeton since the war that a junior linesman be named the captain.

The professionals compete for a gold cup donated by Samuel Ryder to stimulate international play between professionals. The cup is now in the United States as a result of a victory, 9½ to 2½, at Worcester, Mass., in June, 1927.

The British Ryder cup team for 1929 has not been selected. The United States team will be headed by Walter Hagen.

Bowlers in Church Loops Plan Tourney

Rivalry has become so keen among bowlers in Squirrel Hill and Greenfield church leagues that the officers have arranged a tournament to decide supremacy. The tournament will be held tomorrow evening on the Squirrel Hill alleys, according to an announcement by Lou Golvash, manager.

All season long the teams in the various church leagues have vied for high honors and the competition has come to the point where they must "fight it out." Several churches will be represented, among them the Mary S. Brown M. E., Greenfield Presbyterian and Squirrel Hill Christian.

LEAVES $1,115,000

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—An appraisal filed yesterday showed that the estate of Charles H. Ebbets, late president of the Brooklyn National League baseball club, had a net value of $1,115,257. His interest in the Brooklyn club was given as $833,846. The bulk of the estate was left to the widow, Mrs. Grace Slade Ebbets.

RELIANCE OUT TO TAKE LEAD TONIGHT

By JULIUS LEVIN.

BENT on taking sole possession of first place in the Allegheny County League, the Reliance Life team, victor over the Miele-Franchinas in an extra period battle Monday night, will open its home season tonight when it engages the Rauh Club on the One Hundred and Seventy-sixth Field Artillery Armory floor. The Reliance quintet at present is tied for first place with the Duquesne Lafayettes and a victory tonight will give Charley Price's passers undisputed possession of the lead, as the Lafayettes are not scheduled to play.

Over at the South Side Market House the two losers in the opening Allegheny County League games, the Miele-Franchinas and Goldensons, will clash in a league encounter. Both clubs were below form in the inaugural battle and are expected to show a decided improvement tonight.

RELIANCE SURPRISES

One of the biggest surprises of the opening Allegheny County League games was the fine exhibition given by the Reliance Life team. Charley Price's aggregation was given a tough assignment in meeting the Miele-Franchina combine at the outset, but the downtowners were equal to the task, defeating the uptowners in a game that required five minutes of extra time.

Price has gathered together an array of basketball talent that compares favorably with the best engaged in professional basketball hereabouts and many fans will be disappointed if his team doesn't finish among the leaders. Ski Twyman, Soapy Heyl, Mike Carrick, Chick Hood and Newell form a starting lineup that is certain to give a good acount of itself in league battles this winter.

Conspicuous in the excellent showing of the Young Men's Hebrew Association quintet, a team that stands an excellent chance of winning the amateur championship this winter, is Dave Olbum, who has been filling in at center in a manner that leaves no room for complaint.

Originally a guard, Olbum was shifted to the pivot position when Coach Scher found himself without a capable center this winter. Despite the change in positions, Olburn has played a remarkable game for the Bellefielders.

A hustler at all times and above all a team worker, Olburn is the type of a player who is a credit to any basketball team. The Bellefielders were believed to be somewhat weak at the important center position, but judging by the manner in which Olbum has conducted himself, this breach has been filled to the satisfaction of all.

Undefeated in the Greater Pittsburgh Institutional League race to date, the Y. M. H. A. will make an attempt to strengthen its hold on first place tonight when it meets Kingsley House on the latter's floor in a league battle. Coach Fred Vetter has developed a powerful, smooth-working floor machine and Scher's charges are likely to find themselves up against a tough opponent tonight. In the other league game carded tonight, East Liberty Y appears at Heinz House.

DRIBBLES

Kenmoton F. McNutt, hustling manager of the Duquesne Light team of the Allegheny County and Commercial-Industrial Leagues, made a 10-strike when he obtained the services of the Red McMahan Club, popular South Side junior team, for the preliminaries to all County League games at the Market House.

One game is scheduled in the West Penn League tonight, Dave Shermer taking his McKeesport Hirschbergs to Falcon Hall, Eighteenth street and Carey way, for a battle with the South Side Falcons.

Preparations have been made to handle a large crowd at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Braddock tonight when the Motty Club engages Immaculate Heart in a Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League contest.

Johnny Billock has been re-elected captain of the North Side "R" Club, which meets the strong Ambridge "R" Club tonight at Ambridge. A large crowd of supporters will accompany the team to the valley game. The North Siders want games abroad with light first-class teams. Write J. D. Kokosh, 846 Grand avenue, North Side, or call Linden 5043-J, between 5 and 7 p. m.

RAUHS TO MEET LIGHT

The Duquesne Light passers, who help the Rauhs open their home season in the Allegheny County League tomorrow night, are confident they can take the measure of the Columbus Temple stars. The Light passers are familiar with the Rauhs' style of play, and are building a strong defense to cope with their attack. Saturday night the Light passers open their home season in the County League by meeting the Duquesne Lafayettes.

The Lou Gordons, last year junior champions, will meet Aliquippa High School tomorrow night in the preliminary to the Rauh-Duquesne Light battle at Columbus Temple.

The Tarentum Y has organized a first-class independent team and will meet two college rivals next week, according to Manager C. B. Schwartz. Monday night Tarentum will meet Duquesne University, while Friday will find Geneva College as the attraction. Teams desiring games write C. B. Schwartz, the Valley Daily News, Tarentum, Pa., or call Tarentum 115 during the day or 196 at night.

The Johnstown Collegians will be represented on the floor this winter by a first-class team. Games are desired at home and abroad. Write John Salem, 727 Railroad street, Johnstown, Pa.

James F. Malone, president of city council, will toss up the first ball in the Goldenson-Miele-Franchina game at the South Side Market House tonight. The Goldenson Vanities will meet the Westinghouse girls in the preliminary game starting at 8 o'clock.

CHARLEROI ASKS MID-ATLANTIC BE REVAMPED

CHARLEROI, Pa., Dec. 12.—There is no intention, at this time, of a break by the Charleroi Governors from the fold of the Middle Atlantic League. However, at the league meeting which is to be held here January 1, Charleroi will demand that there be an immediate housecleaning of the "weak sisters" who are making payrolls hard to meet.

Scottdale, Jeanette, Fairmont and Clarksburg are mentioned as requiring revivals on the part of their fans or else drop from the league entirely.

McKeesport, Altoona and Uniontown are seeking franchises and are willing to pay good prices for any which may be available.

DAILY CRITICIZED

Charleroi has joined Wheeling in criticizing the circuit's head, President Elmer T. Daily, of Windber, Pa., for permitting sadly weakened clubs to remain in the league and live off the earnings of the clubs which draw good attendance.

With a season of bad weather behind them, in which the owners of the club "went on the nut" for a total of $5,000, the remarks which are being made here are not exactly kindly toward the lesser brethren which comprise the Middle Atlantic circuit.

Charleroi is the baby club in the league, but it was well on the way to making money last season had it not been for long enforced trips into the communities where Middle Atlantic baseball crowds are not.

Mayberry is one of the smartest boxers in the local ranks. He has fought the best of them throughout the United States and Canada and his seasoning may prove too much for Adelman.

Two of the preliminaries have been arranged for the McKeesport show. Leo Kyburski, of Swissvale, is to box Jack Unglo, of Etna, in the semi-final, and Howard Williams, of Swissvale, is paired with Johnny Brown, of Lawrenceville, for the second event.

Francis Evans, of Blythesdale, and John Collins, of the Superior A. C., heavyweights, will meet in one of the bouts under the auspices of the Homewood-Brushton Boosters' Club to raise funds for the Homewood-Brushton club of the Allegheny County Baseball League, to be held in the Penn Armory, East End, Friday evening.

McLain, Iowa Star, May Enter Tech

Commenting on the report that Myles McLain, University of Iowa Indian fullback, contemplates entering Carnegie Tech next year, Clarence Overend, graduate manager of athletics at Tech, said that McLain would be welcomed by the Tartans, but that it was not likely that he could conform it its eligibility rules.

McLain recently was banned from Western Conference football competition because of having engaged in three years of varsity competition, two at Haskell Institute and one at Iowa. He is understood to have expressed a desire to transfer to some Eastern college where he can continue to play football.

LAYDEN SIGNED

was one of the liveliest and most enjoyable grid banquets that has been staged in this town for some moons. Two surprises were handed the assembled victual chasers. The first was the re-election of Aldo (Buff) Donnelli as captain of the Duquesne eleven for 1929 and the announcement by the Very Rev. M. A. Hehir, president of the institution, that Elmer Layden had been signed to a five-year contract. Ho, ho, did that bring down the house? Dun't esk!

As far as I could discover, the bun that socked me (though I'm certain it was aimed at Jimmy Costin) was the only one of the evening. Inasmuch as Dr. C. B. (Razz) Qualley was perched two tables to my left, I rather looked for such an interruption. So that is that.

The Duquesne Alumni Association, sponsor of the affair, spared no pains or expense to make the fete a successful one. The speakers were all good, the music stirring, the company colorful and the food delicious and plentiful. What more can be said?

RIES TOASTMASTER

W. F. Ries, Jr., as toastmaster, timekeeper the program named him, introduced the speakers of the evening. Coach Layden, Capt. Donnelli, Coach Bill Roper of Princeton University, and President Hehir. These gentlemen spoke in the order named. Coach Roper, as the principal talker of the evening, mixed facts and yarns in just the right degree to establish himself here as just as good an after dinner talker as he is a football coach. His message was cordial, entertaining and very much to the point. Roper was generous in his praise of Elmer Layden, both as a coach and a player, and congratulated the football team on its splendid record of the past season.

The 24 footballers who were awarded their varsity "D's" expressed their confidence and regard for Buff Donnelli by re-electing him captain for another year. He was introduced to the assemblage in a clever manner, being carried from behind a movie screen, on which pictures of one of the Duke triumphs was being shown, on the shoulders of his teammates.

The signing of Layden to a five-year contract may be regarded as one of the biggest steps that Duquesne has taken towards a place in national football spotlight. Layden has delivered the goods, even in the two short years he has been at Duquesne, and has given promise of developing into every bit as good a coach as he was a star back at Notre Dame.

MANY HONOR GUESTS

Honor guests included Clarence G. Overend, graduate manager of athletics at Carnegie Tech, and Coach Bob Waddell, of the Tartan grid squad; Director of Athletics W. Don Harrison, of Pitt; Capt. Alex Fox, of the Pitt eleven; Leo Griffiths, head of the Notre Dame Alumni Association of Pittsburgh; Pat Scanlon, end on the '28 Pitt varsity squad; Wid Tarr, Bethany College track and football star; Father Hnry McDermott, chairman of the Duquesne University Athletic Association, and members of the Pittsburgh Referee's Association, headed by Cal Bolster.

The following players were awarded letters: Capt. Donnelli, Joe McCarthy, Ed Stevens, Walter Summer, Earl Turk, Chrles (Bud) DeVenny, Jim O'Donnell, Jack Clark, Joe Czinki, John Burns, Sammy Pratt, Pat Lally, Joe Guerrier, Tom Kirby, Mike Ferrare, Ted Amman, Paul McNerney, Maurice Silverstein, Howard McCormick, Ganzy Benedict, Joe Kelleher, Ted Todd, Kass Kolvachek, Lou Skender.

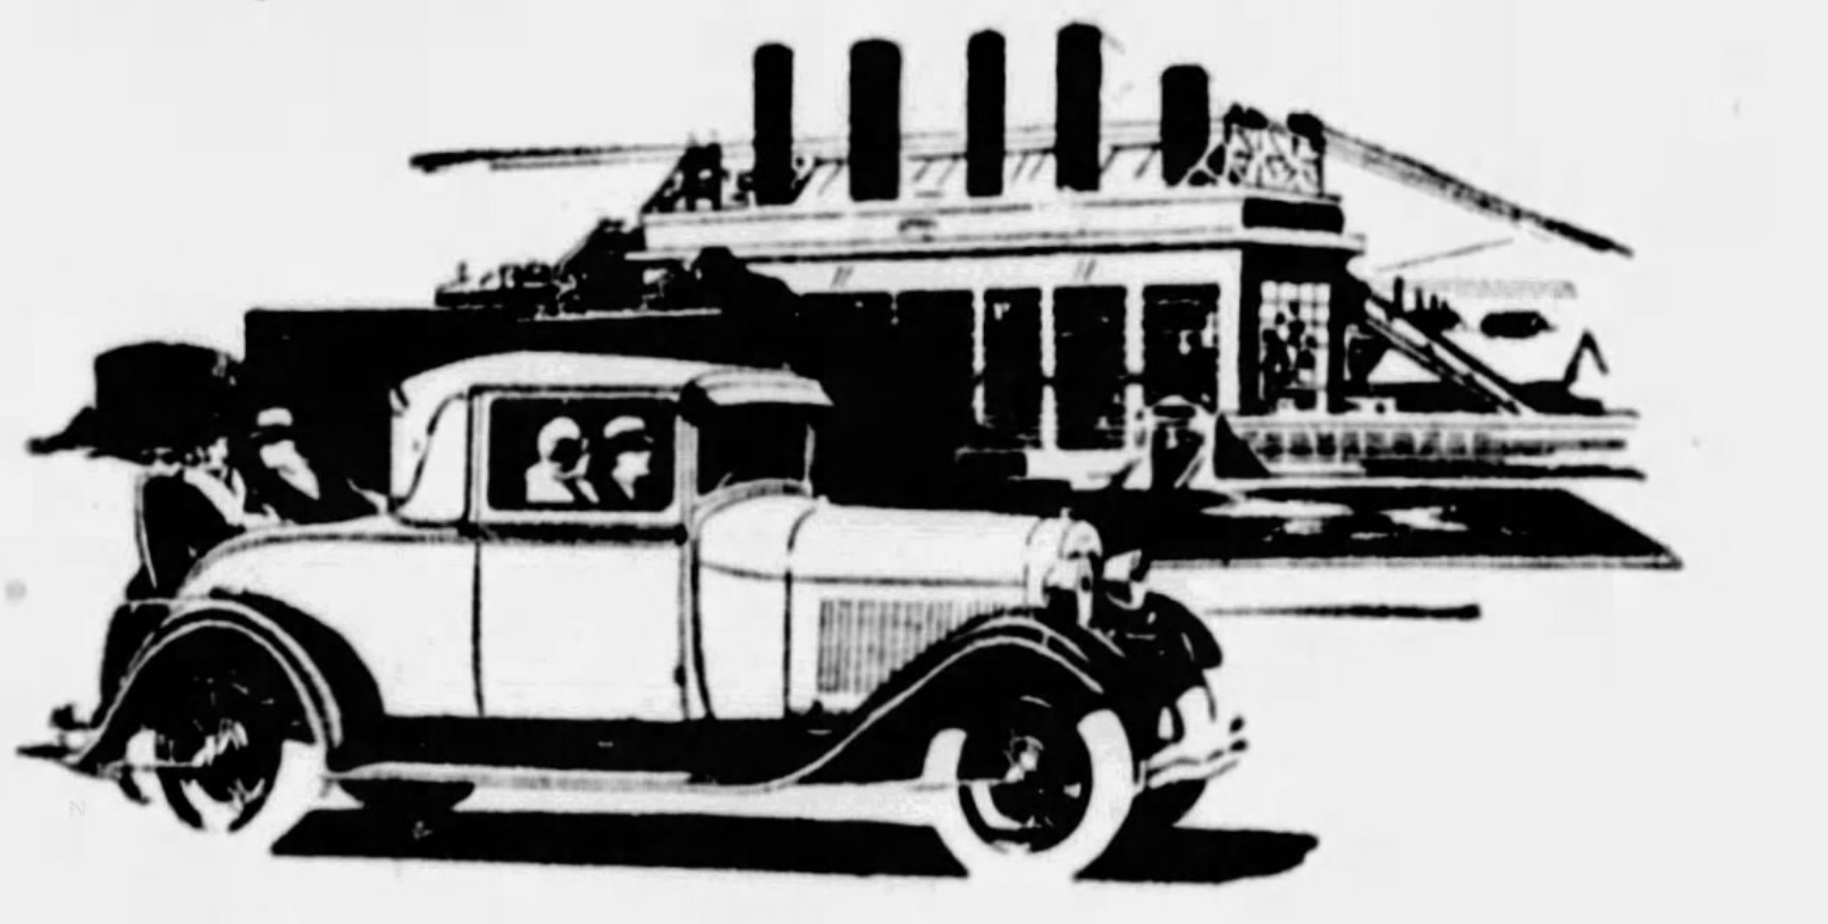
The utilities of a city are combined in your motor car



YOUR automobile is something like a miniature city. There is an electric light and power system, a water system, a fuel system.

In the new Ford, you will find each of these systems of the latest design and built of the best materials. Every part has been made to serve you faithfully and well and at a minimum of trouble and expense.

Take, for example, the generator—one of the most important parts of the electrical system which supplies the current for lighting and for engine ignition.

In the new Ford, the generator is of the power-house type and is distinctive in many features. It has been specially designed to prevent most forms of trouble. Oiling is necessary only once a year. About the only thing you need do is to have the charging rate changed as the seasons change.

Closely allied to the electrical system is the ignition system. It, too, is of new mechanical design in the new Ford. There is but one high tension cable and that connects the coil with the distributor. Even cables from the distributor to the spark plugs have been eliminated. Special care has also been taken to make the distributor water-proof, thus preventing short circuits from rain, etc.

The electrical and ignition systems of the new Ford are so simple in design and so carefully made that they will give you surprisingly little trouble. Yet that doesn't mean they should be neglected. Certain little attentions are needed from time to time.

The storage battery should be given water and the connections kept clean. The generator charging rate should be changed as indicated. Spark plugs should be cleaned at regular intervals. Distributor points should also be kept clean and the distributor cam given a light film of vaseline every 2000 miles.

These are just little things, but they mean a great deal to your car. You can have them looked after at very small cost by the Ford dealer when you take the car in for oiling and greasing.

A thorough checking-up at regular intervals will lengthen the life of your car and give you many thousands of miles of carefree, economical motoring.

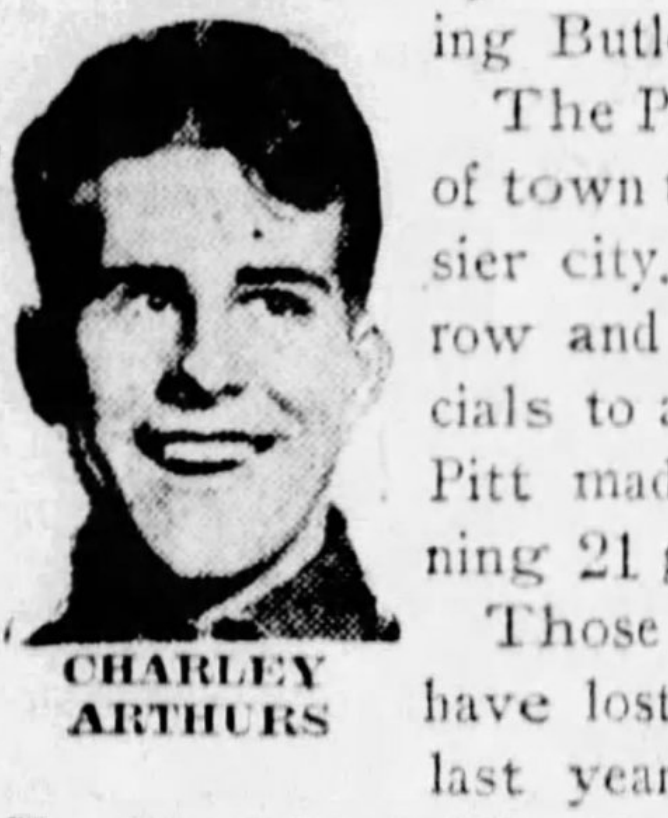
PANTHER CAGERS OFF FOR WEST TONIGHT

By JESS CARVER

SOME of the sure-thing boys who aren't in hiding until the Rothstein case is settled, are chirping wagers that Pitt's varsity basketball team will not do better than get an even break on the four-game invasion of the Middle West which opens tomorrow night, with the Panthers playing Butler College at Indianapolis.



CHARLEY ARTHURS

The Panthers will be caged and hauled out of town tonight and will go directly to the Hoosier city. Butler is opening a new gym tomorrow and Pitt was selected by the school officials to assist in the dedicatory ceremonies. Pitt made itself one sweet reputation by winning 21 games last year without a defeat.

Those sure-thing boys who are out seem to have lost some of the regard they had for Pitt last year, chiefly because the fact that Sykes Reed and Stash Wrobleski have graduated and won't be in the lineup this season. They seem to forget that Charley Hyatt, Capt. Gyp. Wunderlich and Paul Zehfuss still have both legs and are still able to get around.

They are discounting the fact that there are ball players of the caliber of Les Cohen, Charley Arthurs, Willie (Two Points) Arture, Tony Ferrarro, Rube Anderson and the clever Eddie Baker, any one of whom would be a welcome addition to, most any man's team, are ready to break into the lineup.

Butler and Wisconsin are the teams figured to take the measure of Pitt. The other opponents that are to be met on this trip, Ohio State and the Purple quintet of Northwestern, are not gaining much support.

PITT IN SHAPE

Pitt will have one advantage over the three Big Ten opponents. The boys are near mid-season form, having been training and out for drill since October. The Conference fives which depend to some extent on football players have only been in training for about a month. Those football men usually take some little time to get into the swing of things.

Doc Carlson will chaperone 10 men on the western jaunt. Those certain to make the trip are Capt. Wunderlich, Hyatt, Zehfuss, Les Cohen, Arture, Baker, Ferrarro, and Charley Arthurs. Two more will be selected from Moritz, Milton Cohen, Alelo, Sandberg and Rube Anderson. Sandberg and Milt Cohen appear to stand the best chance of being included in the party.

The starting lineup against Butler tomorrow night will seem strange to Pittsburghers. Charley Hyatt is to desert his forward position and will be paired with Capt. Wunderlich at a guard. Arture and Zehfuss will get the call at the forwards and Les Cohen will be at center.

In pulling Hyatt back to a guard, Carlson figures on drawing one of the opposing defense men down the floor, in which event, Chipper Charley should be able to scoot down into the scoring zone and either get clear himself or force some of the defenders to leave Zehfuss, Cohen or Arture in order to cover him. The tough part of this Pitt club is that after you have one good man covered you only have to worry about four more.

PITCHERS MAY BE RELIEVED OF BATTING

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—A suggestion for the most radical change in the rules of baseball since foul balls were made strikes in 1901, was brought before the National League at its annual meeting yesterday. If the proposal, put forward by President John A. Heydler, is approved by the American League and the rules committee, weak hitting pitchers will become non-hitting pitchers.

President Heydler's proposal, which met with the favor of the National League club presidents, probably will be brought up at the joint meeting of the two major leagues in Chicago tomorrow. If the American League falls in line, the rules committee could be called to meet and order the changes before the next playing season.

Under the plan as outlined a manager before a game would designate a player to take the pitcher's turn at bat throughout the game. The same player would have to appear as batsman in the place in the batting order reserved for the pitcher, even if a change of pitchers was ordered. The pitcher would be relieved of all batting and baserunning duties if his manager so willed. It would not be compulsory, however, and if a manager had faith in the batting ability of his pitcher he could permit him to take his chances with the rest.

On the face of the suggestion, it is a move in favor of the pitcher in that he can conserve his energies for pitching and fielding duties and will not be subjected to possible injury while batting. However, there is another side. The average pitcher is a weak batsman and in many games a pitcher has to dispose of only eight hitters, his opponent on the pitching mound not furnishing a very serious threat. If the new rule is put into effect, pitchers will find nine regular batsmen opposing them every day.

Robins Release Statz; Tigers Obtain Uhle

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Arnoid (Jigger) Statz, fleet outfielder, was released to the Los Angeles Club in the Pacific Coast League yesterday by the Brooklyn Dodgers. Statz, one of the best golfers in baseball, came to the National League club from the Coast League two seasons ago. Terms governing the deal were not announced.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—A trade in which Pitcher George Uhle, of the Cleveland Indians was sent to the Detroit Tigers in exchange for Shortstop Johnny Tavener and Pitcher Kenneth Holloway featured the opening of the annual meeting of American League club owners here yesterday. The sale of Johnny Neun, Detroit first baseman, to the Toledo Club of the American Association, also was announced.

Asked for Release, Joe Harris Says

FRANKLIN, Pa., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Joe Harris, who was given his unconditional release by the Brooklyn Robins yesterday, said at his home here that he had asked to be released under the 10-year rule. He said he had received an offer from a Pacific coast club, but would not say if he intended to sign. He made known, however, that he expected to sign with some club within a few days.

ning to shift him to third base for the 1929 season, did not cause any surprise in baseball circles.

Experienced fans never took any stock in the rumors that Frisch would be disposed of by the St. Louis club, as the Fordham Flash is admittedly one of the most valuable players in the big show and it was clear that the Redbird bosses could not afford to let him go in view of the present state of their infield. Third base will not be a new position to Frisch. He played it during the entire season of 1920 for the Giants, and was stationed at the hot corner part of the time in four of his seven other seasons on the New York team.

PETE COLLODI, who was a dependable second stringer on Chick Davies' Duquesne University basketball squad last season, may get a chance to break in as a regular forward during the coming campaign. He has shown enough in the action he has seen so far to indicate that he possesses varsity stuff.

Collodi is much in the same position as was Mike Getto on the 1927 Pitt football team. Mike, a truly great lineman in his own right, was kept on the bench because Bill Kern and Chet Wasmuth were "hitting it" too well. Neither could conscientiously be lifted. When Getto did get his chance, first against Nebraska and later against Stanford, he came through in fine style.

Pete Collodi

PETE has natural basketball ability. He is fast and a good shot. The experience he gained in the games in which he took part last winter will stand him in good stead should he be inserted into the varsity lineup this season—and if he continues to show the form he has displayed in his workouts so far, he'll be in there, beyond doubt. Collodi is a member of the varsity tennis team and a letter man. He prepped at Butler High School, where he played football, basketball and tennis.

followers of sports for its vision in retaining a coach of the proved ability of Layden, who has builded well with practically no foundation on which to buold when he came here. The faculty, as well as the alumni body, the moving impetus behind the renaissance of football on the Bluff, is showing the proper progressive spirit. And the players themselves deserve a word of praise for their action in re-electing Buff Donnelli, leader of this year's fine team, captain for next year. With a veteran squad back, the Layden system well grounded and Donnelli back at the helm again, things are looking up very decidedly for the Dukes, who, judging from the enthusiasm shown at the banquet last night, may be expected to fight to keep and better their new-found place in th sun.

The double-barreled, far-sighted action of retaining both Layden and Donnelli will hasten the day when the Dukes will be a member of a great local collegiate athletic triumvirate, supplantig the present duo of Pitt and Tech and fulfilling the dreams of the Rev. Father Hehir.

BILL ROPER, the Princeton coach, proved himself a forceful and entertaining speaker, in his principal address at the Dukes' banquet, and went over with a bang. He brought out some fine points of the value of football, which were enjoyed not only by those present, but also by a vast radio audience, which tuned in on WCAE. However, he made the usual coach's crack about the newspapers overemphasizing the ball-carriers in their accounts of the games, the while overlooking the work of the linemen and interfering backs. We fear we shall have something to say anent this subject one of these days. 'Twill be in the nature of a retort courteous. In fact, we'll get it off our chest tomorrow. Order your copy of your favorite newspaper now and avoid being killed in the rush. You will observe it doesn't take much to get a rise out of a newspaperman when his profession is thus attacked (or shall we gracefully say constructively criticized?) by an outsider. Anyway, more about that on the morrow. Yea, on the morrow.

It strikes us that the Pirates made a pretty fair bargain when they managed to get Pitcher Jess Petty and Harry Riconda in exchange for Glenn Wright, the once great shortstop, who has outlived his usefulness as a member of the local club. Pitchers are what the Pirates need more than anything else, and when they got Mr. Petty they obtained a southpaw of parts. Even without Riconda thrown in the fans would have no just cause for complaint.

THE following letter is self-explanatory:

"Sports Editor:—I wish to make a correction in regard to an article that was published in the Saturday issue of your paper concerning the presentation of an autographed handkerchief by Capt. Harpster, of Tech, at the South Hills High School football banquet.

"It was stated that Miss Sweeney was asked to dance, but refused to do so because of her physical condition. This is not true. Capt. Harpster merely gave the handkerchief as a remembrance of the evening and of the good time I apparently was having.

"The article has caused me much embarrassment and I am sure that Capt. Harpster would not have wished it to have been written up as a good samaritan act. Hoping to see the necessary correction in an early issue of your paper and occupying the space which the original article held, I am

"Yours truly,
"MARGARET SWEENEY,

The story referred to was based on information received from other persons in attendance at the dance and was cited as an instance of gallantry on the part of Harpster. The Sun-Telegraph regrets any annoyance or embarrassment Miss Sweeney may have incurred as a result of it, and is glad to print her communication.

Wright Goes to Robins in Trade For Jess Petty and Harry Riconda

Pirates. Coincident with this news came the announcement of the unconditional release by the Dodgers of Joe Harris, former Pirate.

The big swap involving the spread-eagle star of the Buccos infield and grey-thratched Jesse was completed in New York yesterday just before the National League officials, including Barney and Sam Dreyfuss and Donie Bush, left for Chicago to attend the joint meeting.

PETTY GOOD SOUTHPAW

The deal has been brewing for some time, but this is not the only transaction the Pittsburgh officials had worked on in the furtherance of a trade for Wright. Not so long ago the Pirates tried to make an exchange with the Giants, asking for Travis Jackson. McGraw, however, is said to have refused to part with his shortstopping star.

Wright apparently was not in the good favor of his employers during the closing days of the last campaign. When other teams learned that Glenn was on the market they moved to get him, but the Dodgers apparently had the best players to offer. No money was reported to have changed hands in the transaction.

Wright was a member of the Pirates through five seasons after being purchased from Kansas City. Petty is about eight years older than Glenn, but he is conceded to be one of the best left-handers in the league. Riconda has had several tryouts in the majors.

Forest Glenn Wright is hardly much more than a boy despite his many years of baseball service. Glenn was born in Archie, Mo., February 6, 1902, so that he will not have attained his twenty-seventh birthday until next February.

The broad-shouldered country youth spent his childhood days around his native state and in due time finished the grade and high schools. Later he was enrolled as a student at the University of Missouri. While Glenn was attending the college he played some little baseball, at least enough to make an impression on those who watched him. Kansas City owning an American Association franchise, it was somewhat natural that young Wright would get the attention of the agents of that team, and so in 1921 we find him with the Blues for a short spell.

The Kansas City management saw possibilities in the rangy collegian and he was farmed out to the Independence club of the Southwestern League, where he immediately began to sparkle. Playing 120 games for Independence, the youngster batted .316. Along about this time the Pittsburgh officials were "tipped off" concerning Wright, but the Pirates learned then that the rising youth was owned by the Blues. Undaunted by this knowledge the local owners dealt with Kansas City. Wright was recalled at the end of his first professional year and Barney Dreyfuss was able to procure an option on the youngster, the price to be paid being set at $40,000.

GLENN'S RISE STRIKING

Some time after the Pittsburgh club had secured its option, the New York Yankee scouts heard glowing pictures of Wright and a representative of the Huggins clan was sent to the scene. He learned that there was no chance to get Glenn, but the Buccos later learned that they saved as much money as they paid for the recruit in taking time by the forelock. The Yanks, it is reported, were willing to pay $80,000 for Glenn.

But as promising as was the youthful ball hawk and slugger he remained with the Blues through two whole years after rejoining the club. He enjoyed two big seasons in 1922-23, his work in his last season at Kansas City being a big factor in the winning of the flag and the subsequent championship series with the Baltimore Orioles.

Glenn reported to the Pirates in the spring of 1924 and proceeded to shine at the outset. His five years as a Pirate is striking, but his batting average, for example, does not show him to be the crisis hitter he really is. Few batters in the league are feared in the pinch like Buckshot.

Wright had his banner year of baseball in 1925, this year being an outstanding one in the history of the club. In 153 games the shortstop batted .308. He hammered out 189 hits of all description and he just missed the century mark in runs scored with 97. He really was one of the most valuable players in baseball that year, and he continued his beautiful actions in the world series encounters with the Senators.

In the heat of the 1926 campaign, Wright injured an ankle, the bad hurt taking him out of more than 35 ball games. In 1927 he met with more misfortune. Wright was able to take part in 143 games as the Buccos copped another flag, but he was struck in the head with a fast pitched ball in the midst of the race, the injury racking his whole system for weeks. He batted only .281, a mark far below his normal clip.

SPARKY SHINES

Glenn reported in apparently good shape last spring, but for one reason or another took part in only 108 games. At one stage of the race he ran into Outfielder Fred Brickell and was badly spiked. He had to leave the game, and when he recovered, Sparky Adams was playing the shortfield position like a sensation. Sometime later the Pittsburgh officials apparently deemed it better for all concerned to negotiate with a view of trading Glenn, and for the past two months these dealings have been in progress.

Jesse Lee Petty has been pitching professional baseball for something like 13 years, he being 34 years of age, according to the record books. The big left-hander was born in Orr, Okla., and he took up pitching as a profession in 1916 with the San Antonio club of the Texas League. Cleveland purchased him the same year, but the following season Big Jesse was sent to New Orleans of the Southern Association.

JESS REAL PERFORMER

Petty left baseball to go into the Army in 1918, and when he returned he reported to the Cleveland club again. That was in 1919. The same year we find him in Milwaukee, then back to Cleveland in 1920, Cleveland sending him to Indianapolis before this season was ended.

The left-hander settled in Indianapolis for a long spell, he working five successive seasons in the Hoosier capital before being purchased by the Dodgers in 1925. Although Petty is considered a high-class performer, his record with the Dodgers discloses that he has lost more games than he has won, the figures being 54 victories as against 59 defeats.

Jess is one of the biggest athletes in the league, he weighing almost 200 pounds in good condition. He has a remarkable fast ball and also a good curve.

Harry Riconda, who comes to the Pirates as a part of the big deal, is a likely looking chap, but this infielder has not been able to hold a steady job in more than one opportunity. Riconda is qualified to play any of the three infield positions exclusive of first base, but it isn't likely that he will play any of them regularly for the Buccos. Capt. Traynor holds forth at third, Sparky Adams probably will be the regular second-sacker and Dick Bartell and Coburn Jones should have the call on Riconda for the shortfield job, even if another shortfielder is not secured.

Riconda is a powerfully built infielder; he makes a good impression on the field, but apparently he has trouble in trying to hit big league pitching.

SOCCER GAMES SLATED FOR HOLIDAYS

By TOM BIRKS

THE West Penn Soccer Football Association used its head in selecting Christmas and New Year's for playing off the semi-final rounds of the senior cup, featuring Heidelberg and Dunlevy at one battle and the Pittsburgh Rovers and National Tube in the other.

The governing body will hardly go through with the idea of getting Pitt Stadium for the holiday games, however. The rental will probably be more than the boys care to pay, and, with the treasury in a depleted condition, it cannot afford to gamble.

Homewood has good grounds, and the large stands will take care of all the fans who attend the game—being city property, though, it is impossible to charge admission.

If it is a matter of charging admission—and unless an admission is charged the body will not get much of anything—why not take the games to the Bridgeville Speedway? That may be had for a nominal rental, and it would be a good venue for the Heidelberg-Dunlevy battle.

Of course, it would hardly pay to take the Rover-National Tube game to the Panhandle grounds, and the followers of the club would probably kick. And, while the home of the Pitt Panther is a wonderful setting for the game, it is hardly possible that conditions could be met with any amount of confidence on a bad day.

WOULD BE "NATURAL"

After last Sunday's session at Dunlevy, a meeting between Dunlevy and Heidelberg would be "natural." The unsatisfactory ending has caused much comment, and Dunlevy is not being condemned for what happened. In the element on the side lines after Crompton's attack on Brown there were many who looked for more trouble, especially when Delegate Watson said there would be no more football that day.

The writer dropped in to see Bob Brown last evening, and the popular referee is still feeling the effects of the blow. A certain amount of concussion is in evidence. Brown stated, in the course of the conversation, that he is through with refereeing soccer.

Thick, juicy chops of tender young lamb

In kitchens no bigger than kitchenettes, 10,000 meals a day must be prepared—at utmost speed and served "to the king's taste." That's why Pennsylvania cooks go to school.

VETERAN CAESAR . . . goes to school again

CAESAR knows his onions! Also his sage and savory, spices and salt—and how to conjure the most delicate Epicurean flavors from them . . . He ought to. He has been 22 years a cook on the Pennsylvania, pleasing Pennsylvania patrons.

Now Caesar's going to school again! He's taking a post graduate course under professors steeped in the richest traditions of European and American cuisine.

But not only Caesar! At three special schools in New York, Columbus, and Chicago every one of the 2800 Pennsylvania cooks and waiters attends several classes each week.

These schools are unique. Each contains a replica of the latest type Pennsylvania diner. So the students are taught under the exact conditions which prevail on the road.

Hundreds of letters attest the success of this new departure in American railroading. People are noticing the little niceties the special refinements of cuisine and service on Pennsylvania dining cars. And they are writing of their own accord to praise. These letters are pouring in from travelers not only on the outstanding Limiteds, but on all Pennsylvania trains.

You'll notice such favorites as Boneless Chicken Pie with Mushrooms featured on Pennsylvania menus. Each week these specials change. A full week beforehand, Caesar is carefully coached in the preparation of each "special."

What Causes Speculative Booms to End—Is It Over?

By B. C. FORBES

VIOLENT rises and violent falls in the stock market are determined more by sentiment than by hard facts.

For example, the facts, the actualities, the economic conditions in this country did not change appreciably between Wednesday and Thursday of last week. Nor did they again change anything to speak of between Thursday and Friday, and between Friday and Saturday. Yet we saw very violent changes in prices for many stocks between Wednesday and Thursday, and again between Thursday and Friday, and Friday and Saturday.

What the world was beholding was not any sudden and drastic change for the worse in America's industrial or business or financial conditions. What the world was beholding was a sudden and drastic change in sentiment, and a switching from the highest of high hopes to fear, from optimism to pessimism, from bullishness to bearishness.

OF COURSE, the real value of stocks is governed in the long run by actualities, not by sentiment. If a company's earnings have been showing steady increases over a considerable period, and if its prospects are satisfactory, it is logical for its stocks to advance in price, and normally such a stock does advance in price.

But during a spell of unbridled optimism, stimulated by a bull movement in stocks, the public puts a too-rosy interpretation upon the actualities. It is not governed half so much by what a company has been earning as by ultra-optimistic notions as to what it should earn in the near future. Hopes are capitalized rather than actualities.

This is what we were witnessing up to last week.

MANKIND is beginning to realize the part that psychology plays in human affairs, including the stock market. The nation's record of prosperity under the Coolidge regime naturally and properly created widespread satisfaction, confidence, enthusiasm.

But it became apparent in time to experienced students of economics that this state of mind, well-based though it was, was being overdone in that greatest of all outlets for the display of psychology, the stock market, which is the Supreme Court for the expression of the public's judgment as to security values. Responsible bankers in New York, Chicago and elsewhere began to "swing red lights," to quote a phrase made famous by James J. Hill under like speculative conditions.

These bankers as well as others who strive not to be stampeded by mob psychology foresaw that hopes were being so grossly overcapitalized that disaster was inevitable—for one reason because there was not enough money available in the whole country, or even in the world, to keep on and on financing greater and greater inflation in stock quotations. They well knew that, unless the bullish mania was checked the time would come when the scarcity and the price of loanable funds would arrest the madness.

And unquestionably it was the scarcity and high price of loanable funds which precipitated the sudden demoralization which broke out last week.

PAUL CLAY, a deep student of economics and a recognized authority on forecasting, recently made this observation:

"The sentiment engendered by a series of breaks in the market, or even by a single bad break, is fear. The collapse of the extravagant hopes entertained at the peak of a bull movement serves merely to enhances this fear. It is a peculiar fact that a rapid decline in stock prices has a great power to unnerve the bravest of men. Men who would face a bayonet charge with calm courage will allow themselves to be hurried into precipitate, unwise selling by slumping quotations.

"At such times the banker fears that his bond account will not stand inspection, the merchant fears inability to meet his monthly settlements, the manufacturer fears the decline in sales and the piling up of finished inventories, the wage earner fears for his job and the stock broker fears for his margin accounts.

"As a consequence of this sentiment of fear, all bear movements go too far—meaning that they go farther than is necessitated by the situation of credits. People keep on selling stocks even after they have sold enough to correct their financial position.

"A habit of mind if self-perpetuating. When one has formed the habit of believing that the stock market will rally after every break, he believes it so thoroughly that in the end he buys during the early stages of the break that does not stop. Just so, when he has formed the habit, during a bear movement or business depression, of believing that the stock market will break after every rally, he keeps on believing so and selling stocks even after the economic causes for breaks in prices have ceased to exist."

IT REMAINS to be seen whether Wall Street will on this occasion run true to form, that is, overdo its bearishness just as it overdid its bullishness. The writer doubts whether deflation has yet run its course in the stocks which were boomed most sensationally.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—The raw sugar market continued steady with prices unchanged at 3.93c for spots, duty paid. No sales were reported early today, but late yesterday a local refiner purchased 25,000 bags of Cuban for prompt shipment at 3.93c. It was believed that they would pay the same price for additional quantities, with holders generally asking 3.96c.

Price movements in raw sugar futures were again of small proportions, although the undertone was steady, due to the continued interest on the part of domestic refiners in the spot market. The opening was unchanged to 1 point higher on covering and commission house buying, which was supplied by trade interests, and up to midday prices showed little variation from initial figures.

In refined prices were unchanged at 5.25c for fine granulated. Withdrawals on old contracts were moderate, but new business was light and supplied through second hands at prices below those asked by refiners.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Market Movements Mixed.

Price trends were much jumbled in the New York market today with a number of issues moving in opposite directions. The copper group was generally strong under the leadership of Anaconda and Greene Cananea. The steels were weak, Vanadium and Bethlehem selling lower. Houston Oil furnished a sensation with a sharp drop of 11 points. Other oil stocks were generally firm. The specialties were mixed. Call money was easy around 8 per cent.

Steel Production Record.

"The iron and steel industry having come up to the middle of December with sales and production only mildly impaired by seasonal conditions, another monthly steel record seems in the making. November, with a daily rate of 163,822 gross tons of ingots, surpassed all previous Novembers, topping 1927 by 30 per cent, and if December holds within 8 per cent of last month—as now seems possible—it will be the sixth consecutive record month. Including the 4,259,380 tons of November, the 11-month ingot total stands at 45,837,791 tons. In all 1926, the banner year, only 46,597,475 tons was produced. An estimated 3,900,000 tons for December puts 1928 across the line with 3,150,000 tons to spare. There being no stocks in the hands either of producers or consumers, a record consumption also is indicated."—Iron Trade Review.

Machine Tool Market.

Machine tool buying this month has declined in all markets. Although the volume of inquiry has dropped off along with a reduction in sales, the outlook continues promising for good business early in the new year. Year-end inventory considerations, the approach of the holidays and the desire of many manufacturers to await the new year for the formulation of business plans are perhaps responsible for the check in purchases.

U. S. BUSINESS FORCED TO PLAY FAIR

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

BEHIND the scenes the Federal Trade Commission has been performing one of its greatest services to business. It is using its influence to make industry discard unfair practices. It is not merely playing policeman. It is doing more than any amount of legislation or investigation could accomplish. It is making business regulate itself.

In practically every industry there are customs which are grossly unfair to competitors and which often harm the entire business. A code of ethics is essential for the maintenance of any company's good standing with its customers. But adherence to high standards in business is often made difficult by competitors whose ideals differ.

Recently the Commission has been increasing the practice of calling conferences to iron out the troubles of business. Competitors are brought face to face with each other to settle their common differences and to apply something besides a "get the order" philosophy to their relations.

THE flat glass industry has just succeeded in adopting a code of business practices with the help of the Commission.

The correct labeling of all lights of glass to indicate their quality will be one outgrowth of the new standards. The practice of discrediting competitors by quoting cut prices after contracts have been closed will be eliminated. Dumping of surplus production at lower than manufacturing costs outside of normal territories will also be stopped.

The members of the glass trade believe that the new code will eliminate ruthless business tactics without hindering legitimate competition. It will end policies which, in the long run, react against the entire industry. It will raise the trade in the eyes of the consumers.

THE Commisison conducted a greater number of trade practice conferences in its last fiscal year than ever before in its history. Ten industrial conferences were held. Between the making of the report and October 15, four more conferences took place.

Meetings have been held to smooth out difficulties in industries supplying motion pictures, golf balls, edible oils, shirting fabrics, millwork, wax paper, cotton seed oil, paints, rebuilt typewriters and periodical publications.

Never in the history of American business has there been a time when self regulation has received more intensive consideration," says the Commission's report.

TRADE associations are cited as doing excellent work in promoting self regulation. "Competitive conditions in many industries are being studied and intelligently analyzed, but when faults are discovered and rules adopted for their correction it remains for the trade-practice conference procedure to supply an element which heretofore has been completely lacking—namely, "enforcement," the report continues.

"Self-regulation without rules would be impossible, and rules without some power of enforcement make self-regulation often a mere expensive gesture."

"The fact that some power rests in an impartial, disinterested governmental body obviates the necessity of frequent use of this power. This is demonstrated in that of more than 300 rules adopted by industries in trade-practice conferences the power of the Federal Trade Commission has not been invoked with reference to a dozen of these."

MARKET RALLY ENDS, PRICES REACT

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Reactionary price tendencies again cropped out in today's stock market as the rally, which had been under way since Monday, appears to have run its course. Although some disappointment was apparent that call money should renew at 8 per cent, after being as low as 6½ in the outside market yesterday afternoon, there was nothing in the day's business news to influence the selling movement. Early gains of 3 to nearly 15 points were, in many cases, converted into losses of similar extent.

Weekly steel trade reviews were again optimistic in character, Iron Age reporting that "steel production is exceeding expectations as the year end approaches, and the business outlook for the early part of 1929 is promising." Purchase of a large block of stock of the Standard Milling Co. by Gold Dust is but one of a series of consolidations and new business associations reported to be impending.

A wide open break of 15 points in Houston Oil, which sold down to 102, or 65 points below the year's high, confirmed fears that the market had not been purged of all weak spots in last week's drastic reaction. This tended to chill speculative enthusiasm for other high priced specialties. Radio and Wright Aeronautical canceled their early gains of 8 and 7 points, respectively, and sold below last night's final quotations. A. M. Byers dropped nearly 11 points, Adams Express 10, Johns Manville 8, Packard Motors 6 and Industrial Rayon, May Department Stores, Montgomery-Ward, Goodyear, Associated Dry Goods and General Motors sold 4 to nearly 6 points below yesterday's final quotations.

Weakness of the merchandising issues was attributed in some quarters to expectations that the recent decline in stock prices would impair holiday trade. Fears of the "secondary reaction," which invariably follows the first brisk rally after a sharp decline, also stimulated the liquidation of stocks, particularly by traders and investors who did not reduce their commitments in the first wave of selling, and by pools and bankers who bought stock for supporting purposes.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

Trading at the local wholesale produce district was rather slack today and little change was made in the quotations.

Poultry supplies were liberal, with the demand slow, market easy and quotations unchanged.

The butter, egg and cheese markets were firm. No change was made in the quotations.

Carlot supplies were heavy, a total of 752 cars being on track. Arrivals included 8 cars of apples, 5 cabbage, 5 celery, 3 grapefruits, 10 grapes, 9 lettuce, 4 onions, 8 oranges, 1 pears, 5 potatoes, 3 sweet potatoes, 3 tomatoes and 1 cauliflower.

STEEL EXCEEDS EXPECTATIONS

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—The Iron Age this week says:

Steel production is exceeding expectations as the year-end approaches, and the business outlook for the early part of 1929 is promising. Tapering specifications for some products such as bars, shapes, sheets and strips, are offset, in part, by releases of rail and tinplate tonnage. Ingot output at Chicago, as a result of greater pressure for rail shipments, has risen a number of points to 83 per cent, an average that is expected to hold for the rest of the year. Operations in the Greater Pittsburgh district, although likely to decline during the holiday season, have as yet shown no deviation from the 80 per cent rate of recent weeks. The average for Steel Corporation subsidiaries, at 83 per cent, is also unchanged.

Taking into account that these estimates usually err on the conservative side, as was the case in November, output for this month probably will set a new December record and it may prove surprisingly close to the November daily average.

Heavy melting steel at Pittsburgh has advanced 75 cents a ton to $17.75 or within 25 cents of its peak in October.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Prices opened up 2 points to a decline of 5 points on the cotton market today, out of line with New Orleans, which was off 2 to 6 points and with Liverpool which was 1 to 4 English points lower. A moderate volume of realizing and southern selling was absorbed within a few points of the initial prices and the market soon steadied up on covering together with trade and commission house buying. The demand was probably promoted by rumors that a private authority estimated consumption in this country for November at 624,000 bales, while there were also reports of a slightly steadier spot basis in some eastern belt sections. January sold up to 20.35c and May to 20.31c with the general market showing net advances of about 4 to 7 points by the end of the first half hour.

The advance from the opening irregularity carried the market up to 20.38c for January and 20.33c for May contracts during the middle of the morning, or about 7 to 9 points net higher. There was further liquidation through brokers with Wall street and western connections, however, and prices eased later in the morning. At midday January was selling around 20.20c, having reacted about 18 points from the best, with the general market showing net declines of 8 to 12 points.

Greene Co. Gas Well Runs 6,500,000 Feet

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Dec. 12.—An additional flow of 5,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day was obtained yesterday at the J. W. Closser farm well in Morris township, drilled in Sunday with 1,500,000 cubic feet.

LOCAL STOCKS ADVANCE ON LIMITED TURNOVER

Lone Star Gas had a vigorous rise in the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, gaining 1½ points in the early trading. Steadily increasing earnings of the company and the possibility of a higher dividend rate were held responsible. Persons in close touch with the company's affairs have denied that an increase in the dividend is being considered, but the surplus of the company is gaining at the present rate of earnings.

Arkansas Natural Gas common was traded actively around 3½. One block of 1,000 shares changed hands at 3⅝. The preferred opened at 7⅝. Blaw Knox opened a fraction higher. Pittsburgh Investment was in demand and sold higher at 17½.

Local stocks continued firm in the late trading. Lone Star maintained its early gain and was in steady demand. William Zoller shares sold up to 60½, the high point of its recent move. Suburban Electric sold a fraction lower at 26. The volume of trading was light and the general trend was to slightly higher levels.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—Wheat prices here tended downward early today, influenced by comparative weakness of the Liverpool market and by reports of unlikelihood of farm legislation before spring. Unsettled weather over the corn belt gave relative firmness to corn values. Opening at ⅛c off to ⅛c up, Chicago wheat later underwent a general sag. Corn started unchanged to ⅛c higher and subsequently held near to the initial range. Oats followed corn. Provisions were steady.

At noon wheat was ⅜@⅝c net lower and corn ⅛@⅜c down.

Adding to the bearish influence of an unresponsive attitude which the Liverpool wheat trade showed regarding price upturns on this side of the Atlantic were comprehensive advices here today indicating that many farmers are now proceeding on the basis that no agricultural measures will be enacted at Washington in time to have any effect on prices for this year's domestic crops, as a consequence, the recent holding movement is no longer expected to be general. In this connection, it was pointed out that primary receipts of wheat and of corn and oats as well, are now much larger than at this time last year.

Renewal of speculative selling of corn and simultaneous absence of aggressive commission house buying acted at times today as a weight on corn values. Unfavorable weather for the movement of the corn crop though, together with scantiness of rural offerings of corn, operated as a steadying influence.

A GIFT FOR CHILDREN THAT ENDURES

THIS year give your children a gift which not merely interprets the Christmas spirit, but brings happiness and opportunities for success and prosperity in years to come.

The new Reliance Juvenile Policy—an ideal gift for children—issued on the lives of boys and girls from birth to fourteen years, embodies every possibility for lasting remembrance.

It will assure your children the funds necessary for a college education. It will promote thrift, by instilling in their minds early in life, the value of systematic saving. It will give your son a fund sufficient to start a business of his own and provide your daughter an income independent of her husband's upon her marriage.

The policy also may be arranged to provide a Christmas remembrance check for your son or daughter so long as they may live. For instance, a $1,000 policy will yield an annual Christmas gift of $47.25 which may survive you many years.

These are but a few purposes to which the Juvenile Policy may be put. And a special protective feature provides that, in event of your death or total, permanent disability by accident or sickness, no more premiums are required, the policy continues in force and the fund is payable as directed in the contract.

The premium required is nominal.

Crusading for Civic Betterment Results in Reader-Confidence

A NEWSPAPER can be only as great as the city in which it is published. Its progress and achievements run hand in hand with the prosperity of its community and its readers. Upon public service, fairness in publishing the news, in the unbiased and unprejudiced promotion of civic enterprise, is its success measured. . . . The Sun-Telegraph is duty bound to lend its moral and active support to the furthering of Pittsburgh's greatness. The publication of each new edition means the assuming of new responsibilities—responsibilities incurred by the confidence of a vast audience of readers in the Sun-Telegraph—to bring them the news, to protect their interests and advance their cause in bettering their city.

Pittsburgh's present greatness and prosperity is but an indication of tomorrow's magnitude. The Sun-Telegraph's "platform" for Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania is presented and is being furthered with this in mind. It is composed of issues, many of which have seen or are seeing realization.

A senatorial investigation of the miners' strike was brought about by the Sun-Telegraph, greatly relieving the situation.

The Sun-Telegraph gave its enthusiastic support to the campaign resulting in a popular vote for the building of a new town hall.

A steady fight has been waged against present excessive bus fares.

The Sun-Telegraph secured an investigation of graft in the city government, resulting in many indictments.

At the November sixth election, it was decided by popular vote to install voting machines in all Pennsylvania polls—an improvement the Sun-Telegraph has enthusiastically endorsed and promoted.

A Community Fund for Charities, in which the Sun-Telegraph has always firmly believed, has recently been adopted.

The Sun-Telegraph is a Pittsburgh newspaper, published by Pittsburghers, for Pittsburgh people. It has won its great family of readers on merit alone.

They buy the Sun-Telegraph because it is the kind of a newspaper that satisfies their requirements. They have confidence in the ability and desire of the Sun-Telegraph to serve them well.

Such a reader-audience, reading one evening newspaper alone, surely presents a fertile and responsive field for any advertiser to appeal to profitably.

Pittsburgh, Pa.

Court of Common Pleas of Allegheny county, Pennsylvania, No. 2349, January term, 1929, sitting in equity, between Frances Ferretti, plaintiff, and H. B. Dorning, defendant. Notice is hereby given to H. B. Dorning that on November 27th, 1928, Frances Ferretti, filed a petition setting forth that the petitioner had made diligent search as to the whereabouts of H. B. Dorning but was unable to ascertain the same; whereupon the court made the following order:

And now, to-wit, this 27th day of November, 1928, the within petition presented in open court and upon consideration thereof, and upon consideration of affidavits attached to and filed with said petition, and the court being satisfied that the defendant named in the bill of complaint filed cannot be found upon diligent inquiry so as to be personally served with a writ of summons, and upon motion of Robert A. Cunningham, counsel for the petitioner, it is ordered, adjudged and decreed, that H. B. Dorning, defendant, is hereby summoned to appear and answer said bill of complaint, which avers that a certain oil and gas lease given by Frank Ferretti to H. B. Dorning, dated September 6, 1921, and recorded in the Office of the Recorder of Deeds of Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, in Deed Book, Vol. 2097, page 16, is null and void, and prays that said oil and gas lease be cancelled, and that the Recorder of Deeds of Allegheny County be directed to make a notation on the records of Allegheny County cancelling said lease; said lease being given upon 42 acres of land situate in the Township of Mt. Lebanon, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, bounded on the north by land of Craig and William Anderson and A. J. Smith; on the east by land of Potter and Howard; on the south by land of F. Gilperson and on the west by land of Smith heirs and Abbott heirs; and that a copy of this order be published once a week for four (4) successive weeks in the Pittsburgh Legal Journal and Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, directing the said H. B. Dorning to appear and answer the said bill of complaint on or before January 15, 1929, or upon failure to do so to be liable to have a decree entered against him as prayed for.

Pittsburgh Ideal Place For Holding Conventions

The Chamber of Commerce, which recently announced a large list of conventions secured for Pittsburgh next year, has been presenting claims for recognition as a convention city that may land the next assemblage of the National Safety Council, October 1-5, 1929. It would bring 6,000 visitors to town and would include extensive exhibits of safety devices and data.

We feel sure that if this important meeting should come to Pittsburgh those attending would find many things to interest them. That factor, aside from hotel accommodations, is the main thing in convention sites, since conventions are not all business. Atlantic City is a favorite spot for conventions, because the visitors may have a good time there. So that city has taken advantage of the natural inclination of people to go there through having made ample provision to take care of all who wish to come for both business and pleasure.

Now Pittsburgh is equally as interesting to the visitor, but for a different reason. Atlantic City is a playground, while Pittsburgh is a historic spot and "The Workshop of the World." Also a great cultural center, many of the features of which, such as the Carnegie Museum, Art Galleries, etc., are held by tourists to be worth a visit to Pittsburgh considered alone. Then, too, the city does not lack for places of amusement, having the usual number of theaters, two of them being huge modern temples such as few cities possess. It has one of the most modern baseball parks in the country and many of the frivolities of Atlantic City in two amusement parks. There is no difference in thrills and "hot dogs" and a crowd can make its fun just as well in one place as another.

We feel certain the representatives of the National Safety Council have been apprised of all of the factors which point to Pittsburgh as an ideal convention city. Yet we assume to speak for the public, and, in its behalf, we wish to state that the proverbial hospitality and friendliness of Pittsburgh people will be the thing visitors may remember the longest should they visit our city.

Million Garbage Waste Council Is Apprised

George P. Kountz, head of the Allied Boards of Trade, has sent to Council a declaration that any amount the city expends in excess of $750,000 for garbage disposal in 1929 will be sheer waste. It is said that Council has tentatively allocated $1,700,000 of the coming budget for this purpose.

This is not the first time Mr. Kountz has charged that garbage collection costs the city too much money. A year ago he made a similar protest based, it is said, upon a survey by the Allied Boards of Trade.

Mr. Kountz now suggests that garbage disposal contracts be let for the entire city, instead of for two divisions, as at present, and that bids be asked on a basis of five or ten years, instead of for a single year.

There is something in Mr. Kountz's protest. Removing garbage is a big work, and it is unlikely there would be competitive bidding under a one-year contract. The implication of the suggestions Council has received is that there is a monopoly here. And that the local concerns engaging in the removal of garbage and rubbish, being already equipped to handle the business, can take the work from year to year at any price they choose to quote because no other firm would undertake to prepare itself to compete for the business under present conditions.

If Council has been considering this matter for a year, as Mr. Kountz charges, it ought to be pretty well informed by now on all phases of the question. Let the public hear the answer.

Toy Mission Appeals For Kiddies' Playthings

The old South School, Diamond and Ross streets, is the headquarters of the Toy Mission, which annually distributes toys to bring Christmas cheer to children Santa Claus might overlook. Annually this worthy philanthropy makes its appearance for a few weeks prior to Christmas, establishes a station for the receipts of toys, and then plays the role of St. Nicholas.

It can make use of new and discarded toys for children of all ages, and it must depend upon the generosity of the public. It is equipped to recondition toys which perhaps only need a little paint to brighten them up or minor repairs to make them serviceable and bring happiness to some poor child, but they should be toys, not junk. Persons who have around their homes toys which their own children have outgrown can spread sunshine in places where it is seldom seen by taking such articles to the Toy Mission. It is centrally located and it takes but little time for any person to deliver a parcel of toys.

If you ever saw the line at an annual distribution of gifts by the Toy Mission it is certain your heart would be touched. Imagine now that you do see it, with hundreds waiting hopefully to be served, and you will not fail to take any unused toys in your home to the Mission—or, perhaps, buy one or two new ones for some little boy or girl you do not know, but who will be made glad at Christmastime because of your kindness.

Tales That Are Told

Gave the Game Away

THEY were talking of a sister hockey player in the ladies' pavilion.

"Let me see," said the first girl, "didn't Gertrude Gadalotte marry a wealthy motor manufacturer?"

"She did," replied another; "and he disgraced her on her honeymoon."

All the other players were very interested by this remark.

"How was that?" several asked in a breath.

"Gertrude wanted all the other passengers to believe an ocean voyage was an old story to them, but her husband pointed to a row of lifebelts hanging up on deck one day, and asked an officer what was the idea of all the extra tires."

Safety First

AS the young couple climbed over the stile a large notice-board caught their attention.

"Beware of the Bull," was the legend in white letters on a black ground.

The girl looked anxiously round the field and breathed a sigh of relief. The bull was not to be seen.

Some few minutes later she gave a shrill scream.

"O-oh, George, is that the bull over there?"

"It is," declared the young man solemnly. "If I were you I'd put away that lipstick."

His First Chance

THE foreman of the roadmenders had been taken ill suddenly, and his right-hand man, Patrick O'Casey, was duly promoted to the post temporarily.

On the foreman's subsequent return he was surprised to find Patrick the only man working on the stretch of unrepaired road, and inquired as to the absence of the others.

"Where's all the boys, Pat?"

"Oi foired ivery man o' them," replied the Irishman, with a grin. "It's not often Oi have a chance of showing my authority; but, bedad, Oi made most of my opportunity yisterday, to be sure."

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

THERE is a difference between the East and the West, all right. Out West they take you around and show you all the newest buildings that they just put up. And in the East they are more likely to show you all the buildings that has got moss on them from standing around so long.

There was a westerner and his wife that was looking around in New England, and he was wanting to settle down there. But she was pointing out to him all the time how stingy the New Englanders are, so that he wouldn't move away from Nebraska. They went to an old inn, and there was a guide showing them around. The guide says, "Now, you know George Washington stopped here and et his dinner, when he was chasing the British. Everything is just the same here now as it was then. Not a thing inside the house or outside has been changed since Washington was here."

She looked at her husband and says, "Now, George, what did I tell you? These here New England landlords are just that stingy, and if we was to move here, we would never get anything painted or fixed up for us! I bet you can't find any landlord in Nebraska that hasn't made some improvements since George Washington was alive."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

"WHEN I was your age I wasn't gallivanting around with every Tom, Dick and Harry," sniffs Mother Jones, surveying 20-year-old daughter Sally. "I had two babies by that time and your dad and I were working night and day to buy the ranch. Young folks had some sense of responsibility then. All you've got in your head now is boys and parties and clothes. You never think of settling down and getting somewhere."

"Yeah—and who's going to pay the bills if we do?" snaps daughter Sally. "You're always talking about how young people married early in your day, mother, and had ranches and babies before they were barely out of their teens. But you never stop to think that marriage didn't cost a quarter as much then as it does now.

"Don't you suppose we want to get married as early as you did? You bet we do. But try 'n' do it. How could Bill and I get married and have babies and buy a ranch on his $35 a week with things costing what they do now? Maybe if I worked we could get along, but you can't have babies and work in an office."

"Your father was only getting $20 a week when we married," boasts Mother Jones.

"Sure—but you lived in a little country town and all your relations pitched in and furnished your house for you with their left overs. You've told me so yourself. And Grandma and Grandpa gave you milk and vegetables free and rent was hardly anything. We could get married young, too, if we had help like that. But try and find it! How often do you hear of modern parents carrying part of the expenses so their children can marry young? Why, when Judge Lindsay suggested it in that companionate marriage book of his, everybody threw a fit. You and Dad were just as bad as the rest of them."

"But that was different. A young man has no right to ask a girl to marry him unless he can support her. And if the parents help them it's apt to take away all their initiative."

"But Dad asked you to marry him before he could really support you. Maybe Grandma didn't give you actual money but it was the same as money. And it didn't destroy your initiative, did it? You could never have married young, any more than Bill and I can, if he hadn't helped you.

"And there's another thing, mother. You're always saying how terrible these petting parties are. Maybe there wouldn't be so many petting parties—and so many young people getting into trouble—if we could get married young, the way you did. You never thought of that, did you?"

There's a conversation I overheard the other day. It's an important conversation because it touches the most vital problem of our modern life. I wonder what YOU think about it? Do YOU believe that parents should help young people to marry, as our grandparents helped their children? And if you don't—what IS your answer.

WIND AND RAIN

By Garrett P. Serviss

PROF. KNIPP, of the University of Illinois, has been making a little rain just to show that science can do it. His laboratory process was performed by filling a glass receptacle with air saturated with moisture almost to the point of precipitation, i. e. just ready to condense into fine rain. Then he let a little smoke from a burning match into the receptacle, and lo! there was rain in the jar.

Professor Knipp did not hesitate to affirm that: "If the air over the City of New York were right at the saturation point and we wanted rain, all we would have to do would be to blow some of the city smoke into the air and we would have rain."

The reason of the thing has long been known. Sir Oliver Lodge, among others, demonstrated it. It depends upon the fact that atmospheric moisture condenses about particles of floating dust, and when these drops become massive enough they fall as rain. But this in turn depends upon the pre-existence in the atmosphere of sufficient moisture, and upon other circumstances, such as the temperature. In the laboratory experiment everything was prepared in the proper proportions, and all the elements concerned were directly under the control of the experimenter. On the scale of nature, man's interference must be relatively insignificant. Yet it is not beyond the bounds of scientific possibility that some time we may obtain a control of local weather conditons that at present would seem magical.

It is an old story, sometimes treated as a superstition and sometimes as a fact, that rain follows great battles. Until the discovery of the decisive part that floating dust plays in the production of rain drops, it was supposed that the shock of the gun firing brought about the condensation of the moisture in the air; but now the alleged effect is ascribed to the smoke and dust rising over the battlefield.

But always the first requirement is that there shall be sufficient moisture in the air. Except over great bodies of water this must for the greater part be brought from a distance, perhaps many hundred of miles. The winds distribute the raw material of the rain, i. e., the invisible atmospheric vapors, whose ultimate source of origin is the ocean. The wind often takes part itself in the process of rain formation, for if it lifts its burden of moisture over a mountain range the coolness of the higher air condenses the vapor into rain.

Inside of a storm there are minor winds blowing in various directions, rising, descending, whirling, and all these have their roles to play in the formation, descent and distribution of the rain, or the snow or hail. One of the most thrilling sights to the watcher of nature is the rising of the wind that foretells a storm:

"The southern wind
Doth play the trumpet to his purposes
And by his hollow whistling in the leaves
Foretells a tempest and a blustering day."
—King Henry IV.

"Came a light wind, fast hardening, forth the east,
And blackening till its might had marred the skies."
—Tristam of Lyonnese.

The rush of the wind ahead of a summer thunderstorm, madly whirling the dust and leaves and chilling the fast darkening air, is an awing spectacle; while a meteorological skeleton of the interior of a thundercloud, charged with lightning and with hail, is surprising in the picture that it gives of the contending winds raging under the smooth, white "thunderhead," that towers, brilliant in the sunshine, over the cradle of rain, lightning and hail rocked in the whirling clouds beneath.

Bible Passages

"The Lord Reigneth"

(Psalm 97)

THE Lord reigneth: let the earth rejoice; let the multitude of isles be glad thereof.

Clouds and darkness are round about him: righteousness and judgment are the habitation of his throne.

A fire goeth before him, and burneth up his enemies round about.

His lightnings enlightened the world: the earth saw, and trembled.

The hills melted like wax at the presence of the Lord, at the presence of the Lord of the whole earth.

The heavens declare his righteousness, and all the people see his glory.

Confounded be all they that serve graven images, that boast themselves of idols: worship him, all ye gods.

Zion heard, and was glad; and the daughters of Judah rejoiced because of thy judgment, O Lord.

For thou, Lord, art high above all the earth: thou art exalted far above all gods.

Ye that love the Lord, hate evil: he preserveth the souls of his saints; he delivereth them out of the hand of the wicked.

Light is sown for the righteous, and gladness for the upright in heart.

Rejoice in the Lord, ye righteous; and give thanks at the remembrance of his holiness.

Could I But Choose

COULD I but choose some gift for each day's end
So that to me the night
Would be in coming like a well-loved friend
Whose presence spells delight,
My plea would be for but one boon alone,
Content at set of sun
To know on one good deed of mine had shone
Its rays, one kindness done.
How it would change the coming of the dark
And make the twilight glow
With joy that touched each white star with its spark
This gift, could I but know!

Isn't It So?

New York Day by Day

by O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—One of New York's difficult emotional struggles is to banish the boredom of ennui and laugh right out loud. The widely heralded gaiety of metropolitan life may be as advertised, but it seems to me to touch very few funny bones. A smile appears to freeze en route.

Many Broadway dramas this season were concerned with the tragedy of monotony—the bookkeeper chained to dull routine, the mouse-like wife corroded by domestic drudgery, the successful but inarticulate husband who can express himself only in monosyllabic grunts. Human cogwheels turning—always turning!

The "tiger woman" of the Lilliputian journals are usually those whose didoes are motivated by a desire to escape a humdrum existence. Prisons are not so much filled by those caught up by the high tide of pleasures of a city as by the backwash of its sameness.

One of the Rialto offerings was a series of tragic sequences showing how a New York girl was graduated with machine like precision from a typewriter to an electric chair—punctuated throughout with such tedious machinal as the subway grind, the riveting rat-a-tat-tat and the hurdy gurdy.

In the same way that country folk are little interested in their surrounding rural scenery so do city folk begin to yawn at the sight of people. They see so many. The stranger who walks up and down Broadway or Fifth avenue is always impressed by this air of detachment.

Another phase of metropolitan monotony is its restlessness. Few who acquire wealth remain in the city for long periods. They move with the seasons to the country, to Palm Beach and the Riviera. Most fine mansions are boarded up eight months of the year.

There is no denying the majority of New Yorkers love their city, but after a few years it becomes a treadmill—completely overwhelming with its ceaseless irksomeness. There is plenty of excitement, but its appeal is chiefly for the visitor.

New York listened to more fat and juicy cuss words on its stage this season than ever before. The blaspheming in "What Price Glory!" was pink tea twaddle. Most of the profanity was unloosed by reporters in newspaper plays. Due to the vagaries of city editors who seemed to think my retirement would be a big boon to journalism I have worked on more different newspapers than the average playwright and I have heard no such obscene exhibitions.

There was, and probably is, a type of newspaperman fitting the stage picture of the year. He was not a real reporter, but a "tipster" who telephoned his tips and could not write a line. He was a heartache in most newspaper shops and never on regular salary. He was no more representative of the newspaper trade than the proprietor of a 10-cent cellar cooch show on the Bowery is representative of the theater. We often wonder if the playwrights ever heard of Floyd Gibbons or Phil Simms and a few fellows like that.

Fashion whisper: Face veils and black stockings for ladies are regaining erstwhile popularity and experts say will have a complete comeback by spring.

Three famous stage comedians who, in the past, wasted much time at the flowing bowl, have ended their first year of complete sobriety. Two whose wives left them on account of waywardness are reconciled and the third has become engaged to a lady not of the theater. "For the first time in years," said one, "I find myself content to listen to someone else talk." Most actors have to become entirely sober to listen. Even then they don't take it up very seriously.

And that should be soon."

THE VESTRIS

By Herbert Kaufman

THE loose screw detective wasn't on deck when the Vestris sailed for Davy Jones' locker.

Chalk another score for carelessness. Somebody again took something for granted, and a hundred odd lives payed the piper.

The old, old story of the chain and the weak link.

One more case of the sleeping sentry, alias dozing watchman and recreant inspection.

Take it to heart and to the office. And while you're anathematizing duty's traitors, remember that "there, but by the grace of God, went you."

Within a week the tragedy will be generally forgotten for some other sensation and we'll all be back at our fixed habit of postponing important letters, neglecting to sterilize surgical instruments, disregarding traffic signals, and overlooking missing rivets.

The usual average of commas will be omitted from legal documents, the customary number of children will be killed by speeding cars and the calculated ratio of accounts lost through misdirected shipments.

A track-walker won't see a sprung rail, an engineer will run past a danger signal, and a smart Aleck will somewhere shoot his friend with an "unloaded" gun.

An apoplectic man will delay his last insurance payment, eat a last dish of pig's knuckles and sauerkraut, play a last round of golf, and leave a family dependent upon his last week's salary.

A railroad gateman will snooze in his shanty, fail to hear the signal bell and be ever after haunted by a mangled carload of school children.

Goodenough, Don'tgiveadam & Co., the world's leading promoters of bankruptcy and failure, will continue to do business as usual at the old stand.

The news will cast its wire nets and collect tidings of disaster and wreckage from Dan to Beersheba.

And every dispatch will trace fire, calamity, epidemic and collision to trifle-neglect.

The Vestris sinks every day. And always for the same reason.

OH, THESE WOMEN

By Leola Allard

A LADY in a suburb of NewYork is so much interested in a 7-year-old boy that she is trying to persuade his mother to let her and her husband adopt him. The father isn't in the picture. The mother comes home at 2 and 3 in the morning and the child has no place to stay. The other night the woman who wants him came home from the city on a late train and she and her husband found the child asleep in the railroad station.

After showing him much consideration on various occasions, the lady now leaves her door open at night and when the child can't get into his own home, he comes to her house and finds a bed to sleep in.

The other morning she heard a clatter in the kitchen and the child had washed the dinner dishes, which were left for a maid, due next day. He got himself some breakfast and made enough coffee—good coffee—for her and her husband, and was fixing a tray of breakfast for his fairy godmother.

"I don't know what his father was," she told me, "but that child, with that mother and practically no training, has the most beautiful manners, and the finest instincts. When he is our guest he even pulls my chair out for me when I sit down to dinner. And he's 7 years old!"

So far the mother hasn't consented to the adoption, but what a Christmas it's going to be in the fairy godmother's house if and when she does.

There isn't any happier Christmas than one that ushers a little child into a childless home. I had the extreme pleasure of giving for adoption one Christmas time five babies. And if the new parents didn't write me the following year and ask if I couldn't get brothers and sisters for Christmas presents for these children! But I hadn't encountered any orphans that yet, and I couldn't fill the order.

If you don't know what you want for Christmas and you haven't any babies, you might think it over. Doctors, orphanages or hospitals can help you.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

SNAP out of it.

You are not so important as your exalted opinion of yourself indicates.

You have a few dollars, are rapidly adding more.

But this should not cause you to think yourself superior.

You have traveled always in a little circle and your present outlook is confined to a small radius.

Perhaps you seem far above the average to those you meet in your limited circle.

But out among the big men, the great doers, the captains of industry and the highly professional workers, how would you stand?

Keep reaching out to find and to know the ones who head the lines in which you are interested.

Try to catch up with the big ones.

Don't be satisfied with the admiration and appreciation of those who know as little or less than you do.

You will do more and better work and think less of yourself if you choose to associate with those who are several steps ahead of you.

Aren't you too easily satisfied with yourself?
